Belgium Cuts Franc Value; Cripps Party Faces Revolt

Wild Trading Results From Pound Action; Speculation in Gold And Staples Frantic

London (Wednesday), Sept. 21 (AP).—The stampede of currency revaluation caught up Belgium early today. In Britain—where it started—the Labor Government was threatened with a fight for its life.

Yesterday—a day of feverish speculation in the world's gold, stock and commodity markets—saw Greece join the 20 other nations who already had decided to cheapen their money in terms of dollars. Early this morning Belgium fell in line after a lengthy meeting of the cabinet.

Effective Thursday the U. S. dollar will purchase 50 francs. Previously the dollar bought 43.82 francs.

Henri Liebaert, minister of finance, said it represents a devaluation of 12.34 percent.

British Workers Uneasy

The pound sterling last week was worth 176.50 Belgian francs. Tomorrow the pound will be worth 140 francs.

The spectre of inflationary prices went down to roots of the Labor Party. Workers were uneasy at the thought of higher prices and the government's hold-the-line wage policy.

The division in British labor ranks—backbone of the government—was reflected when the general council of the Trades Union Congress was unable to come to an agreement on devaluation policy after a meeting of nearly four hours.

A council statement said only that the representatives of eight million union workers were sure the government had not devalued the pound from $4.03 to $2.80 "without a careful assessment of all the factors involved."

Italy and western Germany seemed likely to devalue their money in a few days.

Parliament Call Expected

Already Britain, France, Canada, Sweden, the Netherlands, Norway, Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Ireland, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, Ceylon, India, Burma, Malaya, Egypt, Israel, Iraq, Greece and Belgium have put cheaper dollar tags on their currency.

The Labor Government is expected to call Parliament back into session Tuesday in response to a demand by Winston Churchill for a debate on devaluation.

To support its stand, the government was expected to put out to Labor members a so-called three-line whip. This, in effect, is an order to Labor members to attend and support the government or face party disciplinary action.

Such orders would indicate a

Britain's King Reported 'Fit' After Operation

London, Sept. 20 (U.P.).—Informed palace sources said today that King George has recovered "remarkably" from his recent illness, eliminating any necessity for him to delegate more strenuous official duties to the Queen or Princess Elizabeth.

They said the 53-year-old sovereign, now vacationing in Scotland, has been fit enough in recent weeks to dance and climb hills in pursuit of grouse.

Court doctors were said to be highly pleased at the effects of the recent operation to improve the flow of blood in the King's right leg.

Yugoslav Ballot A Mystery

Romulo Voted U. N. Assembly President; Urges Cooperation

Assembly's new president

New York, Sept. 20 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, anti-Communist campaigner from the Philippines, was elected president of the fourth United Nations Assembly today with 53 votes. Only the five nations of the Soviet bloc voted against him.

Romulo's first act was an appeal to the delegates to make this the "Peace Assembly."

One Invalid Ballot

Five votes—presumably those of the Soviet bloc—were cast for Vladimir Clementis, Czechoslovak Foreign Minister, for president. In previous assemblies the Russian group always has polled at least six votes.

There was one invalid ballot in the 59 cast. Many delegates speculated Yugoslavia either voted for Romulo or put in the invalid ballot. No Yugoslav would comment.

The most enthusiastic crowd since the first assembly here in 1946 applauded Romulo when the verdict was announced.

His election to succeed Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Australian Foreign Minister, has been a foregone conclusion for weeks but the 48-year-old former newspaperman, congratulated before the meeting, held up a warning finger and said: "not yet."

Urges Cooperation

In his brief speech to the Assembly, Romulo said the third Assembly in 1948 was known as the "Human Rights Assembly" because it approved a declaration of human rights.

Acknowledging many obstacles to peace still exist, he said the danger of a new war has greatly abated and that the delegates must press this advantage.

Romulo called on the delegates—including the Foreign Ministers of the United States, Russia, Britain, France and more than a dozen other countries—to move boldly forward in the spirit of international cooperation called for by the Mexican resolution approved unanimously last year in Paris.

This resolution pledged the great powers to the peaceful settlement of their disputes. But after a short session of harmony

His father is publisher of Broadcasting magazine. There are two older children.

The boy, a student at Ben Murch School, was pronounced dead at the scene by an Emergency Hospital ambulance doctor and his body was removed to the Morgue.

Police identified the driver of the auto as Paul J. Garber, 27, of 9034 48th pl., College Park, Md., an employe in the parts department of Moore-Day Motors, Inc., 4400 Connecticut ave. nw.

The fatal accident happened at about 5:30 p. m. two doors away from the boy's home.

Garber told police he was driving uphill west on Brandywine at about 15 miles an hour and the boy was riding downhill on his bicycle.

Faster Pace Called for In Congress

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

With leaders calling for a "speed-up," both houses of Congress, working in double harness for the first time in a month, will take a second look at the "Fair Deal" program today.

The House, which since August 26 has been in constant recess except for token sessions, will convene full-dress at noon.

Hurrying back to take the helm, Speaker Sam Rayburn (Tex.) and House Majority Leader John W. McCormack (Mass.) were faced with this early choice:

1. Whether to confine the new session to a "clean up" of loose end appropriation bills and little else in a drive to adjourn by mid-October, or

2. Whether to take another fling at the Truman legislative program, including such items as the committee deadlocked Federal-aid-to-education bill and the Ways and Means-approved Social Security program.

2 Measures Added

Senate Democratic leaders yesterday added two more Truman measures to its agenda but said this need not interfere with an early leave-taking.

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) appealed to the Senate to "move along here so the Senate can finish its business and we can adjourn."

The Senate, in almost continuous session since January, was still debating the arms-aid bill and Lucas was calling for a Thursday showdown.

Earlier, Senate Democratic policy-makers meeting with Lucas approved a heavy work-load for the Senate with a stepped up timetable for it.

Lucas announced these two additional "Fair Deal" bills will be called up before adjournment:

1. An emergency Federal school construction program. Entirely apart from the Senate-approved aid to education bill, this authorizes (a) a five-million-dollar State survey of postwar school needs and (b) a Federal school construction program in areas taken over by the Government for defense purposes;

2. A bill to increase medical training facilities with Federal aid. An adjunct to the Truman health program, this is designed to turn out more badly needed doctors, dentists and nurses by helping both the schools and the students.

Rural Phone Bill

Added to the Senate schedule also was a rural telephone bill. Lucas still listed a civil rights showdown before adjournment as "possible" but the President may make it a "must."

Still unreported, fair employment practices legislation may be used for the test. Southern Senators said it would certainly mean a filibuster, and jam adjournment plans, if it's rolled out.

Setting a fast pace for this week on earlier "musts," Lucas asked the Senate to stay in session Friday night and Saturday to approve five pay bills covering the

Hope of Averting Strike In Steel Industry Is Faint

Chest Success Is Put Up to 447 Firms

Success or failure of the coming Community Chest campaign rests squarely with the 447 Washington business organizations employing 50 or more persons.

With that statement as the keynote, representatives of 125 of these firms met yesterday to hear the reasons why it is up to them to put the drive across, and how to go about it.

Labeled "bellwether firms," the 125 organizations have agreed to wind up their individual campaigns by the first report luncheon. They are thus to act as leaders in the business world.

Luchs Opens Meeting

The meeting, held in the Washington Gas Light Company auditorium, was opened by Frank J. Luchs, general campaign chairman. Luchs referred to a letter from Philip L. Graham, publisher of The Washington Post and vice-chairman of the forthcoming drive, which went out yesterday to all 447 firms. The letter asserts that success or failure of the campaign rests with the firms.

Here is what the letter says:

The 112,434 employes of the 447 organizations represent one-fifth of all gainfully employed persons in the District, about one-third of all non-Government workers, about one-half of all who work for salaries or wages in private industry.

Business Unit a Laggard

Yet each year the Government unit of the Chest all but exceeds its quota. Of 225,000 Federal workers, 205,000 contributed last year, or 91 percent.

The Chest's business unit consistently lags way behind. Last year only 41 percent of the firms made a firm gift, and only 45 percent of the employes made individual gifts.

"The key to Chest success," Graham's letter says, "is participation. The higher the percentage of people who give something, the greater the total."

Graham points out in his letter that employes of the 447 firms contributed a total of $373,981 last year—$3.33 per employe. But, he says, only 53 percent of the 112,434 employes contributed at all.

"Our success," he asserts, "is the splash in the center of the pond. The ripples keep spreading and spreading."

The letter concludes with a reminder that the Chest represents 102 agencies and organizations. Instead of each of these making individual appeals, the Chest concentrates them into one, "once-a-year-and-over with, packaged appeal."

On an individual basis, Edward

2 Firms Grant Demands

40% of D. C. Trucking Business Tied Up as Drivers Walk Out

Eight Washington trucking firms handling about 40 percent of express and transfer business locally last night were struck by Truck Drivers Local 639 (AFL) after weeks of futile negotiating which began last July.

The strike, which involves about 175 members of the union, was called at 7 p. m., according to Jerry Gradeck, secretary-treasurer of the local.

Cowan, New York and Fairview aves. ne.; Davidson, 1250 Upshur st. nw.; Brooks, 50 L st. se.; Savage, 2130 24th pl. ne.; Baltimore Transfer, 1900 Fenwick st. ne.; Elliott, 2130 24th pl. ne.; Eagle, 336 E st. sw.; Dignan, 1233 E st. sw.

All the struck firms are members of the District Trucking Association whose contract with the local expired September 1.

Two members of the 10-member association were reported by Gradeck to have met the union's terms and signed up and hence were not struck. These firms, he said, were Capitol Transfer Service, 916 New York ave. nw., and Eastern States Terminal Corp., 50 I st. se.

In the negotiations, the union had demanded a 17-cent an hour wage increase over the present $1.15 hourly rate. But the trucking association stood firm behind a top offer of 13½ cents.

The union also asked a 40-hour work week in place of the present 48-hour week while the best offer of the employers was 45 hours.

Striking Baltimore drivers last Wednesday accepted the same

U. S., Britain, Canada Open Atom Talks

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

High officials of the United States, Britain and Canada began negotiations yesterday aimed at restoring their wartime partnership that produced the atomic bomb.

All three governments felt that the virtual breakdown of their partnership was hampering atomic development in all three countries.

American government agencies concerned — chiefly the Atomic Energy Commission, the Defense Department and State Department —were sure that the present system, or lack of system, could not go on.

Information Cut Off

As matters stand today, the McMahon Act of Congress cuts off British and Canadian scientists from information they need. And it also prevents the United States from getting the technical knowledge and ideas of the British scientists who helped unlock the atom during the war.

President Truman promised on July 28 that the present talks would be "exploratory" and would not involve commitments to the British and Canadians without "further consultations with the Congress." Subject to this condition, there was every prospect that the three-power talks would lead to:

1. A request to Congress to amend the McMahon Act so as to allow a freer interchange of information among the three wartime partners;

2. A new long-term agreement assuring the United States, and the British and Canadians as well, of dependable access to uranium and other atomic raw materials; and possibly, too,

3. A joint program under which each country would be assigned a particular field of atomic development, with the United States designated as the only one of the three to make atomic bombs.

First Session Short

The first session yesterday lasted only an hour and a quarter under the chairmanship of James E. Webb, Undersecretary of State. The American delegation included Chairman David E. Lilienthal of the Atomic Energy Commission and high military officials; the British were headed by Sir Roger Makins of the Foreign Office and Ambassador Sir Oliver Franks, and

Friends, Foes Praise, Assail Arms Aid Bill

The Senate yesterday heard the $1,314,010,000 military assistance bill praised as a "bargain policy for peace" and attacked as "meddling in World War III."

Friends and critics of the program took the floor as the Senate headed toward a Thursday showdown on the bill and efforts to cut it.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) said he did not know whether to call it "fire insurance or life insurance" but it can be had now for a bargain price.

"It is in honorable keeping with our treaty obligations," said Vandenberg. "It is definitely in the interests of our national defense . . . It is a discouragement to war . . . It is prime and vital peace insurance."

Byrd Points to 'Absurdity'

But Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) called it "meddling again and causing further difficulty and destruction."

And Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) said it was "absurd" to call it "a one-year program."

"Once you undertake this obligation, you have to carry through," said Byrd. "There is not the remotest indication this will stop after one year."

A third Democratic critic, Senator Walter F. George (Ga.), introduced amendments designed not only to cut back the program but to provide another congressional check on the outlays.

The bill now empowers the President to free the bulk of the bill's cash by approving the recommendations of the North Atlantic Council and defense committee.

Congressional Veto Sought

George offered an amendment requiring "the Government" rather than the President to approve the recommendations. He said this would give Congress a look at the defense plan and the right to approve or disapprove.

Another amendment by George would cut Western Europe arms aid in half, reducing the amount to 300 million dollars cash and 200 million dollars contract authority.

Critics of the program are expected to register their peak strength on these two amendments, but bipartisan supporters still hoped to hold the bill substantially "as is."

Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.) said he

Murray Agrees To Extension Of Conciliation One More Day

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

There was a faint ray of hope last night that the impending steel strike could yet be averted before the Saturday midnight deadline.

But—it must be emphasized—it was not more than a faint ray of hope.

The glimmer of optimism was based on the fact that Philip Murray, president of the million-member CIO Steelworkers, postponed for 24 hours the strike-emergency meeting of the big union's policy board scheduled for today in Pittsburgh.

Murray, who has been participating for two days in conciliation discussions here, agreed to stay on for a third day at the request of Cyrus S. Ching, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

Management Suggestions Asked

Ching, who admitted yesterday evening that two days of talk had resulted in no progress toward finding a solution to the dispute, said he asked both sides to do some soul-searching overnight. He also asked the steel companies to bring in any suggestions they might have for breaking the stalemate.

The steel producers and the union are deadlocked over the recommendations of the President's fact - finding committee, which briefly urged no wage raises, but 4 cents in social insurance and 6 cents in pensions, to be financed solely by management. The Steelworkers have accepted the recommendations in their entirety, and demand that the steel companies do likewise, as a condition to further bargaining.

Murray has flatly announced that if the steel companies fail to accept the recommendations of the fact-finders, the steel workers will strike at 12:01 a. m. next Sunday morning.

Companies Adamant

Thus far, the steel companies have just as adamantly insisted that they are willing to sit down and bargain on the basis of the recommendations, without accepting them on an as-is basis. The companies contend that the workers themselves should contribute toward any social insurance and pension program.

Murray's willingness to stay in Washington for another day of conciliation talks prompted John A. Stephens, vice president of United States Steel, to say to

Welles Is Left $200,000 Cash, Trust Fund Income by Wife

The Washington Post

The Welles house, 2121 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Summer Welles, former Secretary of State, will receive a cash bequest of $200,000 under terms of the will of his wife, Mrs. Mathilde Townsend Welles, which was filed yesterday for probate in the Prince Georges County Orphans Court.

Mrs. Welles, who died suddenly in Lausanna, Switzerland, last month while on a trip abroad with her husband, left an estate in which personal property was valued in excess of $500,000.

Among her Washington holdings was the well-known Townsend House, 2121 Massachusetts ave. nw., which the Welles used as a Washington residence.

In addition to her husband's bequest, she left Welles' two sons by a former marriage $10,000 each. They are Benjamin S. and Arnold Welles. Mrs. Mae Townsend Pease of Philadelphia, a cousin, was bequeathed $50,000. Servants and employes of Mrs. Welles were left a total of $45,000, mostly in $5000 and $10,000 bequests.

Stock Values Drop $1 Billion On Currency and Labor News

New York, Sept. 20 (AP).—The stock market went into one of the steepest dives of the year today.

Around one billion dollars was chopped off the market value of all stocks listed on the exchange.

A steady pounding of sales orders knocked prices down $1 to $3 a share. The retreat was orderly and late in the day a touch of resistance developed but it lacked any real punch. Gold stocks were consistently higher.

Ominous labor news was credited as a major force behind the decline. Strikes now threaten the coal and steel industries.

International currency devaluation also played a part in the market's action. The profits of many companies with overseas operations, it was feared, may be hit hard by stiffer foreign competition. Potential long-range effects of devaluation also worried traders.

The market's first response to devaluation yesterday was encouraging. Prices dropped sharply at the opening but a slow recovery carried through most of the day.

Prices also dropped in the major commodity markets again today but the dip lost much of its sharpness. Generally, prices were lower in terms of the dollar and higher in terms of the devalued currencies.

Wool futures were a cent to 2 cents a pound higher today after dropping 7½ to 9 cents yesterday.

Domestic sugar futures were a very minor fraction higher than yesterday and cotton futures at New York ranged from 20 cents a bale higher to 5 cents a bale lower after yesterday's 50 to 70 cents a bale drop.

Livestock and hogs slipped again at Chicago and the grain pits found prices sagging.

Senate Committee Approves $3 Million D. C. Sesqui Fund

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

The three-million-dollar fund for financing the National Capital Sesquicentennial celebration next year was approved yesterday by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The money was included in the supplemental appropriation bill, which now goes to the Senate for action. The House has balked to date at approving the fund, while the Senate earlier voted to grant two million for financing the celebration. Senate approval of the three-million fund would again put the issue up to the House.

In other decisions, the Senate appropriations group:

1. Forecast a sharp cut in the Washington child day care center program by refusing to double a House-approved appropriation of $50,000. They left the fund at the House figure, a move which John W. Tramburg, District Welfare director, had said would require closing four of the six day care centers, now serving about 270 children.

2. Assured final congressional approval—never seriously in question — for the $4,205,850 needed to pay the retroactive salary increases of city employes for the year that ended last June 30. The figure has been approved by the House and the Senate committee, and no change in it is expected.

3. Indorsed the House-approved fund of $225,000 to permit enlarging the best of the two build-

$50,000 Damage Caused by Fire in 14th Street Store

Fire in a paint store and office building at 3616 14th st. nw., last night caused an estimated $50,000 damage although 16 pieces of fire apparatus fought for two hours to bring it under control.

The fire, of undetermined origin, broke out shortly after 11 p. m. At 1 a. m. today five fire trucks were still playing water on the embers. The fire was confined entirely to the two-story building, firemen said. No one was injured, although sparks showered as flames shot through the roof of the building.

Police said the damage estimate was made by tenants of the building.

Czech Priest Saved From 50 Red Police

Anti-State Plot Tied To Rajk

Budapest, Hungary, Sept. 20 (U.P.).—A chic, brunette schoolteacher testified today that she heard former Foreign Minister Laszio Rajk discuss plans for an anti-state uprising at a secret forest rendezvous a year ago.

Pretty Gyorgyi Tarisznyas, was the seventh of a string of witnesses called by the prosecution in the fourth day of the treason trial of Rajk and seven others.

Another witness, Deszo Nemet, 35-year-old former Hungarian colonel, admitted he spied for Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito early this year while assigned to Moscow as Hungarian military attache.

Miss Tarisznyas was described in the indictment as the former mistress of a Yugoslav diplomat, Karlo Mrazovic, who recently was named Ambassador to Moscow.

She told how she attended a rendezvous in a forest hut near the Yugoslav border in October, 1948, when Rajk allegedly received Yugoslav orders for a coup d'etat in Hungary.

Miss Tarisznyas testified she heard Rajk and Yugoslav Minister of Interior Gen. Alexander Rankovic discussing the "need for action" in such a putsch. Rankovic earlier was alleged to have crossed the border illegally for the secret meeting.

Miss Tarisznyas, like several other witnesses, was not accompanied by a police guard, indicating she is not under arrest.

Nemet said he relayed Russian military secrets to Mrazovic.

Nemet was assigned to Moscow in 1948 by former Lieutenant General Gyorgy Palffy, one of the defendants.

Lajos Bokor, brother-in-law of Rajk, and Oszeer Borszeki, a prewar police colonel, both said they recalled seeing Rajk sign an agreement to spy on underground Communist organization for the police 18 years ago.

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 20 (U.P.).—Peasants at Kelc in eastern Moravia, aroused when 50 Communist state police invaded their village and arrested the priest, gave battle and rescued him, a well-informed source said today.

The priest had been seized in reprisal for the murder of a Communist in a forest near the village, this source said.

This was the first report of violence in the bitter church-state struggle since Catholic farmers picked up their scythes and attacked state police in Slovakia last June. It came as:

1. A responsible source said the Communist regime has arrested more than 30 church leaders and more than 200 priests in Bohemia and Moravia alone. He said the state suspected them of belonging to a Catholic underground.

2. Unconfirmed reports circulated in Prague that hundreds of Communists, including some high in the party, have been arrested in recent weeks as possible "Tito" sympathizers.

The murder and subsequent riot in Moravia, the reliable source said, grew out of the betrayal of the regular Kelc priest, Father Mikula, by the church organist, a Communist.

A week later two men who claimed to be members of the secret police appeared in Kelc, asked the Communist to select another party member and help search the woods for a secret radio transmitter.

The organist, this source said, did not keep his rendezvous with the police, but sent his friend, who was found dead in the woods two days later. He had been shot.

Fifty police arrived at Kelc within hours and after they failed to find the murderers, arrested the substitute priest.

Describing the wholesale arrest of Catholic churchmen, the well-informed source said almost all members of the Capuchin Monastery at Fulnek, in Silesia, were seized.

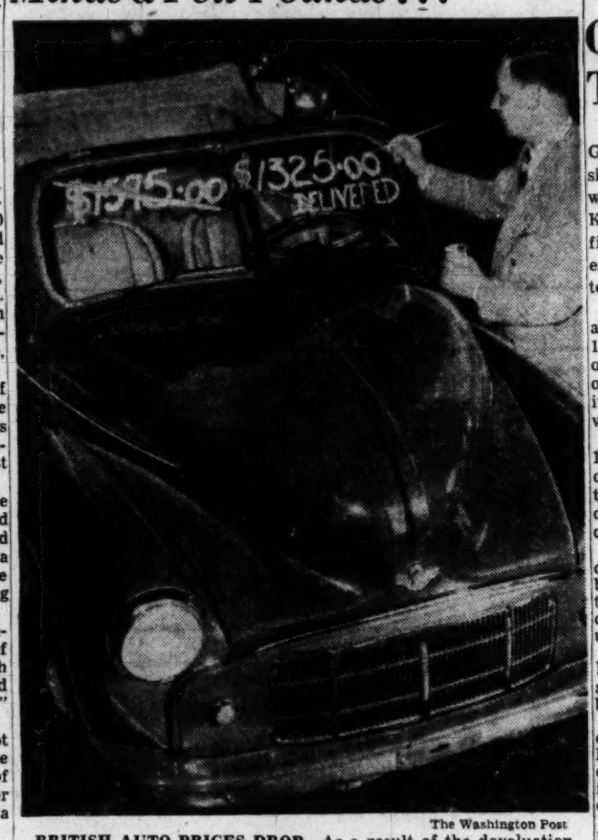

Reliable sources said the Catholic leaders arrested included:

Dr. Antonin Culik, counselor to Archbishop Josef Beran of Prague.

Jan Machae, Beran's special vicar in the Cheb region near the border of the United States zone of Germany.

Father Jaroslav Mikulasek, vicar of Olomouc Cathedral, seat of Archbishop Matocha, second to Beran in the Catholic hierarchy here.

World's Markets Run Frantic

fear that Churchill may demand a vote of censure. Government defeat on a motion of censure by tradition calls for a new general election.

While a frenzy seized traders in London's stock exchange and on South Africa's gold trading floor and uncertainty reigned in American commodity markets, these developments marked the devaluation scene:

Greece devalued the drachma to 15,000 to the dollar and 42,000 to the pound. The old value was 10,000 to the dollar, 32,000 to the pound.

The Netherlands announced her guilder will be just over 30 per cent cheaper in dollars. This reduction is about equal to Britain's. The new guilder is worth 26.32 cents as against the old value of 37.695 cents. Indonesian currency took the same dip.

The undersecretary of the Italian treasury indicated the lira will be devalued, but the government hopes it will not be more than 12 per cent.

Dr. Konrad Adenauer, chancellor of the new West German Republic, said the westmark, now pegged at 20 cents, will have to be devalued.

Chinese Communists at Shanghai revised downward the official exchange rate for the pound and raised the rate for the United States dollar. It was the fifth dollar increase this month. The new rate is 7250 Peoples (Communist) dollars to one pound in cash or 9350 to one pound remitted to Shanghai from abroad. The old rates were 7800 and 10,200.

The new United States dollar rates are 3400 and 3700, up from 3200 and 3500.

Pakistan's cabinet met for four hours, but was unable to come to a decision about devaluation. Pakistani banks remained closed.

Hong Kong Dollar Marked Down

Hongkong, Britain's Crown Colony, devalued its dollar proportionately to the British pound.

On the other hand, Brazil and Lebanon announced they are going to keep their money at the old dollar rate.

A new '49 gold rush—100 years after the California stampede—broke loose on the South African Stock Exchange at Johannesburg when the bell rang to open trade after an enforced holiday.

Brokers fought to work off a heavy accumulation of buying orders for gold mining shares from all over the world. The pandemonium overflowed into the streets. Before the rush was over, some favored issues showed increases upward of 15 shillings ($2.10).

The same one million ounces of South African gold that could be sold for 172,500,000 shillings before devaluation was now worth 250 million shillings and owners of gold mining shares stood to earn a big profit in shillings. However, the one million ounces was worth 35 million dollars both before and after devaluation.

London Market Goes Wild

London's stock market also went wild. Quotations on some gold shares were nearly triple the closing prices of last week before profit takers moved in. Oil, rubber and tin followed the same trend. Industrial shares changed hands in huge blocks. Government bonds whirled up and down dizzily, but finally slumped as much as 25 shillings (3.40) below Friday's close.

Italy's lira fluctuated grotesquely at Rome and Milan. First it dropped to 692 lire to the dollar, lowest in 2½ years, rebounded to as much as 645, then fell off again to about 675. Eyeing this speculation, Pietro Malvestiti, Undersecretary of the Treasury, indicated that devaluation is coming. Earlier Premier Alcide de Gasperi had said the government would try to hold the lira on a floor of 650 to the dollar.

France's franc behaved just about as expected. It was worth more pounds but fewer dollars than before devaluation. The dollar opened on the foreign market at 350 francs, just as the government hoped, compared to 330.80 at the close Friday.

For the second day commodity prices in United States markets sagged in terms of dollars, though these prices represented increases in terms of the devalued currencies. The New York stock market took one of its steepest dives of the year.

The Cairo government suspended sales of government-owned cotton to dollar and other hard currency areas until the shock is over. The Cairo cotton exchange, when it reopens tomorrow, will be allowed to operate as a free market to determine the natural price level.

The British Labor government's situation might prove serious because union labor has been smouldering in revolt for months against the government's determination to hold wages in line. The government has had to contend against numerous wildcat strikes for higher wages.

Last April the government secured the agreement of industry and labor to a policy of freezing wages, prices and profits. Now devaluation carries the spectre of higher prices, and labor is unhappy. Already the government has announced that a higher price for bread is to be expected because wheat must be bought with more expensive dollars.

On the other hand, leaders of industry have warned that a round of increased wages and higher production costs could nullify the advantage to be gained from devaluation.

Britain devalued the pound as a quick means of making her goods cheaper and more competitive in dollar markets.

Frank Byers, the Liberal Party chief whip, tonight asserted devaluation "will have a serious effect on the cost of living in this country and there is no use belittling it. Break is only one of the many items which will rise in price."

The incipient labor revolt was spearheaded by 100,000 London rail workers, who have voted to slow down the subway beginning at midnight tomorriw for a 10 shilling ($1.40) weekly pay raise.

Railway workers at Southampton's docks called off their slowdown there today, but a union official said they would reinstate it if London's rail workers carry out their threat.

British rail workers now get from 91 shillings, six pence ($12.81) a week to 138 shillings (19.32).

The Labor Government should have no trouble winning on a vote of censure if Labor members present a solid front. The danger, observers said, is of a rebellion among rank and file members of Parliament.

Some Labor members ignored a government three-line whip last May on the partition of Ireland bill. The government won by the comparatively narrow margin of 81 votes.

Prime Minister Attlee is expected to call a cabinet meeting for Thursday.

West German Government Takes Office

Bonn, Sept. 20 (U.P.).—Western Germany's first official government since the regime of Adolph Hitler was sworn in today and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer pledged it to fight incessantly for the return of eastern German territories ceded to Poland.

Adenauer, in an 85-minute inaugural speech after he and his 13 cabinet ministers took the oath of office, made a lengthy criticism of Soviet Russia, particularly for its manner of handling German war prisoners.

"We don't know where the 1,500,000 or 2,000,000 German prisoners of war are who were mentioned in Soviet army bulletins during the war," the 73-year-old chancellor said.

Adenauer said he exepcted early devaluation of the Deutschemark, but added that "we regret this action as there was no necessity to do so because of the stabilized situation in Germany."

He said that the change will have only a minor effect on prices and wages and that "there will be no social injustice."

The new cabinet, consisting of eight Christian Democrats, three Free Democrats and two members of the German Party, was sworn in before Erich Koehler, president of the Bundestag, or lower house.

The cabinet had been approved by President Theodor Heuss of the West German Republic earlier in the day.

Adenauer advocated an immediate end to plant dismantling, amnesty for persons convicted of crimes against the military government, increases in agricultural production to cut food imports, foreign investments in Germany, financial aid for Berlin, pensions for veterans, encouragement of scientific research, a high-powered housing program and stern prosecution of war criminals.

France Sees Trade War in Pound Slash

By William J. Humphreys

Paris, Sept. 20 (NYHT).—Finance Minister Maurice Petsche said today that the British pound sterling's devaluation from $4.03 to $2.80 was a "rate of commercial warfare."

His statement indicated the French government now considered Great Britain as challenging the continent with a solitary crusade to capture dollar and other markets with an unduly low pound.

The government, it was reported, had discussed "the unilateral British act" with Belgium, the Netherlands and Italy.

France and Italy, already partners in a treaty looking toward unification of their economies, would like the other two nations to join.

Meanwhile, the devalued franc appeared on the free or hard money market here at 350 to the dollar, the new rate fixed by an extraordinary session of the French cabinet last night. The ministers also fixed the pound at 980 francs, or down 10 percent from the former figure of 1096.

These emergency currency reforms, whose enactment had forced the closing down of stock markets and money trading yesterday, were received calmly on the reopened bourse. Shares hardly changed under the franc's devaluation.

Expected demands for an early meeting of parliament to debate the reforms appeared during the day. They came from the leader of the Communist Party in the national assembly, Jacques Duclos, and from Andre Jean Godin, a Galluist. Parliament now is scheduled to reconvene October 18.

One important matter, in confusion until tonight, became clear. That was the dollar-franc rate for the Marshall Plan counterpart fund. Under American aid, France has been depositing 272 francs for each dollar value received in a fund to be used for approved reconstruction.

The government now has made clear that the consolidated franc rate of 350 is to be employed.

Czech Woman Official Escapes, Heads to U. S.

London, Sept. 20 (U.P.).—The Free Czech Information Service announced here today that Mrs. Ruzens Pelantova, deputy mayor of Prague when the Communists staged their 1948 coup, has escaped from Czechoslovakia.

The announcement said she will leave for New York by air, where she is expected to inform United States officials on the latest events in Czechoslovakia.

Mrs. Pelantova, who is 63, studied at the University of Chicago in 1921 and has made several tours of the United States.

Romulo Heads U. N. Assembly

Romulo, dedicated to a "push-'em-up" style of getting business done, immediately convened the 59-nation committees of the Assembly to elect their chairmen.

Lester B. (Mike) Pearson, Canadian Foreign Minister, was elected chairman of the political committee, the most important of the group. Pearson was given 49 votes to 5 for Adolph Hofmeister, Czechoslovokia Ambassador to Paris Hofmeister was nominated by Poland and the five votes showed again the Yugoslavs were not agreeing in the election with the Soviet bloc.

Hernan Santa Cruz, veteran Chilean delegate, was chosen chairman of the Economic Committee, which will deal with proposals centering on President Truman's Point-Four plan for aid to underdeveloped countries. Santa Cruz received 51 ballots. The Soviet candidate, Kuzma Kisselev, Foreign Minister of White Russia, won five. Charles Malik of Lebanon, and Cyro de Freitas-Valle of Brazil got one each. One country abstained.

Carlos Eduardo Stolk of Venezuela was elected chairman of the Social Committee without opposition. The Soviet bloc seconded his nomination and put up no candidate.

The Trusteeship Committee elected Hermod Lannung of Denmark as its chairman. The vote was 50 for Lannung and 7 for Dmitri Z. Manuilsky, Foreign Minister of the Soviet Ukraine.

The delegates will get down to business Wednesday. Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson expects to speak around noon—early in the general declarations of national policy.

New General Assembly Head Well Known Here

Washington has come to know Brig. Gen. Carlos Pena Romulo, new president of the United Nations General Assembly, almost as well in recent years as his native Philippines.

Before he was named resident commissioner of the Philippine Commonwealth here in August, 1944, he had become familiar throughout this country as "the last man off Corregidor." His book, "I Saw the Fall of the Philippines," was a wartime best-seller.

Romulo, editor and publisher of the Philippine Herald in Manila and head of a chain of smaller papers, became press aide to Gen. Douglas MacArthur after the Japanese attacked. He escaped to the United States after his country fell but later went to Australia to serve again with MacArthur.

He has been the republic's delegate to the U. N. ever since Philippine independence was achieved.

Romulo first came to the United States 30 years ago as a Columbia University student. He returned to Manila as a professor of English at the University of the Philippines.

A few years later, in 1922, he became a member of the Philippine Independence Mission and began paying visits to this country on independence affairs.

Pneumonia Brings Down Boys Club Fund Perch Sitter

A case of pneumonia brought Fred Nalley down from his 30-foot perch above the Trinidad Boys Club yesterday—$24,700 short of the $25,000 fund he had hoped to raise for the club.

Nalley, who finished 12 days on the four-foot square platform, caught a severe cold following Sunday's wind and rainstorm. Despite his own medication, he continued to get worse. Yesterday his physician insisted he come down.

Discouraged by the meager public response to his appeal, Nalley has no plans for continuing his stunt, he said. Members of the club, however, will continue their house-to-house funds canvass.

Gen. Parker Assumes Chief Chaplain's Duty

Maj. Gen. Roy H. Parker yesterday assumed his duties as chief of Army chaplains. He has been serving as supervisory chaplain for the Far East Command in Japan.

General Parker is Baptist and a native of Hickory, Mo. He joined the Army as a chaplain in 1918 and has served at many posts in this country and overseas.

Canadian Labor Group Expels Seamen's Union

Calgary, Alberta, Sept. 20 (U.P.).—Canada's Trades and Labor Congress today expelled the left-wing Canadian Seamen's Union by a vote of 702 to 77.

The expulsion was punishment for the CSU's strike against all East Coast Canadian shipping, which had repercussions throughout the British Empire when dockworkers refused to cross CSU Picket lines.

Hard Coal Backlog Nearly Exhausted

Exhaustion of anthracite supplies by the end of the week was predicted by mine operators yesterday, as 480,000 United Mine Workers marked the second day of their "no pensions, no work" walkout.

Some 80,000 hard coal miners of eastern Pennsylvania stayed away from their pits in a sympathy strike against the suspension of pension and welfare fund payments to the soft coal miners.

The anthracite diggers' own welfare fund is still active, but this fund, too, will suspend payments at the end of the month.

Both funds were ordered temporarily frozen to prevent them from going into the red.

Ralph E. Taggart, of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Co., a leading spokesman for the anthracite operators, yesterday wired John L. Lewis, president of the UMW, urging John L. to use his "best efforts" to get the men back to work. Taggart emphasized that the hard coal producers at no time have failed to pay their 20-cents-a-ton contribution to the welfare fund—unlike certain of the Southern soft coal operators who have "struck" against further payments until reaching a new work contract with the UMW. The old contract expired July 1.

Lewis made no immediate reply to Taggart. Indeed, Lewis has been maintaining a mysterious, and most un-Lewis-like, silence on the entire subject. Last week he twice threatened the soft coal operators with a strike unless they paid up what he said they owed the welfare fund. But since issuing the threats, he has said nothing.

Other officials of the Philadelphia & Reading Co. yesterday forecast that the above-ground supply on anthracite might be exhausted by the end of this week, if the miners don't end their "spontaneous strike."

Meanwhile, the coal-carrying railroads ordered 30,000 employes laid off up to yesterday as a result of the miners' walkout, with indications that other rail workers would also be furloughed for the duration of the strike.

Biggest layoff, of 15,000 employes, was made by the Pennsylvania R. R. Others were: Chesapeak & Ohio, 6250; Baltimore & Ohio, 3758; Reading, 1000; Virginian, 1600; Norfolk & Western, 1650. Furloughs were put into effect, or scheduled, by Illinois Central, New York Central, New Jersey Central.

John L. Lewis was generally blamed by coal operators for the walkout, even though officially he hasn't said a word on the subject. J. V. Sullivan, secretary of the West Virginia Coal Association, charged that "it is generally known that representatives of Lewis have been in the mining districts for a week advising local unions." George H. Love, head of the Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co., dubbed the work stoppage "another Lewis strike."

There were no reports of violence yesterday. Two men in Knox County, Ky., told authorities they were fired upon Monday after working their strip mine, and were forced to abandon their loaded truck just before it toppled over a mountainside.

Lewis may have something to say about the general walkout when he meets today with the Northern operators at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., to renew discussions over a new contract.

Miners Won't Bargain Until Funds Are Paid

Bluefield, W. Va., Sept. 20 (AP). John L. Lewis' union said bluntly today that it will not bargain further on a new wage contract with Southern soft coal operators until past-due payments are made to the miners' welfare and pension fund.

United Mine Workers Secretary-Treasurer John Owens, who heads Lewis' bargaining team in Southern contract talks here, disclosed the ultimatum at a press conference called after today's 2½-hour session.

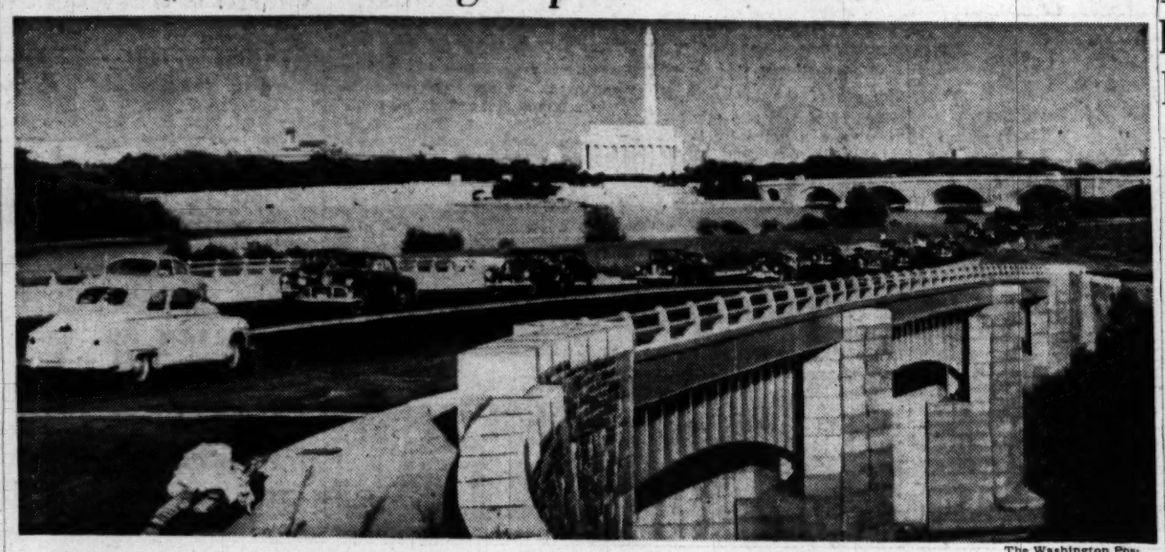

Photoengravers On N. Y. Papers to Skip Pay Hike Bid

New York, Sept. 20 (AP).—Five hundred AFL photoengravers on New York City newspapers have decided not to invoke a wage reopening clause in their contract in an effort to get a fourth-round wage increase.

William Mapel, vice chairman of the Publishers Association of New York City, said the decision was "a step forward in stable labor relations on New York newspapers."

The present contract provides wages between $106 and $117 for a 36½-hour week.

Boundary Channel Bridge Opens to Traffic . . .

The Washington Post

VIRGINIA DRIVERS' DELIGHT—After six years of effort, the $500,000 bridge across Boundary Channel is complete and open to automobile traffic. It replaces the "temporary" wooden span which, since 1943, has borne the flow of 18,000 cars daily. The new bridge will eliminate the bottleneck the old span created in three-lane Lee blvd.

Ford Pension Offer Reported In Line With Steel Board Plan

Detroit, Sept. 20 (AP).—A CIO-United Automobile Workers source said tonight the Ford Motor Co. has submitted an offer in the current contract negotiations in line with the President's steel fact-finding board recommendation on pensions.

The union source said the Ford proposal would give pensions of $50 a month or more at the age of 68 exclusive of Social Security benefits and without employe contribution. The union source estimated the value of the offer at about 8¾ cents an hour.

An insurance plan to which the company contributes an estimated 1¾ cents an hour additionally already is in effect at Ford.

Thus the total of the two plans would be worth just about the 10-cent "package" recommended by the steel panel.

The UAW reportedly is holding out for either a better pension offer or more in the form of health insurance.

If Ford follows the steel board recommendation it would be the first large company to do so.

Thus far, United States Steel Corp., the leader of that industry has refused. A national steel strike is set for 12:01 a. m. Sunday. Other heavy industries also have refused to go along.

Tropical Gulf Storm Gains in Strength

New Orleans, Sept. 20 (U.P.).—A tropical storm picked up force in the Gulf of Mexico tonight about 300 miles southwest of New Orleans.

An advisory said the highest wind velocity recorded thus far was 30 to 40 miles an hour. Small craft on the Texas and Louisiana coasts were warned to stay in port.

Tuck Promises To 'Keep Heat' In Coal Tieup

Richmond, Va., Sept. 20 (AP).—With an eye on the Nation's coal walkout, Governor Tuck last night promised to "keep the heat on in Virginia as long as I am able."

The Governor made his promise to keep the citizens warm as the State's 14,000 unionized soft coal miners completed the opening day of a "no pension, no work" tieup and officials of three coal-carrying railroads said 1500 to 2000 workers would be furloughed this week.

"I intend to leave the State Capitol in January," Tuck declared, "and I don't intend to leave it cold."

He referred to the design of "a certain very powerful labor tycoon" to decrease above-ground reserves of coal prior to bargaining sessions on a new coal contract.

"If we still have the power, and I think we have, we will keep our people from being cold," the Governor declared.

Tuck spoke at a dinner meeting of the Sales Executives Club of Richmond at which Senator Harry F. Byrd was the principal speaker. Tuck got off on the coal strike siding while introducing the Senator.

"I will continue to enforce the laws of Virginia during the next four months," he said. "There may be mollycoddling of these labor leaders in Washington, but there will be no mollycoddling in Virginia."

It was indicated here that the miners who have stopped work will not be eligible for unemployment compensation, but the Railroad Retirement Board was expecting a flood of applications from rail workers who are to be laid off as a result.

An official of the State Unemployment Compensation Commission said that in a work stoppage directly caused by a labor dispute no compensation has ever been paid, nor does the law permit it.

No applications have been received, he said, so no more formal ruling has been made.

Roanoke to Run Out Of Coal by Weekend

Roanoke, Va., Sept. 20 (AP).—Roanoke coal stocks will be gone by the end of the week, dealers said today.

Some free-burning and medium to high volatile is still in the yards. But high-grade Pocahontas coals are gone now.

Virginia Bridge Co. reported "plenty of coal to keep us running quite awhile." The Norfolk & Western Railway hedged its answer, saying how long stocks last depends on how much is used. But it is believed the N. & W. has enough coal to keep running for some time.

Per Diem Board Place Asked By AFL Government Workers

Representatives of the American Federation of Government Employes, AFL, yesterday asked the Commissioners for employe representation on the Per Diem Wage Board.

The group, headed by J. G. Yaden, national president of the A.F.G.E., also urged that the board be given greater autonomy in determining per diem wage scales.

Yaden, who appeared before the Commissioners, said that three of the seven board members should be representatives of labor. At present they are appointed on recommendation of District department heads.

newspapermen: "The fact that we are meeting tomorrow would seem to indicate we're getting somewhere." But neither he nor any other member of management offered a tagible clew that something new would be added to today's discussions.

In the field, on the other hand, management and union alike were taking precautions preparatory to the scheduled walkout.

Bethlehem Cuts Production

At Buffalo, N. Y., Bethlehem Steel slashed production by 25 percent at its big Lackawanna plant in anticipation of the strike. Production was halted on seven of its 27 active open-hearth furnaces and one of its five blast furnaces was shut down.

At Pittsburgh, Local 1843, of the CIO Steelworkers, notified Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. to have its Second Avenue and Hazelwood Works in that city "inoperative and nonproductive" by 12:01 a. m. Sunday.

At the White House, Charles G. Ross, the President's press secretary, told reporters yesterday that Mr. Truman has "nothing in the works" to offer as a new formula for settling the steel dispute. "Nothing is in sight," Ross said. He added that the comment also applied to the current coal walkout.

13½-cent increase offered here and returned to work. But union spokesmen declared that the Baltimore boost was tacked on to a wage rate of $1.21½, 6½ cents higher than the $1.15 rate here.

Gradeck said that agreements had been reached with virtually all of the approximately 20 other trucking outfits here who are not members of the trucking association.

Joseph P. McGarraghy, attorney for the association, expressed fears last night that the strike, if prolonged, would have grave effects on business here.

Citing "past experience" in the truck strike of 1945, McGarraghy declared that the struck companies handle "a large portion" of the business out of railroad terminals including food and other perishables.

He said the 10 members of the associations handle roughly half of the trucking business in Washington.

Fahy Resigns As Arbitrator On Transit Pay

Resignation of Charles Fahy, former solicitor general, as chairman of the arbitration board in the Capital Transit wage dispute, may delay hearings scheduled to start October 3.

Fahy withdrew as a result of his recent appointment as an alternate to the United Nations General Assembly.

It is expected that the company and the union, the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes, Division 689, will ask the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service to propose a panel of names from which the replacement for Fahy would be chosen for the five-member board. Then the board would have to meet again to select one of their number as chairman.

NMU Votes to Bar Reds in Future

New York, Sept. 20 (AP).—The CIO National Maritime Union, by a narrow margin, today voted in convention to bar Communists from future membership.

But the convention turned down a proposal to expel present members who are Communists, Fascists or Nazis.

The vote to ban Communists was 405 to 198, three more than the required two thirds.

The ban is not effective unless approved by a membership vote after the convention.

It climaxed a week of debate at the seventh biennial convention of the union, which claims 40,000 members among East and Gulf Coast seamen.

The Communist ban, adopted as a constitutional amendment, also closes the union ranks to Nazis and Fascists.

Union President Joseph Curran demanded adoption of the measure, charging that a Communist minority is trying to wreck the NMU.

Charles Keith, leader of an anti-Curran faction, opposed it. Keith declared it would give officers the power to kick out any members they chose.

Inner Mongolia Scene of Revolt

OUTBREAK REPORTED—Map locates Suiyuan province (A) of Inner Mongolia, where a revolt against Nationalist rule broke out, according to reports from Canton. Shaded area is Communist controlled. Headquarters for Nationalist forces are in Canton and Formosa

Revolt Stirs In Mongolia

Canton, Sept. 20 (AP).—A revolt against Nationalist rule has broken out in the Inner Mongolian province of Suiyuan bordering the Russian-dominated Mongolian Peoples Republic, reports reaching here said today.

(The Chinese Communist radio said the whole province had surrendered.)

One report said the revolt was led by Gen. Tung Chi-wu, who commands an estimated 100,000 troops. This is quite plausible.

Last month the Communists sent Tung's former boss, Gen. Fu Tso-yi, to western Suiyuan to induce him to come over to the Reds. The area held by Tung served as a buffer between the Communists in North China and Nationalist holdings in the far northwest.

General Fu, who surrendered Peiping to the Communists, was treated as an honored guest.

UEW Leftists Expected To Keep Union Control

Cleveland, Sept. 20 (AP).—A major test of delegate strength in the CIO United Electrical Workers convention today indicated the union's left wing administration will be returned to power Wednesday.

By a vote of 2376 to 1464½ leftist forces adopted by roll call a resolution dealing with collective bargaining policies. The vote followed three hours of hectic debate which at times threatened to disrupt the convention.

Albert J. Fitzgerald, president since 1941, hailed the vote as a clear indication that he and his left-wing supporters would win the election Wednesday.

Right-wing groups headed by James B. Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer, prepared to do considerable overnight campaigning in an effort to gain additional support for rightist condidates. It appeared unlikely that the Carey faction can muster enough additional votes to change the result indicated in today's test of strength, however.

The convention voted also to comply with the Taft-Hartley Act. The union directed its general and local officers to file non-Communist affidavits and statements as provided by law. The UEW is one of the few major unions not in compliance with the act.

Police Chief's Son, 2 Others Indicted in Peekskill Riot

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 20 (U.P.).—The son of the Peekskill, N. Y., police chief and two other young men were indicted by the Westchester County grand jury today in connection with the riot at singer Paul Robeson's September 4 concert near Peekskill.

Joseph Lillis, jr., 25, son of the police chief, was indicted for malicious mischief. He was accused of stoning an automobile.

William Williams, 20, of Peekskill, was indicted for felonious mischief. He and three others, whose names were not revealed because they were under 19, were arrested for overturning an automobile.

Robert Lent, of Shrub Oak, was indicted under the Sullivan Law. He was charged with carrying a large knife.

Meanwhile, Westchester County District Attorney George M. Fanelli announced that the October session of the grand jury would begin a "complete, exhaustive study" of the rioting. Fanelli said he personally would present evidence to the grand jury, which is scheduled to begin its session October 3. Fanelli said police, Robeson adherents, anti-Robesonites and nonpartisan witnesses would be called.

Hard-Riding Cowboy Thrown by Helicopter

Vernon, Tex., Sept. 20 (AP).—A hard-riding ranch foreman was injured while herding cattle yesterday. His helicopter crashed.

Tony Hazelwood of the Waggoner Ranch, who has rounded up many a stray on horseback, was using the helicopter to haze cattle out of heavy brush.

Suddenly the craft plummeted 50 feet to earth. Two other men in the helicopter weren't hurt. Hazelwood received three broken ribs and face cuts.

GOP to Undertake Farm Riddle Study

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The Republican Party is going to tackle one of the Nation's most confused issues, in Sioux City, Iowa, this week. It is going to seek an answer to the farm problem.

Republican leaders from 19 States will attend. Part of the sessions will be conducted with witnesses as at congressional hearings.

Although set up to emphasize the unity that prevails in Republican ranks the conference already gives promise of renewing old intra-party rows. The so-called progressive wing in Iowa is already at the throat of the old-timers, symbolized by Iowa's National Committeeman and former national chairman, Harrison E. Spangler.

Today will be a victorious homecoming for National Chairman Guy G. Gabrielson, arranged by Spangler. Gabrielson, New Jersey lawyer and industrialist, recently won a hard battle for his post, supported by Spangler.

Native Son

Gabrielson was born at Sioux Rapids, a small town not far from Sioux City, 58 years ago. A welcome at the old home has been arranged for today.

The celebration will include a visit to the high school where he was graduated in 1909, as well as to his parents' graves.

Earlier Gabrielson will visit Iowa City where he graduated from the State University in 1915.

Today's affair will include an evening of speech-making and band music on Main Street. At luncheon he and Mrs. Gabrielson will be guests at Webb, Iowa, nearby, Mrs. Gabrielson's schoolgirl home.

Gabrielson has been Spangler's guest at Cedar Rapids since Monday. Spangler will go with him to both Sioux Rapids and Sioux City.

Iowa Republican peacemakers are fearful that the visit at Cedar Rapids may stir up the party row that has raged since June. Immediately after Gabrielson's election a majority of the GOP State Committee met and demanded Spangler's resignation. They claimed his activities in Gabrielson's victory were not in accord with Iowa progressive Republican feeling. Spangler ignored their request.

Wherry to Speak

On the Sioux City program will be Senators Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.), Karl E. Mundt (S. Dak.), Hugh Butler (Nebr.), Milton R. Young (N. Dak.), and Representatives August H. Andersen (Minn.), Charles B. Hoeven (Iowa) and Clifford R. Hope (Kans). More than 30 other members of Congress already have indicated they will attend.

Attracting much attention is the attitude of the farm organizations. At the Democratic farm pow-wow at Des Moines in June, where the Brannan Plan was presented to the farm public, the American Farm Bureau Federation and the National Grange were conspicuous by their absence.

However, at this Republican meeting all are taking active part. Among these is Albert S. Goss, master of the Grange, who completely ignored the Democratic meeting, and John H. Davis of the National Council of Farm Cooperatives. National President Allan Kline of the Farm Bureau is in Europe, but will be represented by R. E. Short, vice president. Kline openly snubbed the Democratic meeting. At its beginning he was in South Dakota. Instead of going the short distance to Des Moines, he returned to Washington.

The National Farmers Union, which took part in the June meeting, also will be represented at the Republican affair, with Benton J. Strong of its legislative committee, on the program.

Four Programs

Right now there are four farm programs in varying stages of development. They include:

1. The Aiken plan, or Title II of the Agriculture Act of 1948. Although it has been attacked from all angles, it has a good opportunity of becoming the law on January 1. The Aiken Act provides a new parity formula, slightly lower than the present antiquated one, with the last 10 years used in figuring price averages instead of 1909-14 as at present. It also calls for price supports on a sliding scale of 60 to 90 per cent, depending on supply, with supports mandatory for eight "basic" crops.

2. The Anderson Plan, a compromise of the Aiken Plan. It increases the Aiken parity formula about 6 per cent by figuring into parity the costs of hired farm labor; support prices on a sliding scale of 75 to 90 per cent of parity, depending on supply, with supports mandatory for 12 crops.

3. The Brannan Plan already rejected by the House on even a trial run basis. It would allow food prices to fall to a supply and demand level, with the Government making up the difference to farmers by production payments. It would provide a new support standard based on income, price support at 100 per cent of parity, but would restrict benefits only to family size farms.

4. The Gore Plan, passed by the House. This is the most liberal plan, so far as the farmers are concerned, even given a chance of becoming a law. It would support prices of 12 commodities at 90 per cent of parity, and of 10 others at 60 to 90 per cent.

WOMEN AT THE PRESS CLUB BAR—Some of the men were moaning at this bar last night because women were there. It was the first time ladies were admitted to the bacchanalian precincts of the National Press Club—on the occasion of the dedication of the new bar. Some 250 women enjoyed the decor and refreshments. They will not be admitted again

Split Between School Aid, Welfare Urged

New York, Sept. 20 (AP).—A plan to break the deadlock in Congress over Federal aid to education was proposed today by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

The Council represents 27 Protestant and orthodox faiths with a membership of 29 million.

Under the Council's plan, direct aid to schools and the supplying of welfare services would be handled as separate issues, each to be decided on its own merits.

"We urge that prompt provision be made for Federal aid for the maintenance of public schools," the Council's executive committee said in the resolution announcing the plan.

Race Provision Cited

It added that this should be done "with assurance that in its administration there should be no discrimination on account of race."

On the other hand, the Council suggested that welfare services for school children receive open-minded consideration from Congress, and such services should be handled by a public agency other than the schools.

School and bills in Congress have been held up since the beginning of the session last January—mostly over the issue of aid to parochial schools.

Members opposing Federal transportation and welfare funds for parochial schools say it would violate the separation of church and state called for in the Constitution. Their opponents claim that not to supply the funds would be discriminating against children.

Argument Resulted

One result of the argument was a public controversy between Cardinal Spellman, the Roman Catholic Archbishop of New York, and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Roosevelt urged separation of the two types of schools when it came to Federal grants, and was attacked by the Cardinal for making statements he said were "unworthy of an American mother." He said parochial schools should share in the funds.

The two later reached a reconciliation, and Mrs. Roosevelt suggested the solution might be to separate direct school aid from the related welfare services.

The Council said that by separating the two types of service "necessary assistance can be given to education without making it the object of sectarian controversy, or compromising the principle of separation of church and state, for which the council has always stood."

It said the deadlock is at the expense of children and "ought not to be tolerated."

Speed-Up Sought in Congress

military, Government executives, revision of the classification act, postal employes and Government disability compensation. Lucas said a pay raise for some legislative employes may be tied to one of the bills.

Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.) objected to a vote on any of the pay bills before Monday but Lucas insisted on the speed-up.

He said he plans on Monday to call up either the Senate-compromised farm bill or a motion to shake loose from the Judiciary Committee the stalemated displaced persons bill.

House leaders have announced no specific program for today, but wired members it was "important" they be present.

Speaker Rayburn was believed anxious to speed to conference three appropriation bills and some major legislation passed by the Senate while the House was in recess, and wanted to be sure of a quorum to do business.

Only 13 members atended a 3-minute token session of the House yesterday.

After speeding bills to conference (if it gets that quorum), the House may recess overnight in tribute to the late Representative Richard J. Welch (R., Calif.).

House Republican Leader Joseph W. Marin, jr., (Mass.), returned to the Capitol yesterday. Martin told newsmen he was in "no hurry" to adjourn. He said he had not been advised what the Democratic leadership program will be.

Board Schedules Tests to Pick 3 For West Point

Competitive examinations will be given by the Board of Education to fill three appointments available to District residents at West Point, the Commissioners said yesterday.

The tests will be given the week of January 9 for the Military Academy term beginning July 1.

Applicants must be 17 and not over 22 when admitted to the Point. An exception is made for men who served a year or more in the armed forces. The age limit for them is 24. Applications will be received by G. M. Thornett, secretary to the Board of Commissioners, at the District Building.

Lady in Distress

Toronto Ontario, Sept. 20 (U.P.). A 29-year-old woman was arrested today on a drunken driving charge. Police said she was driving her car with a man sitting on her knee.

Senate Group Sets Thursday For Hearing on Judge Minton

The Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday ordered a public hearing next Tuesday on the appointment of Judge Sherman Minton to the Supreme Court.

Members decided, at a closed session, to listen then to any witnesses who wish to protest President Truman's selection of Minton to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Wiley B. Rutledge.

There was no talk of calling Minton himself to testify, members said. Ordinarily, Supreme Court nominees are not asked to appear.

Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.), a committee member, said he wants full hearings on the nomination.

Ferguson told reporters, before the first committee meeting to consider the nomination, that he doesn't know of any current opposition to Minton's elevation.

"But I think we should have full hearings to develop information about Minton's legal ability and about his background," the Michigan Senator said. "I don't know the man nor much about him."

Minton, former Indiana Senator, is now a Federal judge in Chicago.

Leftist Editor Sent To Prison in Japan

Tokyo, Sept. 20 (U.P.).—Shichiro Morioka, chief editor of the leftist Rengo News Agency, was sentenced to two years at hard labor today for printing dispatches "falsely and destructively critical" of the occupation powers.

Three stories circulated by the Rengo agency criticized American occupation in Japan, British rule in Malaya and civil liberties in the United States.

New Fuels to Sustain Supersonic Flights

By James J. Strebig

Cleveland, Sept. 20 (AP).—Government experts said today they are experimenting with fuels two and a half times mightier than commonly used rocket fuels and are studying even mightier formulas.

This was disclosed at the Nation's chief center of aircraft propulsion research, the 50-million-dollar National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics laboratory, during its third annual inspection by leaders from all branches of aviation.

The statement followed a prediction that "sustained" supersonic flight speeds—limited thus far to a matter of seconds—is near.

How near and for how long such flight might be was not said.

Supersonic means faster than sound, which varies its speed with temperature from about 800 miles an hour on a hot day near the ground to 650 mph. in the frigid stratosphere.

Rocket fuel is extremely important in high speed flight for two main reasons: (1) a rocket engine can produce more power for size and weight than any other, and (2) it is the only engine that operates at altitudes where the atmosphere does not have enough oxygen to supply other engine types.

A rocket carries its own oxygen, which makes the weight of its fuel tremendous. The X-1, a rocket research plane used by the Air Force and the NACA, can burn its 8000 pounds of fuel in 2½ minutes on flights that approach 1000 miles per hour for brief periods.

But a jet fighter like the Air Force F-86 Sabre, taking its oxygen from the air, can run at full power for about an hour on the same weight of fuel. However, it sucks in around 55 times that much air by weight to burn the fuel and cool the engine.

For its weight, the most powerful rocket fuel disclosed by the NACA is hydrogen-fluorine. Not far behind it in push for weight is hydrogen-oxygen. Commonly used liquid rocket fuels are alcohol-oxygen and gasoline acid.

Certain rocket engines, such as those used for takoff assist or momentary power bursts in flight, use dry propellents. Their bulk limits their use to short term needs, measured in seconds.

Missiles such as the V-2 and Viking types used for upper air research are powered for only a short time, usually less than a minute, but they burn tons of fuel. They attain such speeds, however, that they can go a considerable distance through the thin atmosphere.

One problem NACA experts are concerned with now is the starting of rocket engines at high altitude. The X-1 engines—it has four which can be used separately or together—are started after the plane is dropped from a B-29 bomber at 25,000 feet or higher.

Without referring to any X-1 experience, the NACA said rocket fuels might refuse to ignite in the cold stratosphere or might ignite in an explosive fashion that would destroy the engine.

Among solutions sought for that danger is a means of keeping the engine and fuel warm enough to insure safe starting, and using an additional chemical to make the fuel ignite properly in extreme cold.

Air Force Jet Makes 700 Miles Per Hour

El Toro Marine Air Base, Calif., Sept. 20 (AP).—Lieut. Col. Marion E. Carl, 32, former world air speed record holder, flew an Air Force F-86 Sabre at 700 miles an hour last week, public information officers disclosed today.

It was while Colonel Carl was visiting Wright-Patterson Air Force Base at Dayton, Ohio, that he made the flight, the Marine announcement said.

He took the jet fighter to 47,000 feet, started downward and reached 700 miles an hour, the statement added. Later he said the speed was "easily attained."

The world record is 670.981 miles an hour, set by Air Force Maj. Richard L. Johnson September 18, 1948, in an F-86 at Muroc Air Base, Calif. This was in level flight, four passes over a three-kilometer course.

the Canadians by C. D. Howe, Minister of Trade.

A communique said only that representatives of three nations met "to begin exploration of certain basic questions underlying the determination of future relationships among the United States, the United Kingdom and Canada in the field of atomic energy."

Although the British have made no formal complaint, they are known to feel that the United States has been "sticky" in even the limited amount of cooperation permitted by the McMahon Act.

A temporary agreement made hurriedly in January, 1948, and informally approved by the Joint Congressional Committee, marked out nine types of atomic information which could be exchanged with the British and Canadians. But nothing concerning atomic weapons can be discussed with them.

American officials have already made it clear to the Joint Congressional Committee that the ban on information works both ways, and has bomeranged on the United States, which originally imposed it.

For example, one American spokesman said yesterday, the United States would like "very much" to regain the services of some 20 British scientists who cooperated in the work of producing the first atomic bomb at Los Alamos, N. Mex., during the war. But the McMahon Act, with its bristling ban on information, makes it impossible.

As for access to uranium, the United States has been getting a large proportion of its supplies from the Belgian Congo under a secret wartime agreement, publicly disclosed by Premier Paul-Henri Spaak in Brussels in 1947.

Assured of Congo Supply

This agreement assured the United States and Britain of all available Congo supplies, and averted the danger that third parties might get some of the uranium. It did not allocate specific shares between the United States and Britain, an informed American source said yesterday.

But Britain, he said, would have the moral right under the agreement to claim a fifty-fifty share. He added that expiry of the Congo agreement was not imminent; that there was no problem of cancellation "now or in the approximate future;" and that present arrangements with the Belgians were satisfactory.

The question facing the present negotiators, this spokesman said, "is not of wanting more or less, but whether we shall take a new look at the problem, and what, in the light of our plans, would be a sensible allocation of raw materials. The first thing for us is to decide what makes sense for us to do, and then to see whether we can do it."

Debate Opens On Arms Bill

regarded both amendments as "strong."

Driving for early action, Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) asked unanimous consent of the Senate to vote at 3 p. m. Thursday.

He was temporarily blocked by Senator William Langer (R., N. Dak.) who asked Lucas to restate his request today.

Senator Wherry then proposed a 6 p. m. Thursday vote and a further agreement not to vote on military and government pay legislation before Monday. Several GOP Senators are attending a Midwest Republican farm conference in Sioux City, Iowa, Friday and Saturday.

Lucas accused Wherry of attempting to "bludgeon" the second agreement on the pay vote. Wherry said Lucas may find it necessary "to get both agreements in order to get one."

Lucas called off a scheduled night session when debate lagged and the Senate ran shy of speakers.

Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.), chairman of the Joint Congressional Atomic Committee, took the floor in support of the bill just before the recess.

McMahon called the arms aid program "a further obstacle in the path of any would-be aggressor" but added: "The most solid physical obstacle in my opinion is still the atomic inventory—our weapons stockpile."

McMahon described our exclusive possession of the atomic bomb as "transitory," however, and told the Senate:

"Our atomic pillar of peace will itself require strengthened foundations that can only be fashioned if we act now in concert with our allies overseas."

Leading off for the bill, Senator Vandenberg lined up solidly behind pleas made Monday by Senators Tom Connally (D., Tex.) and Millard E. Tydings D., Md.), for passage of the bill intact.

Stressing Article V of the North Atlantic Defense Treaty, Vandenberg said Congress can't escape its fundamental obligation to regard an attack on any one of the treaty signers as an attack upon all.

He said he stands now precisely where he stood in July when the Senate ratified the Atlantic Pact, and predicted the arms bill will pass by about the same vote (82 to 13).

All concede the bill will be passed finally by a large majority—the only question troubling Administration leaders is whether any of the amendments limiting the program will be close or even carry.

Answering critics of the bill, Vandenberg said its only purpose is to make more efficient the existing military forces of the treaty nations.

"It does not involve an arms race in any phase," Vandenberg said. "It cannot be deemed to contemplate turning Europe into an armed camp, or American troops in Europe."

He told Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.) that the State and Defense Departments furnished detailed justification of figures carried in the bill, though all of the details could not be made public.

Vandenberg, who had a big hand in drafting the bill, said the Administration was forced to withdraw its first draft of it because it virtually gave the President "war lord power."

In addition, he said, the first bill left the arms programs entirely independent of the Atlantic treaty.

The committee bill, in contrast, he said eliminated this blank check power grant and specifically ties the program into an integrated defense under the Atlantic Pact.

Do You Want Your A&P Put Out Of Business?

Last Thursday in New York, the anti-trust lawyers from Washington filed a suit to put A&P out of business.

They asked the court to order us to get rid of most of our stores and also the manufacturing facilities which supply you with A&P coffee, Ann Page products, Jane Parker baked goods, and other quality items we produce.

This would mean higher food prices for you. It would mean less food on every dinner table and fewer dollars in every pay envelope.

It would mean the end of A&P as you know it.

This poses a basic question for the American people: Do they want to continue to enjoy lower prices and better living? Or do they want to break up A&P and pay higher prices, and have lower living standards?

What do you want?

Why Destroy A&P?

This suit was brought under the anti-trust laws. These are good laws. They were passed about fifty years ago to prevent any company, or any group of companies, from getting a monopoly in a field and then raising prices to the public.

A&P has never done any of these things.

Nobody has ever shown that we have anything even approaching a monopoly of the food business anywhere. As every housewife knows, the retail grocery business is the most competitive in the country and we do only a small part of it.

Nobody has ever said we charged too high prices — just the opposite. This whole attack rises out of the fact that we sell good food too cheap. We would not have had any of this trouble if, instead of lowering prices, we had raised them and pocketed the difference.

Nobody has ever said that our profit rate was too high. During the past five years our net profit, after taxes, has averaged about 1½c on every dollar of sales, which is less than almost any other business you can think of.

The American people have shown that they like our low-price policy by coming to our stores to do their shopping. If A&P is big, it is because the American people, by their patronage, have made it big.

Obviously, it is the theory of the anti-trust lawyers that the people have no right to patronize a company, if their patronage will make that company grow; and that any big business must be destroyed simply because it is big, and even if the public gets hurt in the process.

Do You Want Higher Prices?

There is much more involved in this case than the future of A&P. The entire American system of efficient, low-cost, low-profit distribution which we pioneered, will face destruction and the public will suffer.

A&P was the first chain store in this country. For more than ninety years we have tried to build a sound business on the simple formula the founder gave us: "Give the people the most good food you can for their money." Year after year we have tried to do a better job, make our business more efficient, and pass the savings on to the consumer in the form of lower prices.

Our efforts along these lines have led other grocers to keep their costs and profits down.

In the old days before A&P, food that cost the grocer 50¢, often sold as high as $1.00 at retail.

Today, food that costs the grocer 50¢ generally sells to the public at less than 60¢.

The methods we pioneered have been adopted not only by other grocers, but by merchants in other lines. There are today literally hundreds of chain stores, voluntary groups and individual merchants operating with the same methods and in the same pattern here under attack.

If the anti-trust lawyers succeed in destroying A&P, the way will be clear for the destruction of every other efficient large-scale distributor.

Who Will Be Hurt?

There has never been any question in our mind that it is good business and good citizenship to sell good food as cheaply as possible. As Fortune Magazine said about A&P some time ago, "It is firmly attached to the one great principle — the selling of more for less — that has made the desert bloom and the nation wax great."

We sincerely believe that we have helped the American people eat better and live better.

We believe that the hundreds of thousands of farmers and manufacturers who have voluntarily sought our business have profited by our fast, low-cost distribution of their products.

We know that our 110,000 loyal employees enjoy today, as they always have, the highest wages, shortest hours and best working conditions generally prevailing in the retail food industry; and that these men and women have found in A&P good opportunities for security and progress.

We know that thousands of businessmen — the landlords who rent us our stores, the haulers who operate our trucks, the people who supply us with goods and services — have a big stake in our operations.

Obviously, all these people will suffer if this company is put out of business.

What Shall We Do?

We admit that the interests of the owners of A&P are of little importance.

Frankly, they could make an enormous amount of money by breaking up A&P, as the anti-trust lawyers wish, and selling off the parts.

But is this what the American people want? Do they agree with the anti-trust lawyers that our food prices are too low, and that we should be put out of the picture so other grocers can charge more?

Frankly, if this were the case, we would not want to continue in business.

But we seriously doubt that this is the case. Twelve years ago, an effort was made to tax this company and other chain stores out of business. The public rallied to our support. They said they liked our quality foods and our low prices. As a result of their opposition, the tax was defeated.

Now we are faced with this new attack through the courts. We are faced with the heavy costs and all the trouble that lawsuits involve.

But we believe this attack is a threat to millions of consumers who rely on us for quality foods at low prices; to farmers who rely on us for fast, low-cost distribution of their products; and to our loyal employees.

We feel that it is our responsibility to all these people to defend, by every legitimate means, this company and the low-price policy on which it was built.

U. S. Health Plan Called Drug Boon

New York, Sept. 20 (AP).—Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing told a convention of druggists today that they stand to benefit heavily under President Truman's national health program.

Ewing, in an address prepared for the National Association of Retail Druggists, reviewed the President's plan for a Federal health insurance program for everyone, and said:

"In all this I do not see how the retail druggist can fail to profit enormously. As to your own status under national health insurance, there is nothing which would in any way disturb your present method of doing business.

"You are, of course, aware that only the unusually expensive drugs and medicines—those not ordinarily handled over most drug counters—would be paid for out of the national insurance fund.

"For the rest, you would have exactly the same cash register relationship with your customers that you do now.

"But that relationship, it seems to me, should be a very happy one. With literally millions of additional patients seeking out doctors for medical advice, your volume in drugs and medicines should show a corresponding gain."

D. C. Youth Sentenced On Gun Charge

Chicago, Sept. 20 (AP).—Berkley A. McDonald, 19, of 1626 17th st. nw., Washington, D. C., was sentenced to six months in jail and an additional 18 months probation today on a concealed weapon charge.

McDonald was arrested August 13 when he attempted to flee after crashing a stolen automobile into another vehicle. When arrested he had a .38 caliber revolver in his pocket.

When McDonald pleaded guilty to the gun charge in felony court September 7, an auto theft charge against him was dismissed.

You'll Find Courage in Room 219, Georgetown Hospital

The Washington Post

'DINTY' HAS VISITORS—Dennis Moore, 14, a polio victim, who has been in Georgetown Hospital six weeks, receives two friends. They are his former playmates, Bunky Reid (left), 17, of 5028 Cathedral ave. nw., and Dickie Thomas, 15, of 5015 Cathedral ave.

Personal courage is not the uncommon quality writers sometimes make it out to be. But here it is in an amazing degree—and in a 14-year-old boy.

His name is Dennis "Dinty" Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Moore, 5134 Cathedral ave. nw.

Up until six weeks ago Dinty was the star third-baseman of the Georgetown Boys Club team. His other activities included ice-skating, roller-skating, bowling, football and most other sports you can name.

Then polio hit. He's over the disease now but his legs remain paralyzed. He may or may not ever walk again.

Friends Come Regularly

But you would not have known any of this from visiting room 219 in Georgetown Hospital yesterday.

You saw a brown-haired boy with bright, sharp eyes lying in bed, propped on his elbow, a big grin on his face. You saw six of his friends—they come regularly—parked around him and you heard the sounds of a boisterous teen-age bull session.

Nurses, doctors, friends and other patients say they've never seen anything quite like this boy. To show you why:

Most of the Georgetown nurses have pretty much fallen in love with him. Women, it is probable, like the line Dinty handed one named June Naecker: Did she earn her name? She said yes and did he want her to demonstrate? Dinty told her not on working hours, but if she cared to come out Sunday.

Endures Massages

Instead of baseball and ice-skating Dinty now goes through massages and "passive" exercises and whirlpool baths. His doctors say he has been a remarkable patient, never complaining for an instant.

Dinty's many friends of his age are doing all sorts of things for him. They've given him a pen and pencil set, a leather notebook and are now making the rounds of the neighborhood collecting money for a television set. Dickie Thomas, 15, and Buddy Reid, 17, two of the friends, raised $80 in one night of door knocking. The Potomac Heights Community Church, which Dinty attended, is holding a spaghetti dinner September 30 to raise the rest.

Dinty is getting ready to "start" to school, grade 9A. The teacher, supplied by the Board of Education, will come to the hospital one hour a day three days a week.

Whatever shape the future takes on one doubts that Dinty will make it—educationally or any other way.

Endeavors Outlined By Board of Trade

The Washington Board of Trade yesterday blueprinted its major endeavors for the current administrative year at its annual administrative council meeting in the Mayflower Hotel.

The board's principal objectives, announced by President Frederick P. H. Siddons, will lie in the fields of home rule, decentralization, tourists and conventions, the Sesquicentennial, world trade, District fiscal affairs and service to business.

These objectives, Siddons said, would not mean neglect of "recurring activities already firmly established and others which cannot be planned for in advance."

The board will continue to look on national representation as a "fundamental requisite" to local self-government.

Studying Home Rule

"Much of the board's resources and many man-hours will continue to go into careful studies of any home rule proposals placed before the Congress," Siddons said.

Concerning decentralization, the Board wil continue to study highway systems, parking facilities, and the mass transportation system in order to prevent "the disastrous deterioration of the central business area that has occured in other national cities."

It was noted however that the movement of business toward outlying areas "has remained almost stationary in recent months."

The board will continue to keep a close watch on District fiscal operations although, Siddons said, it believes that the recently enacted sales and compensating use taxes will alleviate, somewhat, the "serious" financial situation in the District.

Research to Be Expanded

An expanded research and publications program for the benefit of Washington businessmen is also in prospect. In this field, too, the board expects to make thorough studies of unemployment and workmen's compensation.

A special committee will keep informed on the progress of plans for the sesquicentennial celebration. The board foresees some kind of commemorative program "irrespective of the amount, if any, of the funds eventually received from the Congress." (A Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday approved a three-million-dollar appropriation for the sesquicentennial.)

Continued promotion of Washington as a tourist and convention center by the board's Greater National Capital Committee was listed as one of the most important activities in the coming year's program.

Committees Combined

Siddons also announced recently approved changes in committee have been combined, as have the forums and programs committees, the metropolitan area relations and the metropolitan development committees and the District of Columbia form of government and D. C. national representation committees. The cultural development committee has absorbed the committee on libraries.

Committee chairmen who spoke during the meeting were James A. Cassidy, Sixty Year Observance; Louis F. Bohraus, River and Harbor; George R. Titus, Cultural Development; Lofton S. Wesley, Education; Marice L. Neel, D. C. Form of Government and National Representation; John A. Reilly, Municipal Finance; Joseph C. McGarraghy, Greater National Capital; Howard C. Drake, Membership; and William J. McManus, Program.

Siddons' predecessor, Leon Chatelain, jr., reviewed the major activities during his administration as president.

New Justice Plan Asked in Montgomery

By James B. Graham
Post Reporter

Establishment of Montgomery County justice of the peace system separate from the county police department was recommended to the Montgomery County council yesterday by two police officials.

The present practice of designating police station clerks as justices of the peace to act as committing magistrates was scored by both County Police Chief Charles M. Orme and Capt. Ernest L. Thompson, commanding officer of the Bethesda police station.

Orme pointed out that when a station clerk is sick or absent on his day off, no one at the station is authorized to accept collateral or bond other than the clerk to the trial magistrate, who is on duty only from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Departmental duties take up much of the clerk's time, Thompson said, and many times a citizen is kept waiting while the clerk is otherwise engaged.

The semiannual report of police activities submitted by Orme showed police received 15,725 calls during the six-month period. The detective bureau handled 854 cases. Of these, 540 cases were closed and 17 found unwarranted reports.

Property amounting to $58,603.32 was reported stolen during the period, and $33,643.93 recovered, the chief reported.

To the question by Council President Frederic P. Lee concerning gambling in the county, the chief replied:

"Montgomery County is as clean as any county in the United States."

The council approved three appointments to the county legal staff, recommended by County Attorney David Macdonald.

Named as assistant county attorneys were Plummer M. Shearin, who had been clerk to the county council; J. Hodge Smith of Baltimore, and James S. Langian of 8473 Piney Branch rd., Silver Spring.

Lee said two of the attorneys will assist Macdonald in the usual work of his office, one handling prosecution of cases, and the other in preparing ordinances. The third appointee, whose job will terminate at the end of the year, will compile a complete revision of local laws for submission to the council's legislative session next spring.

The council named John D. McElroy, assistant clerk to the council, to succeed Shearin as clerk.

The council directed County Manager Irving G. McNayr to request the State Roads Commission to install additional directional signs at curves on River rd.

Virginia Casey Withdraws Zoning Plea

Miss Virginia K. Casey, daughter of Eugene B. Casey, wartime aide to President Roosevelt, yesterday withdrew her application for rezoning a 46-acre tract in Chevy Chase for a 10-million-dollar apartment project.

Permission for withdrawal of the application was granted without prejudice by the Montgomery County Council after Miss Casey's attorneys said regulations requiring posting of the property had not been fully complied with.

The hearing had been scheduled for 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Bethesda County Building.

In allowing the application to be withdrawn without prejudice, the council, in effect, permitted its resubmission next month. When an application is heard and rejected, it cannot be resubmitted for another year.

The land in question is on Connecticut ave. near Jones Bridge rd. at the rear of the Bethesda Naval Medical Center. Plans call for 1500 apartment units to be built there in several eight-story buildings.

Bid of $649,000 Is Lowest of Six On New School

Bids were opened yesterday for construction of the new Oxon Run Elementary School, 4th st. and Mississippi ave. se.

A low bid of $649,000 was submitted by the George Hymen Construction Co., 1010 Vermont ave. nw. Six firms submitted bids.

The 24-room classroom building which includes a combination auditorium-gymnasium is scheduled to be completed by next September. It will provide relief for the overcrowded Patterson and Congress Heights Elementary Schools where children are attending classes on half-day schedules.

Bids also were opened for paving New York ave. from the bridge at Florida ave. to Kendall st. ne. The Highway Construction Co., 7th and T sts. ne., submitted the low bid of $33,450.

Tourist Cabin Fire Kills Tattooed Girl

Investigators last night appeared ready to accept the theory that 25-year-old "Tony" Pierson, of Sumter, S. C., burned to death accidentally in an Eastern Shore tourist cabin near Salisbury, Md.

"It looks as if she died an accidental death," said Corp. Sam Sherwell of the Maryland State Police. "It appears that her death was caused by a fire in the bed clothes."

The tattooed and nude body, partially charred, was found at about 9 a. m. in the blazing bed of the tourist cabin.

During the day, State police picked up J. R. Tyson, a traveling exterminator, of Newport News, Va. After questioning he was released.

Sherwell said Tyson's story stood up. He said Tyson told them he had met the girl in a Salisbury tavern and driven with her to the tourist cabin. He said Tyson related he spent only about 15 minutes in the cabin with the girl, then left for another tourist cabin about a mile away and went to bed.

A companion of Tyson from Newport News verified the fact that Tyson had returned to the cabin they shared shortly after midnight Monday night.

On the basis of Tyson's story that the girl appeared to have been drinking heavily, investigators were inclined to the belief that she had fallen asleep while smoking in bed. Tyson had said he knew the girl only as "Tony."

But he was able to furnish police with a graphic description of the girl, including a tatoo on her right arm of a bird, "probably an eagle," and another tatoo on her right thigh "2 or 3 inches" above her knee—of the word "LOVE."

Elmer W. Ruark, owner of the tourist cabins where the girl's body was found, said he noticed smoke pouring from her cabin about 8:20 a.m. and summoned firemen.

The girl's body was recovered only after the blaze was brought under control. The bed on which she had been lying was burned down to the springs.

The body was burned so badly that identification could not be made by fingerprint. Dr. L. A. Rademaker, Wicomico County medical examiner, issued a verdict of death by suffocation.

Both the single window and the door of the cabin where the girl's body was found were closed when Ruark noticed smoke pouring from the cabin. The cabins are on Route 13, near Salisbury.

Garber said he was trying to stop when the bicycle slammed into the side of the car. He said the boy's head struck the front window frame on the driver's side of the car.

Falls Church Fire Report Due Tonight

The results of an $1800 fire and safety hazard survey of the Madison-Jefferson School will be heard tonight by the Falls Church school board.

The board will meet at 8 p. m. at its headquarters in the Rust Building, 1057 West Broad st.

Also on its agenda are plans for a school census voted Monday by the board.

Robert Cullum, president of the Falls Church Parent-Teachers Association, will be present to discuss details of the census, to be made by city P-TA members.

Material gathered in the census will be used to back the board's planned request for a referendum on school construction funds, according to Mrs. Mark Hegan, chairman.

'Hearts' Man Found Guilty As Swindler

Hillsville, Va., Sept. 20 (AP).—A Carroll County Circuit Court jury today found Ernest I. Torrence guilty of grand larceny and fixed his sentence at 10 years in the State penitentiary.

The sentence was the maximum on the charge.

Torrence was charged on two indictments with obtaining $2550 from Miss Stella Hill of Fries in what the Commonwealth charged was a "lonely hearts" swindle.

Torrence took the stand to make a closing statement in his trial today on the first indictment which charged him with obtaining $2000 from Miss Hill.

"I have nothing to hide," he said, declaring that he kept silent in order to protect Miss Hill, a 47-year-old Fries cotton mill worker. He said that the woman was not telling the truth about their relations and that there were certain things between them that he would never reveal.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty after deliberating for about 50 minutes.

David E. Repass of Bland, attorney for Torrence, requested a continuance when the case got underway this morning. His request was refused by Judge John S. Draper.

In a preliminary hearing on August 15 Miss Hill said she met Torrence, whom she knew as Bradley F. McMillan, through a Jacksonville (Fla) "lonely hearts" club in February.

Commonwealth's Attorney A. B. Goad said that he was going to hold the second indictment, charging Torrence with taking $550 from Miss Hill, to see whether Torrence appeals his conviction on the first indictment.

If there is no appeal, Goad said, he probably would drop without prosecution the second indictment.

Alabama Klan Boss Released From Jail

Birmingham, Sept. 20 (U.P.).—William Hugh Morris, hefty boss of the Ku Klux Klan in Alabama, was released from jail today after serving 67 days for contempt of court.

Circuit Judge Robert J. Wheeler, who sentenced Morris when he refused to supply the Klan membership list in Jefferson County to a grand jury investigating mob violence, signed his release.

Wheeler ruled that Morris had "purged" himself of contempt by submitting a Klan roster from memory after doing all he could to recover the actual records which, Morris said, were stolen from his home.

Sales Tax Yield In August Up To $518,000

District sales tax returns for August, first month of the tax, yesterday mounted to $518,000.

The sum represents returns from 7000 District merchants. Thirteen thousand registered under the sales tax law.

Midnight was the deadline for filing returns. Penalty for merchants who failed to file is 5 percent.

Returns of more than $300,000 were processed yesterday, Guy Pearson, Collector of Taxes, said.

Officials expect the tax to average about a million dollars a month but will be surprised if August returns reach that figure. Pearson said that August, a slow month for retailers, is considered the worst month in the year for sales tax returns.

More than 200 merchants have been granted extensions for filing until the end of September.

Upon Welles' death, the entire estate is to be distributed to Mrs. Thora Ronalds McElroy of New York, a cousin of Mrs. Welles, or her issue. If Mrs. McElroy should die without issue, the estate would be distributed to a charity to be selected by the trustees, for the benefit of underprivileged children.

Welles Bruce Baird and the National Savings and Trust Co. have been named executors and trustees of the estate.

Dr. J. Breckenridge Bayne, 2534 Belmont rd. nw., and E. Pendelton Turner, 1311 30th st. nw., both socially prominent Washingtonians, were left $5000 each.

The probate petition points out that Mrs. Welles owned a substantial amount of real estate in Washington and nearby States, and that she and Welles jointly owned Oxon Hill Manor, Md., which has a tax value of $150,000.

Defense Protests

Court Admits 'Hearts' Case Confession

Dover, Del., Sept. 20 (AP).—The oral "confession" of 16-year-old Robert Brennan was admitted in evidence today at the lonely hearts murder trial.

The three judges of the Delaware Court of Oyer and Terminer overruled defense objections that the statement was obtained under duress and not admissible.

Defense Attorney Benjamin R. Donolow objected to introducing that statement and three others in which the State contended Robert admitted the shotgun slaying of Wade N. Wooldridge, 67, Stone Mountain, Va., carpenter.

State Police Capt. Frederick K. Lamb told the jury Robert made his oral confession the night of April 15, after he and his mother were arrested.

Lamb said this was Robert's story:

The boy said he shot Wooldridge October 10 in the back of the head as the carpenter was going up a flight of stairs in the Brennan barn. Wooldridge fell to the feedroom floor. His body was buried in a pigpen, then dug up and cremated April 1.

Robert gave police a shotgun, said it was the murder weapon, and showed police charred remains of a trunk and suitcase he said had belonged to Wooldridge. He said they had been burned on the Brennan trash heap.

Robert's oral confession does not implicate his mother, Mrs. Inez Brennan. The written confessions, not yet offered in evidence, reportedly contain statements that Robert shot Woodridge under his mother's orders.

The killing occurred on the day Wooldridge allegedly arrived at the farm to marry Mrs. Brennan, after a lonely hearts correspondence.

Robert and his mother are charged with murder in Wooldridge's death.

Dog Bite Brings $350,000 Suit

An Army lieutenant colonel sued for $350,000 damages in District Court yesterday as the result of injuries suffered by his 5-year-old daughter when bitten by two dogs.

The girl is Candice Lee Temple, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Harry D. Temple, of 100 Lee ave., Wellington, Alexandria, Va.

The suit names as defendants the Washington Diocesan Organization of the Girls Friendly Society of the United States of America, and Miles and Marie Crowley, caretakers of the society's Holiday House in Wellington.

Candice suffered multiple lacerations covering her entire body, her hair was totally chewed from her head, both ears were partly bitten off, and other injuries resulted from the biting on April 25 the suit charges. It occurred near the girl's home which is close to the Holiday House property.

The colonel's attorneys, David G. Bress and George A. Greenfield, say that the girl is still under psychiatric care.

At the time of the episode, police said that the dogs were of a terrier type. Candice was found by her mother lying nude on the ground after a maid reported hearing dogs barking in the general area where the child played, according to police.

The suit asks $250,000 for the child's injuries and $100,000 additional for expenses and inconveniences to the father.

MAP Debate

The protests that are being made in the Senate against the military aid program seem to be based on a complete misunderstanding of the new defense system that is in the making. Senator Johnson of Colorado complained, for example, that the bill would launch us upon a 20-year program. Senator Byrd took an opposition stand because, he said, "there is not even the remotest indication that this will stop after one year." The trend of thinking in both cases seems to be that the United States should not take the first step to aid in defending the free world because other steps will be necessary and they will inevitably cost us something.

Of course, the bill now before the Senate is not a 20-year program, as Senator Vandenberg pointed out. What is to be done in the years ahead, after the North Atlantic defense plan has been launched, will have to be determined by the Administration and Congress. And such decisions can be made only in the light of defense needs then existing. No one can possibly say at this time what the cost over the years will be. But one fact is unmistakably clear: defense of the Atlantic community will cost less in the next 20 years if it is shared jointly by 12 nations than if each nation should try to make itself secure by its independent efforts.

To protest against embarking upon this joint defense plan because the end of our obligation cannot be foreseen is to protest against the whole idea of the North Atlantic Treaty. For better or for worse, 12 nations have decided to make their defense a common cause. This means that every one of those nations has a vital interest in bolstering up the strength of the new system at its weakest points. We should be incredibly shortsighted if, having taken the all-for-one-and-one-for-all pledge, we should insist on retaining all the potential strength of the alliance on this side of the Atlantic where the danger is meager and contribute nothing to the strength of the alliance in Europe where the chief danger of attack lies. How long will it take Senators to realize that western Europe is now as much a part of the territory we must defend as are Virginia and Colorado?

The issue before the Senate, as we see it, is whether this bill properly sustains the new defense system. Does it provide ample safeguards against frittering away MAP funds for development of nationalistic military machines? Does it properly integrate MAP with our military expenditures in this country? It is too late in the evolution of world forces to talk of the bill as if it raised the question of collective security or going it alone. The decision has been made. It has overwhelming support in the Senate and in the country. The Senate is now asked to address itself only to the task of implementing that decision in the most efficient and economical manner.

Hemisphere Policy

There was genuine need for the clear restatement of United States policy respecting the Western Hemisphere given by Secretary of State Acheson on Monday evening to the Pan-American Society in New York. As the Secretary acknowledged, the statement contained little or nothing that could be considered new. But this, he suggested, "may well be because, in a family of nations as in families of individuals, we should expect nothing more sensational than growth."

If is never wise for members of a family to take each other too much for granted. Reaffirmations of interest and devotion are desirable from time to time to strengthen their sense of community. The United States has been so preoccupied of late with pressing problems in Europe and China as, perhaps, to have created an impression of indifference toward our sister republics of Latin America. There has been nothing in our conduct to warrant such an impression; as the Secretary reminded his audience, this country has steadily maintained technical and economic cooperation in the hemisphere through such agencies as the Institute of Inter-American Affairs and the Export-Import Bank. But no doubt it was high time for him to put again into words our continuing and undiminished interest in the solvency and security of all the American republics.

The three major objectives of United States policy, said Secretary Acheson, are "the security of our Nation and of the hemisphere; the encouragement of democratic representative institutions; and positive cooperation in the economic field to help in the attainment of our first two objectives. The approach to the first objective was formalized in the Rio de Janeiro Treaty of 1947. But achievement of the peaceful and stable relations within the Western Hemisphere essential to its common security from external aggression has been jeopardized during the past year or two by plots and counterplots in the Caribbean area. We are in need of a consistent policy for dealing with changes of government brought about by such means.

"We maintain diplomatic relations with other countries," the Secretary declared, "primarily because we are all on the same planet and must do business with each other. We do not establish an embassy or legation in a foreign country to show approval of its government." This seems to us to be a realistic recognition doctrine. But, as the Secretary went on, "when a freely elected government is overthrown and a new and perhaps militaristic government takes over, we do not need to recognize the new government automatically and immediately. We can wait to see if it really controls its territory and intends to live up to its international commitments. We can consult with other governments, as we have often done."

The last sentence strikes us as the nub of the matter. Recognition under such circumstances, if it is accorded at all, ought to be accorded in concert with the other stable governments of the hemisphere. Recognition or nonrecognition are equally forms of intervention. The aim of policy should be to keep intervention in these forms from becoming a mischievous sort of international politicking.

Atomic Partnership

A good omen for the success of the American-British-Canadian talks on atomic information which began yesterday is the Administration's attitude that the talks are between equals rather than between a master and suppliants. Britain and Canada were full partners with the United States in the development of atomic energy prior to VJ-Day; it is unrealistic to speak of an American "monopoly." Since the war, however, each country has experimented independently, and there has been only a limited amount of cooperation. The question now goes far beyond a mere broadened exchange of information. It concerns how these three bulwarks of the free world can draw together their separate projects and evolve a joint atomic energy policy. Such a policy is as important to the United States as it is to Britain and Canada.

The British contribution to the utilization of atomic energy is too well known to need much amplification. It was British discoveries and encouragement of American scientists before Pearl Harbor that made the atomic bomb possible. British and Canadian scientists worked alongside Americans at Los Alamos, and there was a free interchange of ideas. In 1948, Britain announced that she was planning to manufacture atomic bombs. Canada meanwhile has placed less accent on military development, but has built the world's largest heavy water plant and has in operation an atomic pile superior to any in this country.

It may be doubted that the British actually intend to duplicate American bomb production. What is more likely is that they hope to obtain a stockpile of completed bombs from us, or, barring that, processed fissionable material from which to assemble their own bombs. More important, they probably are looking toward the eventuality of atomic power—an aspect of atomic energy that looms large in fuel-short Europe. With good reason, they would like to assure themselves access to the ingredients of atomic power.

But the benefits of a tripartite policy on atomic energy would not be one-sided. Perhaps the foremost gain for the United States would be a division of responsibility. Within such a framework this country could be responsible for atomic weapons, the British for power, and the Canadians for reactors. Equitable allocations of uranium could be assured. Moreover, our own weapons program undoubtedly would be aided by British and Canadian suggestions.

It is certain that the McMahon Act will have to be amended to effectuate such a joint program. But the first essential is to talk over frankly, with the confidence of Congress, just what the joint program should consist of. That is what is now being done. The important thing for us to realize is that a full three-nation partnership is the logical sequel to our vanishing atomic "monopoly." The significance of such a partnership is in the strength it would give the military aspects of the Atlantic Pact while at the same time holding out the promise of industrial applications of atomic energy through cooperative effort.

Magic Words

One of the mysteries of the age is how 480,000 coal miners, acting as the independent agents that John L. Lewis says they are, always manage to quit work simultaneously without the word "strike" being mentioned by their leader. Mr. Lewis, of course, never talks strikes, though he has shown some little affection for the grandiloquent phrase. In 1946, he said that the United Mine Workers had no contract, and, miraculously, work ceased. In 1948 he proclaimed that the coal operators had "dishonored" their contract by failing to set up a pension system on his terms, and the miners walked out. This time he has maintained an Olympian silence, but somehow, with the cessation of pension fund payments—a cessation for which Mr. Lewis must bear responsibility along with his stooge, Senator Styles Bridges—the miners are out again. Some suspicious souls look darkly at these coincidences and go so far as to suggest that the word of a strike is bruited about under cover or that there is some mutually agreed code in what Mr. Lewis says or doesn't say. We prefer to think the explanation is simpler. Mr. Lewis is merely the world's outstanding practitioner of mental telepathy.

Sesquicentennial

The revival of the National Capital Sesquicentennial project by the Senate Appropriations Committee indicates that neither the leadership of the Senate nor the Administration is willing to let the occasion pass without an appropriate celebration. We share that feeling. Civic spirit is not so dead either in Washington as a community or in Washington as the center of our political system that the city's 150th birthday can be passed unnoticed. It follows that the celebration ought to be worthy of a great Nation and a great capital city. Undoubtedly this was the reasoning that led the Senate Appropriations Committee to underwrite the project to the extent of three million dollars. We cannot help thinking that if the Senate and House will give the undertaking the same thoughtful consideration that the Senate committee gave it, they will come out with the same conclusion.

In any event, the first part of the program ought to be carried out. This consists of the building of an outdoor amphitheater in Rock Creek Park and the staging of various dramatic productions of historic significance. In its capacity of legislature for the Capital City, Congress could not turn down this aspect of the celebration without showing gross discrimination, for it has contributed to 54 similar undertakings in other cities. Undoubtedly, too, it would be desirable to go forward with the proposed Freedom Fair, which, it is believed, would be largely self-supporting. To make it feasible, however, a manifestation of congressional interest and support appears to be necessary. At least it is to be hoped that the House leaders who have opposed the approval of a sesquicentennial fund in the past will familiarize themselves with the project so that they will know what is at stake when the supplemental appropriations bill goes before the House.

Battle Of Monocacy

The second Battle of Monocacy—this time against river pollution instead of Confederate armies—is in a fair way to being won as a result of determined cooperative efforts to clean up this Maryland stream. An example of this cooperation was the meeting last week of the newly formed Monocacy Watershed Council at Westminster to consider ways to apply soil conservation measures in Frederick and Carroll Counties, Maryland, and York and Adams Counties, Pennsylvania. In fact, the Monocacy is to become a demonstration area in the restoration of a once-clear stream that had become a muddied cesspool.

On the Monocacy the problem now is largely one of curbing soil runoff. The city of Frederick, which formerly was the worst offender in pollution, has taken vigorous steps to treat sewage and control industrial wastes. Likewise, Gettysburg has embarked on a definite program of improvement. But soil runoff—much of it from the richest farms in this area—continues to clog the Monocacy, and the effects are visible below Washington on the Potomac. The job of the cooperating Federal and State agencies is largely one of convincing farmers of the benefits they themselves will gain from proper erosion control. Another problem concerns the Department of the Interior, which has been reluctant to disturb the Gettysburg Battlefield with control measures. Actually, the few steps that would be necessary here would not mar the historic site, and Interior ought to take the lead in scientific conservation.

In other respects the Potomac River Basin Commission, which coordinates anti-pollution efforts, is working with marked success. An attack is to be made shortly on industrial wastes in Winchester, Va., which eventually pollute the Potomac, and control measures along Goose Creek are actively being carried out under the Virginia Water Control Board. Some of the Potomac pollution probably is here to stay. For example, new building and disturbance of natural cover are responsible for much of the repulsive brown color of Rock Creek in Washington, and a certain amount of surface pollution enters the stream regardless of control measures. That is one of the prices of urban civilization. But a lot of the silt and wastes which have made the Potomac a vile mess can be eliminated, and what is being done is encouraging evidence of the victory of common sense in preserving our river resources.

Summer's End

September 21 means more than merely the formal beginning of autumn and the approaching end of daylight saving time. Almost imperceptibly, in the latter days of September, a change creeps over the land—a change already heralded by football and school children's shouts. Soon high along the ridges and later in the dales, the landscape will ignite with color—red-bronze oaks vying with orange maples and yellowing poplars, and the whole panorama punctuated by steadfast evergreens. Indeed, the first evidences are now at hand, for the corn has progressed from green to a mature gold, and the leaves already are wafting down one by one.

In the Blue Ridge, on the rolling Piedmont, on the shore or in the city's parks, Washingtonians have an enviable opportunity to view Nature's handiwork—handiwork which people in warmer climes seldom see. Fall is a season of bustle and business, but it also is a season when Nature provides free and invigorating tonic for anyone who will take time out to look about him. For autumn is seldom blatant, and its crisp atmosphere, its tapestry of color and its dancing sunshine on blue water epitomize with indescribable delicacy and harmony the good things of the land in which we live.

Letters To The Editor

Letters of less than 200 words will be given preference, and all letters are subject to condensation. No communication can be returned.

Realistic Farm Prices

Letters such as that of September 6 signed "American" from Norfolk, Va., contribute to misinformation about the biggest industry, namely, agriculture.

It is stated in this letter that corn can be grown for less than 50 cents a bushel. Several years ago, before prices nearly doubled, the Illinois State College of Agriculture announced that a bushel of corn took from the soil what would require 40 cents to replace. At present costs this figure is probably nearer to 75 cents a bushel. That shows how ridiculous it is to talk about raising corn for 60 cents.

The farmer's price, like that of every other businessman, should consist of cost plus profit. However, the cost figures should be realistic, as found by a cross-section of farmers under a self-financing program of price support.

The farmer no more wants a subsidy than does "American." Moreover, he knows it is rating him as a dunce to expect him to be satisfied with any subsidy schemes, as he knows Congress would not appropriate the billions of dollars necessary to carry out any such plan on major crops and livestock and poultry and dairy products.

He also knows that in the first sentence of Triple A passed in 1933, Congress pledged itself to establish and maintain full parity prices, and that Congress did nothing of the kind. Parity was not reached until the second year of the Second World War, then because of the war, and not because of any governmental program.

The election last autumn should have revealed to members of Congress that the farmer knows more about agriculture than the average member of Congress.

Arlington Reburials

A letter concerning the reburial services of World War II dead appeared in your issue of September 13. Since the Arlington National Cemetery is under my jurisdiction, I wish to correct any impression of improper or callous procedure in these burials.

As bodies arrive from overseas, schedules are made for interment. Next-of-kin are notified and requested to present themselves at the administration building, Arlington National Cemetery, on or before a given time. They are received sympathetically by the receptionist who in turn provides a thoroughly briefed escort of equal or superior rank to the deceased. This escort remains with the family.

Upon arrival at the grave site, the service, as prescribed by regulations, is conducted with the utmost dignity and solemnity. The officer in charge and the cemetery superintendent make every effort to be present to see that the members of the deceased's family are given sympathetic treatment.

The reburial of World War II dead in cemeteries here in our homeland has been in process since October, 1947. Approximately 4000 of these men who have made the supreme sacrifice have been reburied in the Arlington National Cemetery. This command has received hundreds of comments and letters from next-of-kin in which the highest of praise is extended to the military for a service of reverence, dignity and thoroughness which brought comfort and consolation to the bereaved.

Our chaplains, officers and men and all cemetery officials who take part in these ceremonies are thoroughly indoctrinated with the spirit of dignity, sympathy and courtesy, which such an occasion demands.

The letter by Mr. O. P. Anderson is the only one brought to our attention of a derogatory nature. A thorough investigation of the alleged impropriety has been made and no deviation from our standard of performance was disclosed.

JOHN T. COLE,
Colonel, Cavalry, Commanding Military District of Washington.

Peekskill Aftermath

Mr. Thomas Buchanan's dramatic review of the Peekskill playlet, "Robeson's 'Musical' Revolution," (letter published September 14) was very well done, indeed. I gathered the impression that the "props" must have been extremely well planned for the purpose of creating the correct "atmosphere" for the little "civil rights" production. The "scenic effects" artists even provided "stage-prop cops," who, at appropriate moments—and with a due observance of the requirements of proper camera angles—seized upon some of the innocent, unsuspecting "music" lovers and, with savage "fascistic fervor," beat them into insensibility.

Undoubtedly, Mr. Robeson and Mr. Buchanan are hoping to "stage" an even more impressive and spectacular performance, when "Robeson's Musical Revolution" comes to Washington. F. L. FREEMAN.

Meridian Hill Theater

Richard Coe's appraisal of the success of the Meridian Hill Park Theater in your issue of September 11 should go down as a record of the City of Washington.

Its importance lies, however, not wholly in its listing of the obstacles to success which were overcome—such things as a late beginning, pernicious weather, property hazards. Nor does its importance so much lie in its grateful acknowledgment of those who generously contributed both effort and money.

To me the importance of this appraisal lies in the few words, "It has shown once more that segregation on the theater level in this Capital is nonsense . . . It has again proved that what has been diplomatically embarrassing for the United States Government and unjust to United States citizens has been artificially forced by persons who set themselves above the community." GRACE S. YAUKEY.

"Operation Nibble"

I hesitate to give Captain Crommelin and Admiral "Bull" Halsey an even worse case of the jitters, but the other day, as I was driving past the Pentagon, a paper fluttered across the highway and momentarily blew against my windshield.

Of course, I had a difficult time keeping my car on the road while trying to scan the typewritten report. However, before a sudden squall carried the document into the Potomac, I was able to read "Top Secret" and some reference to "Operation Nibble" and finally the fateful words, "the Navy football team will be reduced to nine players."

Ilgenfritz Nomination

Having long been an admirer of your public-spirited editorial page, and especially of your fight for good government in general, appointment of public-minded Government executives in particular, I was deeply disappointed by your recent three editorials on Mr. Ilgenfritz (August 31, September 15 and 17). Carl A. Ilgenfritz, vice president of the United States Steel Corp., nominated by the President as the chairman of the Munitions Board, was rejected by a nonpartisan Senate majority because he refused to give up his U. S. Steel salary of $70,000 yearly in order to protect his pension rights.

Admitting that "no man can serve two masters," you nevertheless supported Mr. Ilgenfritz's nomination, although with unmistakable uneasiness. You pointed to the wartime experience with dollar-a-year men. Was that an altogether happy experience? Thank heaven, there is still peace. There is no need yet to brush aside vital principles which we are unhappily so often told, and not always convincingly, we must sacrifice when our back is against the wall in war.

You said that Mr. Ilgenfritz's job will deal "only with planning." Does the planning require less detachment, less lack of prejudice or preconceived notions, less independence and impartiality than the actual letting of contracts? The Munitions Board's planning determines the organization and the over-all tenor of operation of our industry should war come. The board's planning will fix the policies, including the major contracting terms and methods.

Do you assume that the vice president of United States Steel would sit up nights worrying about the role of smaller business—some of it not so small—in war, to mention only one aspect of planning? The advice of technicians, such as the purchasing executive of the biggest steel company in the world, can be obtained by the Munitions Board on an advisory basis, although executives of less gigantic corporations often are closer to the real operating problems of industry.

What is needed at the top is a man with broad background and broad horizon, familiar with the workings of our Government and the needs of the people, a man who can direct war-industry planning toward maximum efficiency for war at minimum damage to our after-war economy and our system of nonmonopolistic private enterprise.

You would have been in character if you had made the Ilgenfritz nomination the occasion of a redoubling of your past efforts toward an increase in present inadequate and antiquated executive salaries in our Government. However, while a higher salary might have given the President a wider choice for the nomination, Mr. Ilgenfritz, it seems, would not have given up his U. S. Steel salary under any circumstances, because his pension rights apparently depended upon uninterrupted receipt of this salary. You might have urged U. S. Steel, if necessary, to create a new precedent by protecting Mr. Ilgenfritz's pension rights even if he were not to draw the $70,000 from U. S. Steel while in Government service.

I was not greatly worried about any effort on Mr. Ilgenfritz's part, had he been confirmed, to favor U. S. Steel over its competitors. I agree with you when you say that these "could be expected to raise a howl." But who, you failed to ask, will "raise a howl" when the conflicts of interest, and they arise daily, are between private business, in this case the steel industry, and the public interest?

Washington Calling

Compromise In Steel

THIS IS a crucial week for American industry. All the signs point to an upturn in business and employment. But strikes in coal and steel can reverse this trend and revive the symptoms of recession or worse.

In the negotiations between the steelworkers' union and the steel companies is a hope—albeit a frail hope—for sanity and stability. A reasonable outcome of the steel dispute reached through an orderly process would afford a striking contrast to the mess in the coal industry.

That mess is largely the result of the high-handed power politics indulged in by John L. Lewis, the authoritarian boss of the United Mine Workers Union. The so-called pension system that Lewis has enforced on the coal industry is a beautiful example of how not to establish a system of benefits for union workers.

It has never been worked out on any sound actuarial bases. Flagrant abuses have already put the miners' fund in the red. There are reports of discrimination and injustice.

Lewis is one of the three trustees of the pension fund. A second trustee, Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, paid a salary of $35,000 a year, almost invariably votes with Lewis, which means that Lewis controls the fund.

BUT IF Lewis is largely to blame for the condition of near-anarchy that prevails, the steel executives must also take some responsibility. They agreed to Lewis' pension terms when he was bargaining for the workers in the captive mines owned and operated by the steel companies.

Under those terms the companies pay all the old-age pension of $150 a month. Having agreed to this only a few months ago, the company executives now come in and say that they are, in principle, opposed to any pension plan to which the workers do not contribute as well as the company.

Surely, it should be possible short of a strike to negotiate a decent and workable pension and social insurance system. Perhaps a study would show that one reason the miners' pension plan is unworkable is the fact that it is entirely financed by the companies.

Conceivably this could make for abuse and irresponsibility. An impartial study such as that proposed by the President's fact-finding board would throw light on this and related questions.

The average citizen looking on is bound to wonder why in such a rich and profitable industry reasonable compromise is not possible. The companies have made extraordinarily high profits. The workers are paid relatively high wages. It would seem that just a small degree of adjustment should prevent a senseless fight over who gets what; a fight likely to hurt millions who have no direct connection with the steel industry.

SOME companies in other industries have successfully undertaken profit-sharing plans under which their employes share the gains of the owners. It may be that some such step, and it would be a comparatively short step, holds the key to another advance toward industrial peace.

The recommendations of the steel fact-finding board have been well received. The consensus of opinion is that the board did a thorough investigation and on the basis of that exhaustive inquiry made proposals that were in the interest of the general welfare and not just one or another segment of the industry.

The union's request for a fourth-round wage increase was flatly rejected. This was a bitter pill to swallow. Philip Murray, the union head, took it with as good a grace as possible, emphasizing the pension and social insurance provisions recommended by the board.

There is nothing that compels the companies to accept these recommendations. But the weight of public opinion would seem at this point to be on the union side. And merely fulminating against the board and the fact-finding technique is not enough. In the final outcome far too much is at stake to tolerate recrimination and emotionalism.

Price Discrepancies

We have heard considerable talk of late of a decline in business. Deductions from my own experiences prompt me to ask if this decline is not partly, and perhaps largely, due to our retail merchants themselves.

Last week, in response to a sales ad, I bought a small overnight bag at a downtown store for $4.77 plus tax. Two days later I saw a bag identical to it in one of our leading department stores priced at $6.95 plus tax—a difference of 45 percent.

My wife has been buying pints of rubbing alcohol from a chain drug store and paying 29 cents a pint. A short time ago we bought pints of rubbing alcohol from a competitive chain, and under a different label of course, for 12 cents a pint—a difference of 17 cents a bottle or 160 per cent. The disparity is even more glaring with regards to pints of mineral oil we purchased. The price at the first-mentioned store was 59 cents; at the second, 18 cents—a difference of 41 cents a pint or 225 percent.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

Defense Of Europe

A SIMPLE question is raised by the Senate debate on the Military Aid Program for Europe. This question is: When are we going to face the facts?

The first fact is that the strategic balance of power which now protects western Europe from being overrun by the Red army is wholly precarious. It rests squarely on the temporary American monopoly of the atomic bomb.

The second fact is that the Soviet Union is making a massive rearmament effort, in which top priority is given to the atomic project under the ruthlessly efficient direction of former NKVD chief, Lavrenti Beria. These facts add up to the obvious danger of war in the next decade. Moreover, the Joint Chiefs of Staff have faced this danger and have devised a program for dealing with it.

The program is designed to make possible the defense of western Europe against the Red army by 1954, when Soviet stockpiling of the Beria bomb may be expected to begin. This five-year program calls for the expenditure of 8 to 12 billion dollars by the United States, coupled with a major effort to rearm by the European countries.

By 1954, it is estimated, the program would result in 45 to 50 European divisions in being. Given decisive tactical air superiority, it is believed that these 50 divisions could hold the Red Army until reinforcements arrived and strategic bombing began to take effect. This program is by no means overambitious.

THE JOINT Chiefs estimate that even today, in case of war, the Red army could put 300 complete divisions in the field by the end of the first month. By the end of the first year, the Kremlin would dispose of 500 fully armed divisions. Moreover, as the Soviet rearmament effort begins to take effect, these massive figures may be increased still further.

The Russians are concentrating particularly on heavy tanks and heavy artillery. They are known to have more than 12,000 operational planes, including large numbers of jet fighters. Examining these huge figures of Russian strength, a minority of the Joint Chiefs of Staff's strategic planners have concluded that, barring a rearmed Germany, western Europe simply cannot be defended in case of war.

Yet a majority of the planners do not agree, and their views have prevailed in the Joint Chiefs' five-year program for western European rearmament. They believe that the stunning statistics of Russian strength are in some measure deceptive. The story told by the escaped Russian fliers, Barsoff and Pirigoff, illustrates the sort of thing the experts have in mind.

The table of organization of Barsoff's and Pirigoff's outfit called for 48 planes. In fact, the unit never had more than 28 planes. And of these, there were never more than 5 planes operational at any one time, a fantastically low ratio. There is plenty of other evidence of organizational and mechanical weakness underlying the ominous statistics of Russian strength.

THIS, of course, does not mean that the vast military power of the Soviet Union is a myth. The strategic planners all agree that the Red army cannot be defeated by a straight manpower slugging match on the ground. But the best of the planners have convinced the Joint Chiefs that the five-year program outlined above is a calculated risk which must be taken, and that if it is taken, Europe can be defended.

There are so many imponderables, including the degree of effort that Europe is capable of making, that the 8- to 12-billion-dollar figure is only a guess. Yet it is an informed guess. Taking 10 billion dollars as the medium figure, yearly appropriations of about two billion dollars will be required to fulfill the program.

This means that the State and Defense Departments must go back to Congress for something close to this sum next spring. Yet there is now some chance that the program will be abandoned, or so reduced in scale that it will be rendered meaningless. This is because the Defense chiefs and others, noting the bitter resistance on Capitol Hill to the interim MAP outlay, are beginning to suspect that it is political nonsense even to discuss appropriations on such a scale.

If they are right, the day will come in five years or so when the Kremlin can boast an atomic stockpile and the unquestioned ability to take all Europe at will. The balance of power will then shift decisively in the Kremlin's favor, and an unthinkable atomic war will become almost inevitable. Those in Congress who consider it politically popular to cut the Military Aid Program should ask themselves a question. How thankful will the voters be when that day comes?

Disputes on Methods of Taxation in D. C. Feature Sen. Neely's Town Hall Conference

New skirmishing over methods of District taxation developed in yesterday's session of Senate District Chairman Matthew M. Neely's town hall conference on Washington affairs.

Benjamin Striner, president of the District Federation of Business Men's Associations, called for reduction "or preferably elimination" of the District personal income tax, the unincorporated business tax and the personal property tax. He termed the personal property tax a very confusing levy, and said the unincorporated business tax is "complex, ambiguous and a nuisance."

He also cited the postwar increase in the real estate tax rate from $1.75 to $2.15 per $100, and recent suggestions by local officials that a further increase might be needed in the gasoline tax, now fixed at 4 cents per gallon until June, 1952, when it is supposed to revert to 3 cents.

Tax Held No. 1 Concern

He said the tax problem is the number one concern of Washington's small business men.

Striner's testimony drew sharp reaction from Benjamin C. Sigal, president of the Washington Chapter of Americans for Democratic Action. He said the comments on the tax problem suggested that "there is likely to be a growing demand that the tax burden be placed more and more on those least able to pay."

Sigal recalled his organization's opposition to the new District 2 percent sales tax, and declared that is the levy that is inequitable, and "it ought to be repealed."

He suggested that the time had come for the Senate District Committee to make a new review of the District tax structure.

Neely heard 10 other witnesses in the fourth session of his round-about their ideas for city improvetable talks with District citizens ment. The conference will continue at 10 a. m. today in the Senate District Committee room.

Frederick P. H. Siddons, president of the Washington Board of Trade, suggested that the District should operate for the next few years without additional tax levies.

"Now that the sales tax, cigarette tax, and increased ABC (liquor) taxes have been enacted, and the real estate tax again raised, we are satisfied that the resident of the District is now paying just about every tax which is levied on the residents of any other jurisdiction in the United States," Siddons said.

He said District rates are comparable with taxes elsewhere. "It is unthinkable that additional taxes will be levied against the people of the District during the next few years," said Siddons.

Construction Loan Cited

Even with a "fair amount of money" in sight for capital improvements, Siddons declared "it is perfectly clear that the required school building program alone cannot be completed on a cash basis in time to be of any value."

To meet the school building needs, he said that Congress either should authorize a Federal construction loan to the District, or should increase the annual Federal payment to the District. Other citizens' and labor groups had made similar suggestions in earlier sessions of the Neely conference.

Mrs. John C. McClintock, president of the District League of Women Voters, suggested that a bond issue be authorized to finance school construction here, and she called, too, for a larger Federal payment. She emphasized her organization's support for District suffrage, declaring that the apathy of Washington citizens cited earlier by Neely was the result and not the cause of disenfranchisement.

She also indorsed Neely's proposal for setting up an official human rights commission in Washington.

Suffrage Urged

William F. Fadler, speaking for the Democratic Club, and the Young Democrats of the District, urged action to give local suffrage and national representation to the District. He suggested that Neely introduce and sponsor legislation for District representation in Congress and in the electoral college.

Gerhard Van Arkel, of the District Democratic Central Committee, joined with Sigal in urging that the Senate District Committee call upon Attorney General J. Howard McGrath for a formal opinion on whether District civil rights laws of 1872 are still in force, despite their omission from a code of District laws compiled at the turn of the century.

In other testimony:

1. Paul Bradshaw, of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants, of the District, hailed Neely's appointment as District chairman on behalf of the 500 families in the association.

Centralization Backed

2. Mrs. Gertrude Parks of the District Federation of Women's Clubs urged prompt grouping of District child welfare institutions in the proposed Children's Center at Laurel, Md.

3. George D. Riley, legislative representative of the AFL, and Col. Charles I. Stengle of the American Federation of Government Employes, called for creation of a District Department of Labor. James Mark, jr., of the United Mine Workers, voiced support of his organization for District suffrage.

The conference was opened with a prayer by the Rev. Dr. Halley B. Taylor of the Fifteenth Street Presbyterian Church.

The District total recommended by the Senate group was $4,864,219.49, an increase of $115,973.98 over the House figure. The total does not include the Sesquicentennial figure.

The sesquicentennial fund is a Federal appropriation, urged by sponsors on the ground that taxes exceeding the initial grant will return to the Treasury out of the celebration.

The pay increase appropriation has become the main item of interest for 17,000 municipal employes who have now waited nearly 15 months to be placed on a salary par with Federal classified workers for the last fiscal year. The long wait for the back pay figured recently in charges that a police private dipped into precinct retirement funds. His dismissal has been recommended.

Indigents May Cost Hospitals $300,000

Private Washington hospitals stand to lose more than $300,000 this year on treatment of indigent District patients.

This prospect yesterday prompted an appeal from Walter H. Tobriner, president of the National Capital Area Hospital Council, to Senate District Chairman Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.).

Tobriner, in a letter, asked Neely's help in getting an increased District appropriation for reimbursing the hospitals for their expenses of treating indigent patients. He said the District rate of repayment, $9 per patient day, falls $5.80 short of covering the average cost of caring for the indigent patients.

French Classic Of Young Love

By Richard L. Coe

THE HARROWING EXPERIENCE of adolescent love is generally treated on the screen as a bumptious adventure, its tremendous implications glossed over in favor of rueful humor. This satisfies both the embarrassed yearning of the presumably adult for their lost youth and the understandable strictures of The Industry's careful Code.

"Devil in the Flesh," at the National, is a French film, finely acted, which presents the matter seriously. By the time the picture is over, you feel you know the young man thoroughly. The shock of youth's awakening to maturity has been so sensitively probed that nothing remains to be stated.

This story is from a novel written shortly after World War I by a 17-year-old Frenchman, Raymond Radiguet. He died shortly after the book was published but it has lived on as a classic of its type.

Reputedly autobiographical, "Le Diable au Corps" tells of the love of a 17-year-old school boy for a married woman several years his senior. Her husband is away at the front and she gradually allows her emotions to rule her mind.

How this evolution is achieved without complete condemnation of both characters is the film's sensitive understanding. At first the girl is frankly attracted to the lad, amused by his combination of youth and maturity. He is older in maturity than his chronological age, a telling awareness on the part of the young author. For who has not known young people whose maturity belies their years? This is the key to the young man's role and Gerard Philipe presents it brilliantly.

"DEVIL IN THE FLESH," an A. F. E. release, produced by Paul Graetz, directed by Claude Autant Lara, screenplay by Jean Aurench and Pierre Bost, from the novel by Raymond Radiguet. At the National.

And so they drift together, he awakened for the first time, she because the combination of ennui and an arranged marriage are too strong to combat. They fully realize that the end of the war will mean the end of their liaison. The lad constantly longs to tell her husband of the affair, but before they can slip away for the birth of their child, fate decrees a fatal ilness for the young woman. She is buried while the bells ring out the true armstice.

Splendidly Perfermed

The quiet eloquence with which the story is told contains many individual scenes: The stunned lovers gazing into the fire; the bo's haunted expression when, after the girl's death, he revisits her small flat; the lad's trick in a restaurant to get a second bottle of wine for nothing; his tired body dozing in a rowboat while the girl rows down the river musing on their probable future.

In less skilled hands than these players' and Director Claude Autant Lara's, the film would have lacked its distinguishing sensitivity. The Radiguet novel has been adapted, with a few amendments, by Jean Aurenche and Pierre Bost. Their flashback technique is entirely defensible. Elliott Paul has supplied superior, clear English subtitles. The praise heaped on Gerard Philipe for his portrayal is surely justified, and Micheline Presle, whom you may have seen in "Les Juex Sont Faits" at the Dupont, is splendid as the young wife. Jean Debucourt is immensely human as the lad's understanding father.

"Devil in the Flesh" is a sensitive, compassionate film for the discriminating.

Historian Trains Guns On Air Force

Seal Harbor, Me., Sept. 20 (U.P.).—United States Army Air Force bombers never hit a single Japanese aircraft carrier during World War II, America's most distinguished Naval historian said today.

Samuel Eliot Morison, author, Harvard professor and a sailor himself from boyhood days, took time off from a Maine vacation to level some big guns at the Air Force.

"Their record simply doesn't back them up," Morrison said.

"We're putting too much reliance on the Air Force, their much vaunted B-36 bomber, and strategic bombing as a whole.

"A carrier-based air striking force is the weapon we should place most faith in nowadays. It's the best weapon we have."

The tanned, 62-year-old sailor-scholar contended he has the material to back up his claims. His new book, published today, "Coral Sea, Midway and Submarine Actions," fourth in a series on United States wartime Naval operations, pulls no punches.

Security Bill Faces Rules Torpedo

By Robert S. Allen

House Democratic leaders are faced with an old stumbling block on the Administration's big Social Security liberalization bill. A Republican-Dixiecrat bloc on the Rules Committee is threatening to torpedo the measure.

The coalition has served notice it will grant either a wide-open rule or no rule at all. That is, it will permit the House to consider the legislation only under conditions that will give all the procedural breaks to the opposition.

Comprising this controlling bloc are the four Republican members of the committee and three Democrats. They are Representatives Leo E. Allen (R., Ill.), Clarence Brown (R., Ohio), James W. Wadsworth (R., N. Y.), Christian Herter (R., Mass.), Gene Cox (D., Ga.), Howard W. Smith (D., Va.), and William Colmer (D., Miss.).

8 Months in Committee

Although Social Security liberalization is a major Democratic plank and was one of President Truman's chief campaign issues, it took the House Ways and Means Committee eight months to report out a bill. The complex, 200-page measure is considerably short of the President's recommendations. His proposals would have extended benefits to another 20 million. This bill would effect 12 million.

Even in this form it faces powerful opposition if and when it reaches the House floor.

Chief of these are insurance companies. They are strongly against the provision for Federal pensions for total permanent disability and increasing the income base for benefits from $3000 to $3600.

In an effort to counter the Rules Committee Republican-Dixiecrat bloc, Administration forces have introduced a discharge petition. Under House rules, this becomes operative next Monday. It will then be up to Representative Robert Doughton (D., N. C.), chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, to move for action. That would entail another long-drawn-out battle.

Prospects Uncertain

Working behind the scenes and with White House backing, Speaker Sam Rayburn is trying both to avert that and to break the Rules Committee blockade. His prospects are uncertain.

It is definitely known that the Rules Committee bloc has had at least one secret meeting to discuss strategy.

Meanwhile, whatever happens in the House, there is virtually no likelihood of the Senate getting around to the legislation this year. Currently, it is not even on the agenda of the Democratic leaders in that chamber.

Married 60 Years . . .

The Washington Post

DIAMOND WEDDING—Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Clarke, who will observe their sixtieth wedding anniversary here Sunday, stand near a portrait of Mrs. Clarke's great great grandmother, Mrs. Deborah B. Clarke, painted more than 100 years ago

Like father, like son, the saying goes, and it's been going on that way in the Clarke family since the Seventeenth Century. For seven generations now, one of the Clarke sons has celebrated his golden wedding anniversary.

And the latest in the line, Frederick W. Clarke, late of Omaha, Nebr., and more recently of 3863 Rodman st. nw., is holding his own nicely.

On Monday he and the former Jennie Werst, a childhood friend whom he married in Chicago, will celebrate their sixtieth wedding anniversary.

As yet, however, the 84-year-old retired banker is only about average in the Clarke family's amazing record of marital longevity. Two of his ancestors lived past their seventieth anniversaries.

The only Clarke generation in the United States which missed having a golden wedding anniversary was the first one. That was way back in the early 1600s when Daniel Clark came over to Connecticut from England and became attorney general of the colony. Daniel was only married 48 years.

But Daniel, jr. and his wife lived to celebrate their 73rd anniversary, the family record. Then down the line, came Moses Clarke with 52, Dr. John Clarke with 71, Thaddeus with 52, Frederick with 64, Henry with 52, and now, Frederick, still going strong at 60.

Strangely enough, it was the current Mrs. Clarke, who is 83, who tracked down the history of her husband's long-lived clan. Family geneologies and patriotic organizations are her hobbies. Her husband, since retired as president of a midwestern bank in 1925, devotes his time to golf and still shoots in the 80s.

They came here in June to live with their only daughter, Mrs. Lloyd S. Smith, the wife of a Veterans Administration employe.

Paper Backs Campbell Unit Amendments

Winchester, Va., Sept. 20 (AP). The Winchester Star today advocated the adoption of the "Campbell amendments" to the State constitution.

The paper made its indorsement of the amendments in an editorial by Harry F. Byrd, jr., son of Virginia's United States Senator.

The "Campbell amendments" are proposals for changes in the election machinery which Virginia voters will act upon in November's general election.

Among the proposed changes is the repeal of the poll tax as a prerequisite to voting. Literacy tests and the annual registering of voters as prescribed by the State Legislature are other proposals.

The Star said that it does "not believe that the Campbell Commission's proposals are perfect."

"But two Legislatures have seen enough merit in them to offer them to the people for final judgment," the publication said. "We believe that the good outweighs whatever shortcomings there may be."

The Star editorial also said:

"The chief objection seems to be the fear that although it repeals the poll tax it makes possible the imposition of still greater controls over the electorate. But, as the Richmond Times-Dispatch points out, while these controls are possible, 'they are not inevitable. Furthermore, the General Assembly will not impose them if the people make their wishes known with sufficient vigor.'"

The proposed amendments were drawn by a commission headed by former House of Delegates member Stuart B. Campbell, of Wytheville.

Maryland Spends $65.11 Per Capita

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 20 (Spl.). Maryland spent $7.85 less per person than the average State to run its government, but collected 28 cents more per capita in fiscal 1948.

This was reported today by the Bureau of Census on State Finances of the United States Department of Commerce.

Meanwhile, in a fiscal digest of the State, it is estimated that the general fund surplus for June 30, 1949, will total $4,023,660. Revenues for the fiscal year are estimated at $134,566,258 and appropriations from special funds totaling $135,584,746.

The census report states that the State expenditures were $65.11 per capita against the national average of $72.96 and the tax collection in Maryland averaged $54.93 against the national figure of $54.65.

In spending for health, Maryland was exceeded by only five other States per capita. In schools, it stands thirtieth; for highways, thirty-ninth; for public welfare, forty-seventh; for capital outlays, fortieth; for interest, twenty-seventh, and for aid to local government, twelfth.

Maryland was twenty-fifth in rank in population and thirteenth in average annual income, according to the census report.

Fee Raised for Sellers Of Christmas Trees

The fee for permits to sell Christmas trees on public land was raised yesterday by the Commissioners from $1 to $10. The Commissioners said that this was necessary to cover the cost to the District of permitting use of public land.

Denver W. Warnock, acting superintendent of permits, said that the District spent $500 in issuing 109 permits last year. This did not include an additional $500 cost to the District for Police Department enforcement of regulations.

PALL MALL's greater length of fine tobaccos travels the smoke further... filters the smoke and makes it mild

Don't let throat-scratch spoil your smoking enjoyment. You guard against it when you smoke PALL MALL. For PALL MALL's greater length travels the smoke further on its way to your throat—filters it naturally through PALL MALL's traditionally fine, mellow tobaccos—guards against throat-scratch.

Let your throat enjoy smooth smoking. PALL MALL's fine tobaccos give you a smoothness, mildness and satisfaction no other cigarette offers you. Ask for PALL MALL—the longer, finer cigarette in the distinguished red package.

PUFF BY PUFF... YOU'RE ALWAYS AHEAD when you smoke PALL MALL
Take 5 puffs or 10... or 17...
Puff by Puff You're Always Ahead

Study the puff chart... At the first puff, PALL MALL's smoke is filtered further than that of any other leading cigarette. Moreover, after 5 puffs of each cigarette—or 10, or 15, or 17—PALL MALL still gives you a longer, natural filter of fine tobaccos—guards against throat-scratch.

Outstanding—and they are mild!

POINTERS: Some pointers on investment were given to members of The Civitan Club of Washington at a luncheon yesterday in the Mayflower. S. Harold Williams, veteran investment salesman here, said a would-be investor should ask himself: "Am I fundamentally conservative or daring?" After truthfully answering that question, Williams said the investor should plan his program accordingly with three objectives in mind. These are safety, income and appreciation. Then, in order, he should pick the industry, company and type of security that best fit his needs. Williams, in the investment business for 22 years, is a staff member of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane.

Stock Losses Range to $3; Selling Heavy

New York, Sept. 20 (AP).—Relentless selling hit the stock market one of the worst wallops of the year today.

Key issues were knocked down fractions to a top of 3 points. One billion dollars or more was wiped off the market value of all stocks listed on the exchange.

The general price level was forced back to the lowest point since Aug. 31.

Wall Street sources credited disheartening labor news and second-day thoughts on international currency devaluation as the main reasons behind the selling.

Only the gold stocks, as a group, made any sort of showing.

Selling never got out of control but the steady retreat met with little or no resistance. In the last few minutes of trading some leaders made a stand and managed to creep up ⅛ or ¼ point from the lows of the day.

WHAT STOCKS DID	Tues.	Mon.
Advances	86	264
Declines	882	552
Unchanged	144	233
Total issues	1112	1049

Business was brisk throughout the day. Turnover amounted to 1,350,000 shares, against 1,300,000 Monday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks plunged 1.2 points to 63.9. A drop of this size has been exceeded only once this year—on May 31 at 1.4—but has been matched twice.

The industrial group took the worst beating, followed by the rails and utilities.

The rumblings of devaluation, touched off by the British pound and swiftly followed by 19 other nations, grew to a roar. In Wall Street the fear gained ground that fiercer foreign competition may eat deeply into the profits of United States concerns operating abroad.

Several of the golds hit new peaks for 1949 in early trading but later tended to back down with the rest of the market.

Among the largest losers were General Motors off 2⅜ at 60⅜, Chrysler 1⅞ at 50½, United States Rubber 1¼ at 32¾, Youngstown Sheet & Tube 2⅛ at 63¼, United States Steel ¾ at 22⅜, Caterpillar Tractor 1½ at 31¾, Coca-Cola 2½ at 163, Amerada Petroleum 2⅞ at 112½, American Telephone 1 at 142⅛, Phelps Dodge Copper 1½ at 41, Allied Chemical 3 at 180; Du Pont 2 at 50⅜, International Paper 1¼ at 54¾, Santa Fe 2¼ at 89¾, Standard Oil (N. J.) 1⅞ at 68, and Gulf Oil 2⅝ at 66¾.

August Gross Of Railroads Slumps 15%

The Association of American Railroads estimated yesterday that railroad operating revenues for August were 15.1 per cent below the same month a year ago.

The decline in freight revenues was estimated at 15.2 per cent and the drop in passenger revenues 16.2 per cent.

The estimates were based on advance reports from representatice Class 1 rail systems—those doing one million dollars or more gross business annually.

C. & O. Net Off Sharply

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 20 (AP).—The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. today reported August net income dropped more than three million dollars from a year ago because of the three-day week in the coal mines. The C. & O. is the Nation's largest originating carrier of bituminous coal. With the miners working only 15 days in August instead of a normal 27, C. & O. reported August net income of $953,319, equal to 11 cents a comman share, compared with $4,266,858, or 54 cents a share, for August, 1948.

Ward Net, Sales Slump

Chicago, Sept. 20 (AP).—Montgomery Ward and Co. reported today its net profit for the six months ended July 31 was $14,480,163, or $2.12 a share of common stock. Net profit in the corresponding period a year ago was $30,455,479, or $4.58 a share.

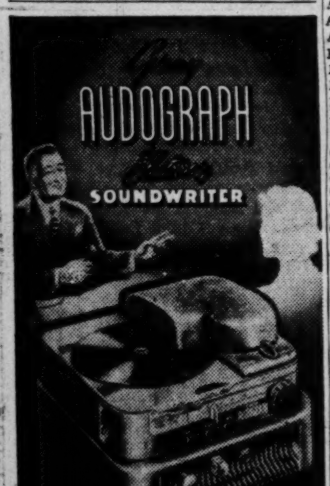

Sales in the first fiscal six months for the retail and mail-order firm totaled $488,363,724, compared with $560,986,946 last year, a decline of 12.9 per cent, the company added.

Treasury Offers Notes

The Treasury yesterday made its announced offering of $6,535,161,000 of new one-year certificates bearing one and one-eighth per cent interest. As disclosed last week, the interest represents a cut from the one and one-fourth per cent rate paid on the certificates which are being replaced, maturing October 1. The new issue matures October 1, 1950.

Why twice?
Once Will Suffice

Thousands of cost-conscious executives and professional men have realized that writing dictation in a note book and then writing it again on the typewriter is a sheer waste of time and money.

By gaining all the time your secretary now devotes to "taking dictation" . . . instead of spending a third of her time at your desk, notebook in hand, she would save hours in which to give you constructive, far more valuable assistance . . . junior executive assistance . . . if you would only make it possible. And you can make it possible . . . quickly, easily, and economically . . . by adopting Audograph Soundwriting, the wonderful new means of gaining, for both of you, extra time in which to really get things done.

And in addition, the Gray Audograph will record your important telephone conversations, meetings, conferences, and inventories on unbreakable, easy-to-file, mailable plastic discs that cost only a few pennies — yet record for over 60 minutes! The smallest, lightest and the most rugged of all dictation instruments, you can easily take it home or on trains, planes, and in your car . . . it will work for you anywhere.

In Britain Nothing's Too Much For Americans Except Prices

By J. A. Livingston

LONDON, September 20. As soon as you arrive in London, the shop windows cry out why the pound had to be devalued. An American, a German, a Frenchman—anybody but an Englishman—can buy fine shirts, dresses, leather goods, suitings, jewelry without paying a sales (purchase) tax, which ranges anywhere from 25 percent on the wholesale cost for some clothing to as much as 100 percent on pure luxury goods like jewelry. The discrimination against British subjects is tied into the drive for dollars: Anything to get the American to buy.

Livingston

What galls the British is that French, German, and other nationals come in under the wire. In effect, that makes the franc and the mark better than the pound—in England. Shop windows feature placards saying "Special Terms for Visitors Overseas," or, more specifically, "Goods can be sent to plane or ship without purchase tax." And under a recent regulation foreigners can buy up to $100 of goods free of tax for immediate use in England.

Some products, like cashmere sweaters, are reserved exclusively for the foreign trade. A few shops audaciously display export-items only in their windows. But most stores, in deference to the British gorge which rises slowly but which, when it does rise, rises mightily and with lengthy letters to the London Times, will display discreet window cards saying: "Visitors to Britain are invited to our export department."

BEFORE DEVALUATION, prices were hardly enticing even with the advantage of tax exemption. Good-grade men's suits could seldom be bought for less than 30 pounds ($120). Today, with a $2.80 pound, such suits can't be called cheap but they're within range of the well-heeled tourist at $84. Which goes far to explain Sir Stafford Cripps' decision. Though every effort has been made to get goods to move from Britain to America, the tendency has been the other way. A dress buyer at Selfridge's, one of London's largest department stores, said: "If I could only lay my hands on more American dresses. They walk right out of the store."

THE BRITISH government, to keep down the cost of living, has sponsored utility clothing—dresses, suits, shirts, slips and so on made to Board of Trade specifications. Profits are rigidly controlled, yet the lowest-priced utility men's shirt was 15 shillings, $3, before devaluation. But Selfridges's couldn't keep it in stock—a reminder of OPA days in the United States when manufacturers switched from low-priced, low-profit lines to higher-priced, higher-profit lines. In America, a comparable shirt would sell for a good deal less—perhaps $2.

I brought over a shirt which cost $2.95. When I showed it to the buyer at Selfridge's, he said an Englishman would have to pay 39 shillings, or about $7.80 before devaluation and $5.46 after, to get something comparable. The British material would be slightly better, the workmanship about the same.

And so the comparisons go. A British electric refrigerator of 6.4 cubic feet capacity, prior to devaluation, would have cost $500 of which the purchase tax is $100. A comparable American model, but larger—8 cubic feet—would cost in the United States $229.75. A British electric toaster, similar to our de luxe pop-up models which sell for around $20, would have cost $33.60.

THE ECONOMIC lesson was all too clear. So long as the pound was four to the dollar, the capacity of the British Isles to earn dollars was limited to Scotch whisky, fine leather goods, cashmeres, antiques, and other items which the great mass of Americans won't go for. Yet only mass volume will fetch the dollars Britain so desperately needs to close the gap.

The British are aware of how high are their prices. When I arrived, statisticians of the board of trade were busily stacking up Sears, Roebuck catalogue prices against prices of British mail order firms. And when I put in an appearance with Bureau of Labor Statistics specifications and actual prices charged by American department stores, I was statistical manna from America.

But hardly for long. My researches bore out theirs: With only a few exceptions, American prices were lower than Britain's—with or without tax. Through devaluation, the British hope to redress the price balance and reverse the export-import trend.

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 20 (AP).—Cotton futures were irregular in dull trading today. Commission houses and New Orleans selling accounted for early small declines. Prices later improved on persistent mill buying and short covering by local traders. Final prices were 20 cents a bale higher to 5 cents lower.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Sept. 20 (AP).—The grain market was nervous today and considerable liquidation developed during the Board of Trade session, although the September wheat contract managed to finish even with yesterday's close, other contracts had a difficult time.

Short covering brought the September contract fractionally above the previous finish, but other grains with soybeans and lard were dragged lower under the impact of foreign monetary devaluation and the threat of serious labor troubles.

At the close wheat was unchanged to 2¼ lower. Corn was ⅜ higher to ⅝ lower. Oats were ⅜ to 1⅞ lower. Rye was 1½ to 2½ lower. Soybeans were 1¾ to 2¾ lower, and lard was off 12 to 42 cents a hundredweight.

PUC Rules Appliance Sales Won't Enter Gas Rate Case

Sale of gas appliances by the Washington Gas Light Company—a chief point of contention in the pending rate case—will "have no bearing on the rate-making process" of the Public Utilities Commission.

PUC Chairman James H. Flanagan made the statement at the close of yesterday's hearing on the gas company's request for a 7-per-cent rate increase to District consumers.

Flanagan directed his comment to William A. Roberts, attorney for the Gas Consumers and Independent Dealers, a group which includes master plumbers who have been fighting the firm for selling and installing gas appliances. The group is also opposing the proposed rate boost.

Flanagan said the company's merchandising activities are not included in their operating costs which form the basis of any rate adjustment.

The company's annual report for the year 1948 shows a $36,000 net profit on merchandising, jobbing and contract work. Total revenues for that year were $32,594,990. Company executives maintained that all appliance sales activity is financed by a one half of 1 percent charge on the unpaid balance of equipment sold to customers and dealers.

Under sharp questioning, Roberts said he doubted that that charge covered the total cost of merchandising and that the company was dipping into its general revenues to step up appliance sales promotion.

The day-long session, scheduled to continue today at 10 a. m., was marked by numerous cross-examination flareups over complicated bookkeeping technicalities and misunderstandings as to the purpose of certain lines of questioning.

Roberts said he plans to challenge the company's right to merchandise appliances under its charter which only authorizes the firm to manufacture and sell gas.

Utility spokesmen are insisting that selling equipment is an incidental, yet inseparable, phase of the gas selling business. Before the present rate case opened the end of August the company declared that the appliance issue was "not germane" to the case now before the PUC.

Roberts did win one round yesterday when Chairman Flanagan ruled that he could introduce testimony attempting to show that company amortization costs of abandoned gas manufacturing plants here was not a proper operating charge for rate-making purposes.

Much time was also devoted yesterday to: 1, the firm's method of property depreciation evaluation for Federal tax purposes; and, 2, the fact that the company pays 2.9 cents per therm for natural gas piped to the local distributing point, in Rockville, Md., and charges its Virginia and Maryland subsidiaries 4.7 cents per therm for gas delivered.

Roberts held that this disparity of prices "probably has home influence" on profits being realized by the parent Washington Gas Light Company.

But O. H. Ritenour, company comptroller, said the cost of transmitting the fuel to the nearby subsidiaries just about makes up the difference between its purchase cost and sale price.

Bosox Eliminate Indians; Yanks, Cards, Bums Win

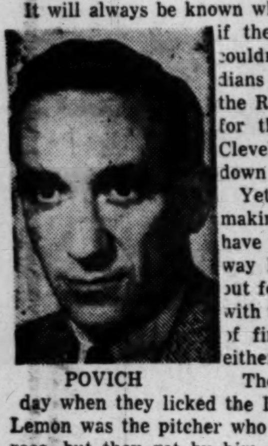

The Washington Post Sports
20 Wednesday, September 21, 1949

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

A TEAM THAT has never been in the lead can hardly be accused of blowing the pennant, but unless the Red Sox win it there will always be the suspicion that they fluffed. They have more weapons than the Yankees but thus far they haven't matched the Yanks' fortitude.

It will always be known why the Red Sox did lose the pennant, if they wind up in second place. They couldn't beat either the Yankees or the Indians in head-to-head tests. As of last night, the Red Sox had only 13 victories to show for their 38 games with New York and Cleveland, plain evidence that they bogged down in their important contests.

POVICH

Yet they're not out of it. They've been making a brave stand in the last month and have won all of their last 20 games in Fenway Park. But the clock is fast running out for them. Those five remaining games with the Yankees represent their only hope of finishing on top, barring a slump by either club meanwhile.

The Red Sox got over a big hump yesterday when they licked the Indians who shot Bob Lemon at them. Lemon was the pitcher who might have knocked them out of the race, but they got by him nicely, with Mel Parnell holding the Indians in check.

ANY GAME the Red Sox lose now could be fatal, and there's today's game with the Indians coming up for the Boston club. For that one, Manager Joe McCarthy has saved his best clutch pitcher, Ellis Kinder, who turned back the Yankees 10 days ago when it appeared that the Red Sox might be doing a complete swoon.

The season's real blue-chip series will commence on Saturday in Boston when the Red Sox swing into three straight games with the Yanks—Saturday and Sunday at Fenway Park, Monday at New York. McCarthy's pitching strategy is above criticism at this point. He will have both Parnell and Kinder ready to shoot at the Yanks in the first two games.

Certainly on paper, the Yanks don't compare with the Red Sox. The Boston club has rarely been without five .300-hitting regulars since the season started, while only Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees can boast that figure. And the Yanks are uncertain, day to day, who among them may be on the hospital list, but they have been skating in and out of trouble all year with remarkable success.

THOSE WHO GROW more lyrical over the Yankees' demonstrations this season are calling them the team of destiny, and they do seem to merit the label. Without Joe DiMaggio in the first 50 days of the season, they were supposed to fall into the second division. They never were out of the lead.

When Vic Raschi, their big early-season winner, started bogging down a couple of months ago, the Yanks came up with a new bellwether of their pitching staff, the hitherto obscure Tommy Byrne who was supposed to be a wild lefthander, and white meat. He's now the anchor of Casey Stengel's pitching staff, and the man who is expected to take one of those important games away from the Red Sox when they clash.

Last week when the Yankees cooled off the Detroit Tigers, DiMaggio came down with a sudden attack of fever and wasn't in the lineup. But that new, and dismaying turn didn't stop the Yanks. They found an entirely new hero in Hank Bauer, run-of-the-mine outfielder who suddenly began performing like DiMaggio at his best. And to help out, the spavined Charley Keller inserted one of his rare 1949 home runs.

MEANWHILE in the National League, the second-place Dodgers appear to be in the same kind of plight as the Red Sox. They can't afford to drop more than one game before the crucial three-game series with the Cardinals in the West. Any game they may lose could be fatal. The Dodgers, six weeks ago, looked like the class of the league. That was before their pitching bogged down. Now they're struggling.

The Cardinals, with their time-tested duo of Stan Musial and Enos Slaughter contributing almost daily hitting heroics, now look like the best team in the league. And in George Munger and Howie Pollett, they have a pitching edge in any series with the Dodgers, except perhaps when Don Newcombe is working for Brooklyn.

In the National League, there may be a quicker decision. The Dodgers and Cardinals swing into their critical three-game series today, with a doubleheader. If the Bums don't win two of those three games, they're a gone gang.

Flaherty's Advice to Coaches: Run Team Your Own Way

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 20.—Ray Flaherty, who should know, today gave the formula for being a successful head coach of the Washington Redskins: you simply have to run the team as you think best and pay no attention to suggestions by other persons.

Big stoop-shouldered Ray watched his own Chicago Rockets cavat at Calumet Park under two former Redskins, Jim Barber and Wayne Miller, and put in a nice plug for Billick Whelchel, Redskins' new coach.

"A very good man," Flaherty said thoughtfully. "I knew him when he was at the Naval Academy in 1942. His big problem is to reach an understanding with Owner George Marshall, like I did, and insist on running the club. He'll do all right."

Flaherty laughed at the suggestion that he might some day return to the Redskin job he held for six years before going into the Navy in '43. He said he likes his Hornet post even better than a previous All-America Conference job with the New York Yankees.

Hornets Have Won Three

Hornet bosses and fans are in favor of Flaherty, too. The sandy-headed former New York Giant star has already given them more victories this year than they could boast in the last two years. His renamed, refinanced and revitalized Hornets have won three of their four games so far. In two previous years they won only two and lost 26 under other coaching.

"We've got a new spirit," Flaherty said after correcting a half-back's pivot, "but the same old single-wing. I'll stick with that until somebody shows me a better formation—which isn't the "T".

The Hornets won't be as good, says Ray, as his Redskins of 1937-42, winners of three Eastern Division National Football League titles, two world championships, and 47 out of 66 games. But they've got more balance this year.

"This is a young club, like the Redskins," he said. "Only three of the players I had in New York are with me. But it could be a very good club with the addition of a big, fast-moving fullback and a couple more tackles."

Parnell Bats And Pitches Way to 24th Victory, 5-2

Boston, Sept. 20 (AP).—Although they failed to gain on the pace-setting New York Yankees, Boston's runnerup Red Sox today eliminated Cleveland from the American League pennant race by downing the Indians, 5-2.

A crowd of 22,179 watched Mel Parnell, stylish Boston left hander, pitch and help bat his way to his twenty-fourth victory.

He then became the "winningest" Sox southpaw since the pitching days of the late Babe Ruth, who won 23 for the Sox more than 30 years ago.

The Sox were hitless and runless against Bob Lemon, Cleveland's 20-game winner, until the sixth when Parnell led off Boston's turn at bat with a sharp line single to right.

That began it.

Pep T. K. O.'s Compo in 7th

Waterbury, Conn., Sept. 20 (AP).—Willie Pep, calling his shots like a champion should against an old sparring partner, stopped Eddie Compo of New Haven, tonight, in 41 seconds of the seventh round to successfully defend his world featherweight crown at Municipal Stadium. Referee Bill Conway halted the uneven contest at the request of Compo's chief second, Goldie Goldfarb.

Most of the crowd pleaded with the referee to stop the contest before he did.

A left hook to the jaw dropped Compo, who weighed 124½ to 126 for the champ, midway in the fifth heat. He got up to run smack into another furious barrage from Wily Willie. This time a right to the "button" sent him sprawling for another nine.

Pep came out to put over the finishers in the seventh. A left hook dropped him. He waited for the count to reach nine. As he got up the referee heeded the shouting from the challenger's corner.

Suder's Homer Beats Tigers

Philadelphia, Sept. 20 (AP).—Pete Suder's eleventh home run of the year, hit in the eighth inning with two mates on base, gave the Philadelphia Athletics an 8 to 6 triumph over the Detroit Tigers today.

Diz Sutherland Hacked, Nats Beaten, 15-6

Getting worse each evening, the Nats last night played as if they were in the middle of next week.

They made three errors, but their worst mistake was showing up for the so-called contest which the St. Louis Browns won, 15-6.

The cellar-entrenched Nats not only lost their ninety-ninth game, but it took them two hours and 37 minutes to do it.

Diz Sutherland, who forsook the security of a hackie to try his luck as a pitcher, made his debut in Nat livery before the second inning was over the 26-year-old southpaw was probably wishing he had never made the change.

He gave up six walks, two hits and five runs before he was "rescued" in the second inning with the bases loaded and nobody out.

A steady succession of throwers followed him to the mound, each as unsuccessful as his predecessor, and when the final count was made it was discovered the Browns had 14 walks and 12 hits.

Roy Sievers was one of the few Brownies who didn't draw a base on balls and it was unfortunate for the Nats that he didn't.

He drove in six runs with his fifteenth homer, a three-run blast, two doubles and a single. Sam Mele chipped in a homer for the Nats in the second inning when the locals routed Starter Bill Ostrowski in a four-run inning.

Ned Garver relieved and permitted only two more runs the rest of the way.

Sauer Sweet on Navy Chances As Middies Enplane for USC

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Navy's football team, which plans to take to the air against Southern California in Los Angeles Saturday, departs by the same route this morning.

Shepherded by Coach George Sauer and a squadron of the Academy's higher brass, 46 Middie footballers enplane from Patuxent, Md., at 9:10 this morning for the 3000-mile hop.

Launching his second year at the helm of the Academy's football forces, Sauer refuses to be disturbed by reports of the prowess of the rugged Trojans.

"I feel better than at any time since I've been at the Academy," Sauer said after practice at Annapolis yesterday.

"We've got a young, but promising ball club. It can explode against anybody and if it does Saturday, things should be interesting.

"They're going to score on us and we're going to score on them."

The game is the season's opener for both teams and is also the first time the Middies have ever played the Trojans. A crowd of 100,000 is expected to see the intersectional clash.

At least five, and possibly six, members of last year's unbeaten Plebe team will be in Navy's starting lineup. Key man among the newcomers is Quarterback Bob Zastrow, a quarterback built like a fullback.

Bob Kuzava Has 3-Hitter, But Reynolds Has Joe Page

Musial Pulls Leg Muscle As Cards Win

St. Louis, Sept. 20 (AP).—The pennant-hungry St. Louis Cardinals won an important game from the Philadelphia Phillies 7-5 today, but it may prove to be a costly one in their stretch battle with the tenacious Brooklyn Dodgers.

Race at a Glance:

Stan Musial, the most important member of their cast, hammered a single and triple for the Card cause, but in running out his three-base hit in the fifth inning, he pulled a muscle in his left leg.

A club spokesman announced the injury is not serious, and "Musial is expected to play against the Dodgers tomorrow." However, the club trainer immediately went to work and applied cold compresses. Stan was limping noticeably in the clubhouse and almost certainly will not be in A-1 shape for the highly important three-game series with the Dodgers that opens tomorrow with a day-night double-header.

Banta, Bums Bump Cubs, 5-0

Chicago, Sept. 20 (AP).—Jack Banta won the most important game o fhis brief career today as he pitched the Brooklyn Dodgers to a 5-0 triumph over Johnny Schmitz and the Chicago Cubs.

The victory kept the Dodgers only a game and a half back of the leading Cardinals.

Banta's side arm fast ball and sinker had the Cubs in complete subjection. The lanky youth granted only five hits, fanned five and walked none.

Both Banta and Schmitz were locked in a scoreless duel until two were out in the Dodger sixth. Schmitz then lost his stuff and the Dodgers poured three runs home.

Eddie Miksis singled. Carl Furillo's fly dropped safely in right field for another single, Miksis reaching third.

Schmitz walked Jackie Robinson and Gil Hodges to force Miksis home. Luis Olmo followed with a single for two runs and it was all over but the shouting.

Goldman Gone

Frank Seno Bought by Redskins

Evanston, Ill., Sept. 20.—Frank Seno, former George Washington University halfback, came back to the Washington Redskins today . . . The 28-year-old speedster, after performing with the Chicago Cardinals, Boston Yanks and Green Bay Packers, was bought from the Packers in a surprise move which put the 'Skins one man over the 32-player limit immediately after they'd got down to the limit by sending Sam Goldman, veteran defensive end, to the Detroit Lions . . . The Redskins now have seven halfbacks, three quarterbacks, four fullbacks (one of them, Ed Quirk, out for at least three weeks), six ends, six tackles, four guards, one center-guard (Dick Stevall), and two centers.

The release of Goldman caused more bitterness among Redskin players than the release of any man to date . . . Big Sam was terrifically popular . . . proof of his talent is contained in the fact the Lions released Ed Brodnax, an All-American selection, to make room for him. . . . His release also gave a boast to Ed Berrang, rookie end from Villanova, who managed to stick with the Redskins despite the fact he missed three weeks of West Coast training to play in the Eastern All-Star game.

When Andy Lazor was sent to the 'Skins farm in Wilmington, Del., two days ago, Coach Doug Turley got his fourth man from the Redskins' training camp at Occidental College. . . . Also playing for him will be quarterback Bob Hainlen and halfback Brian Bell, while tackle John Koniszewski assists in the coaching.

BILL BURNETT.

Simite Noses Out Pharant For 2d Place

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Marlboro, Md., Sept. 20—Winning in going-away fashion, Playblix, owned by H. B. Bartlow, jr., staged the biggest upset of the current meeting in today's featured The Brandywine.

To the tune of $123.20 to win, $28 to place and $7.20 to show, the 7year-old got home three quarters of a length in front of the closest opposition in a thrilling blanket finish witnessed by 5500 customers.

Mrs. H. L. Townsley's Simite was second and a neck in front of Shangrila Stable's Pharant. The latter was also a neck in advance of C. F. Hermann's Neat Kee.

Playblix, winner at the recent Timonium meeting at odds of 23-1, was capably handled by young Joe Servis, the promising apprentice, and was clocked in 1.09 4/5 for the five-and-a-half furlongs over a fast track.

Shangrila Stable's Snowstorm won his second purse in three tries in the sixth race and found a new home. The 6-year-old gray gelding was claimed out of the race by E. L. Richards. With apprentice Dick Lawless aboard, Snowstorm won by three parts of a length over R. L. Hall, Jr's Good Pick with E. W. Price, Jr's Bonziah Seniah third.

Lawless also had a hand in the $18 daily double on the 3-6 combination. He rode the first winner, R. N. Boerner's Run-Bud-Run, a $4.40 favorite. The second race went to Anoka Stables 'Pappy Boy paying $7.60 and ridden by jockey Jimmy Baird.

Gonzales Pens Pro Contract

New York, Sept. 20 (AP).—Richard (Pancho) Gonzales turned professional today, giving up the amateur tennis championship of the United States for a career that will net him at least $60,000 the first year.

The 21-year-old Mexican-American star flew in from Los Angeles and signed a one-year contract to meet Jack Kramer in a series of 90 to 100 matches covering all major cities.

The contract was signed with Bobby Riggs. Only one thing was missing. Riggs had hoped to announce that Frank Parker, United States singles champion in 1944 and 1945, also was casting his lot with the play-for-pay group.

Gonzales will launch his pro career in Madison Square Garden here October 25.

It's a second girl for the Tammaros who make their home in Charles Town. Dave (Publicity) Woods phoned to say Laurel opening Saturday will have a 1:30 p. m. post time and the special trains leave Union Station at 11:30 and 12:30. Only two more days of action here. See you on the rail—BILL.

Tatum Drives Smug Terps

Irked over the complacency of the squad, coach Jim Tatum worked his Maryland football players 45 minutes beyond the 4:30 quitting time yesterday in preparation for Saturday's opener against V. P. I.

The 2½-hour session ended when a varsity tackle and a freshman end tangled after the frosh had applied a crushing block on the upper classman.

The Terps tried four backfield units against a frosh team employing V. P. I. defenses. The second unit, comprised of quarterback Joe Tucker, fullback Mo Modzelewski and halfbacks Johnny Idzik and Joe Kuchta clicked better than the rest.

Halfback Buck Farley, on cutches, and Jim Brasher, who injured his back in scrimmage against Penn last Saturday, watched from the sidelines. Neither will play Saturday.

Kivus Gets Chance to Caper As Running Back for Hoyas

Jack Totes That Ball Against Holy Cross

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Georgetown's depending upon a mild Minnesotan to run wild this season.

Halfback Jack Kivus, used principally on defense in two varsity years with the Hoyas, gets his first chance to start toting that ball in the opener with Holy Cross at Worcester Saturday.

Kivus, naturally, is all in favor of the idea. A good, hard football player who does what he's told, he readily admits it's more fun going for that yardage.

Last season, Jack participated in just three offensive plays. And he scored a touchdown on one of them. That was in the final game with GW. Kivus got loose and grabbed a pass from Elmer Raba, completing a 68-yard scoring play with a 32-yard sprint down the sidelines.

Offensive play won't be exactly new for him, anyway. As a freshman at Idaho University, he scored three touchdowns for the varsity. The one that he remember best is a 46-yard run against Stanford.

Idaho probably remembers it, too. Stanford won that game, 55-12.

Kivus will continue to play in the defensive backfield, too. He's only 160 and 5-foot-10, but he's a rugged customer and one of the surest tacklers on the squad. Jack neyer has been out with injuries.

Students Cutting Up Over Virginia Game

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

You wouldn't recognize the George Washington University campus these days.

September afternoons used to find students sitting idly on benches behind the library, either reading newspapers or trying to soak in that last bit of suntan. But these days they're carrying school banners, and chattering excitedly about Saturday's G. W.-Virginia football game in Charlottesville.

Joe Stanislawczyk, erstwhile junior college All-America halfback at Potomac State, and now chief ticket seller at GW, confirms that Saturday's game has caugh the fancy of more students than any road game since the end of the war.

More than 800 tickets have been sold, says Joe. Fraternities have already chartered 11 buses to provide some of the transportation. Scotty's, the favorite coke store near the school, reports record sales of banners and emblems.

Two especially rabid student-fans, Wendell Whitehouse and Tom Trotter, have even rented a Piper Cub airplane for Saturday morning and are charting the 85-mile flight to Charlottesville.

Ten Pros Ready for Title Play

By Leila Edwards

Professionals and amateurs continued to arrive at Prince Georges Country Club for the National Women's Open championship which starts tomorrow. Ten professionals and 35 amateurs already have registered.

A new professional who should prove popular with the gallery joined the practice rounders yesterday. Miss Marilyn Smith of Wichita, Kans., the 1949 intercollegiate champion, is the latest outstanding golfer to desert the amateur contingent.

The vivacious Miss Smith, who is just 20, is the youngest pro in the field. She came in for a little mild kidding about the rabbit's foot which dangles from a chain attached to the belt of her golf skirt. "I'm superstitious," declared Miss Smith.

The three Bauers, Marlene, Alice and Papa Bauer, were a relaxed threesome while playing their second practice round.

An "old pals" trio of Babe Didrikson Zaharias, Helen Detweiller, and Beverly Hanson, played a leisurely game together.

Late in the afternoon, the entry committee announced two late arrivals—Dot Kielty, the runner-up in the recent Women's National, and Helen Siegel of the Philadelphia Country Club.

The local entries were augmented with the filing by Mrs. Walter R. Stokes of Washington of her entry. Mrs. Maurice Glick of Baltimore, Md., a veteran contender, has decided noot to enter

Army Mum on Discrepancies in Film Story

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Two Army officials yesterday refused to discuss discrepancies in the Department's story on the controversial Nuernberg trial films.

Undersecretary of the Army Tracy S. Voorhees sent down word that he was "not available" for interview in the matter and "not interested" in commenting upon statements attributed to him which differ with the Army's official position in the matter.

Col. George S. Eyster, deputy director of Army public relations, who has acted as Army spokesman in the film controversy, said he had "no comment" on a statement from Frank Capra, Hollywood producer, challenging an earlier declaration Eyster had made.

The controversy has arisen over an Army decision barring release of a documentary film on Germany to movie producers for completion and general showing in theaters throughout the country. Instead, the Army has ordered that the present rough picture—which recounts the rise and fall of Nazism—be made available through 16mm Signal Corps libraries.

There it will be available only to schools, clubs, etc., for free showings. Top foreign correspondents like William B. Shirer and John Gunther have lauded the film as a "masterpiece." Shirer termed the Army's action as an "evasion and a subterfuge."

Officially, the Army takes the stand that there has been no "suppression" of the film and that they tried to get Frank Capra and "others" to put it in shape and exhibit it.

Colonel Eyster stated that Capra had been approached in the matter and had turned down the proposal. Capra denied this and said he'd never heard of such an offer but might be interested if he were approached. Yesterday, Eyster would not discuss the question of the discrepancy between his and Capra's statements.

The Army public relations officer earlier had admitted that changes in the film recommended by high officials never had been incorporated in the present production, which has been publicly exhibited in Germany to sellout audiences. He declared he did not know why the film never had been finished as ordered by the War Department more than two years ago.

Basis of the Army's decision not to release the film for general distribution and instead confine it to a rough, 16-mm. Signal Corps production, said Eyster, was that "the Army didn't have the money to finish it and no one else was found who was willing to remake the picture the way the department wanted it."

Attorneys Edwin McElwain and Charles A. Horsky of the top Washington law firm of Covington, Burling, Rublee, O'Brian and Shorb, however, say that Undersecretary Voorhees told them the Army believs public showing of the film is "inconsistent with the Army's present occupation policy."

The law firm represents Pare Lorentz, pioneer maker of documentary films, who has made repeated written offers to complete the film at his own risk, submit it for Army approval and exhibit on the usual terms for such an arrangement.

Asked yesterday for an interview in the matter or a statement explaining the variance between the Army spokesman's position and his reported statements to the lawyers, Voorhees simply replied "no comment." Unofficially, some officers have said that the Army doesn't want a film shown now portraying Germans in an unfavorable light.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE MIGHTY MIDGET?

The tiny truck shown above is an exact counterpart of its big brother. Mechanical parts, tires, and tubes were all specially made in miniature. This little midget tours the country on behalf of P.I.E. (Pacific Intermountain Express), one of the largest trucking companies in the world.

Of course, as it is used for public relations, it has to be kept spic and span at all times. WAX SEAL does this very important job.

Here's what Mr. C. Eugene Johnson, Executive Vice-President of the Company, writes about WAX SEAL.

"The men responsible for maintaining this miniature equipment have tried many car polishes and waxes, but now they use WAX SEAL exclusively. They claim that no other polish is so easy to apply; no other polish brings out the original color so well; and no other polish stays on the job so long.

"Congratulations. You have a wonderful product."—C. EUGENE JOHNSON, Executive Vice-President, Emeryville, Calif.

Famous Film Actor is Wax Seal Fan

"Bringing a film role to life for the pleasure of millions is truly gratifying.

"But it's no bed of roses, It's probably as tiring in its way as farming. And when your film actor comes home after a grinding day in front of cameras, do you think his labors are over? Not if his name is Mowbray.

"For tired, weary Mowbray, that slave to a house, a garden and a car, finds plenty to do on his return from the studio. That's why I'm always looking for something to save me time and work.

"Take car polishing, for example. It once was a thankless job that I gladly turned over to a garage. But now there's nothing to it. Ever since I found WAX SEAL, I wax my own car . . . for I like to avoid hard work and save money as well as the next man. WAX SEAL is a car polish that deserves an Oscar. Simply rub it in, wipe it off, and your car has a shine that has to be seen to be believed. No muss . . . no fuss . . . and what results. I wish all household chores were as easy as WAX SEALING a car."—ALAN MOWBRAY.

Wax Seal Restores Original Car Color

Do you remember what your car looked like when it was new? Do you remember the color that attracted you in the first place? A WAX SEAL treatment will bring that original color back with all its paint shop freshness. Here's proof.

"The blue finish on my car was beginning to turn purple in several places. I cleaned my car with WAX SEAL and was amazed to see all the purple traces completely disappear. Not only was the original color restored but it seemed even more beautiful than it did when I first bought it."—JACK KOHN, 2975 Gilbert Ave., Cincinnati 6, Ohio.

"WAX SEAL not only polishes, but also cleans and renews the finish on an old paint job—equal to that of a new paint job, all in one operation. It brings out the original color and luster of the finish and seals the new paint job which helps it hold its color and smoothness."—W. J. OZIER, Oklahoma Tire and Supply, Harrison, Arkansas.

"I have a 1946 Buick that the Dealer told me should be repainted to bring out the color, but an hour's work with your WAX SEAL has made this car look like a new paint job."—WALTER EGGEN, 519 Mendocino Ave., Santa Rosa, California.

WAX SEAL FINISH LASTS FOR MONTHS

WAX SEAL protects car surfaces with a hard glaze that lasts far longer than ordinary liquid waxes. That means fewer polishings, greater economy. Read what users think of that advantage.

"I find that WAX SEAL cuts labor in half and puts a highly polished finish on an automobile. It holds the polish longer than any liquid wax I've ever used."—ROBERT L. CROSE, Bob's Marathon Station, 63rd and College Ave., Indianapolis, Indiana.

"I started to use WAX SEAL about six months ago, and although I haven't washed the car since, it looks clean and bright all the time now. It's wonderful for chrome, too."—CHESTER H. RICE, 19 Orphanage Rd., S. Ft. Mitchell, Kentucky.

"We find WAX SEAL to be a superior wax finish for all automobile paint. It beautifies, it L-A-S-T-S."—T. D. VAUGHAN, Hi-Speed Auto Laundry, West Lafayette, Indiana.

CLIMATIC CONDITIONS DO NOT AFFECT WAX SEAL

From Honolulu, Florida, Texas, Canada, South America, testimonial letters about WAX SEAL continue to pour in. It does not matter what the climate is like, WAX SEAL stays on the job.

"I am very pleased with the results of WAX SEAL. In this climate, the sun and coral are injurious to the finish of new and old cars alike; but your product has kept my car new-looking."—JAMES L. CORCORAN, 227 8th St., Honolulu 57, T. H.

"WAX SEAL is so easy to put on, and lasts so long. It is especially good in this climate where we have so much damp film—which is so hard to remove with other products. Many of our customers use it for cleaning furniture, glass, and silver, too."—S. G. GOINS, Goins Tampa Terrace Service Station, Lafayette and Marion Sts., Tampa 2, Florida.

And even the sea air which usually oxidizes car paint and pits chrome work, does not affect WAX SEAL. Mr. Jack R. Burns of Burns' Richfield Service Station, who prepares cars for shipment overseas, writes:

"I polish cars for shipment to the Philippine Islands and the Hawaiian Islands.

"Previously, cars shipped overseas arrived with the paint oxidized and the chrome pitted because of the sea air and other atmospheric weather conditions en route. I now polish all cars with WAX SEAL and my overseas customers report that the cars arrive in perfect condition and, in fact, look as though they have come straight off the show room floor.

"As I previously tried all other car polishes for this work, you can see why I say, 'WAX SEAL is the Best.'"—JACK R. BURNS, 400 Fifth St., San Francisco, California.

No Need To Wash Cars First

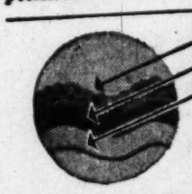

If you've used other waxes, you naturally expect to wash the car first before applying the polish. You'll be glad to learn that this chore is eliminated when you use WAX SEAL. Read what users say.

"Watching my neighbor waxing his dirty car without washing it, prompted me to ask him what he was using. I've been a WAX SEAL user myself ever since."—BERNARD B. LEVY, 620 Lincoln Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

"I'm 100% for WAX SEAL. Without washing the car, which had dust, road-grime and the usual oxidation, I was able to do a good wax job in one hour flat. WAX SEAL is quick and easy to apply, fast drying and leaves a hard steel coating of wax that lasts."—BERNIE SMITH, 1409 East 80th St., Seattle 5, Washington.

SCIENCE PROVES WAX SEAL IS SAFE, PROTECTIVE

In these enlargements you will see how Wax Seal actually works. It cleans car surfaces and adds a tough protective glaze, while inferior polishes damage the paint, expose the metal.

Ordinary car polish, containing harsh abrasives, scours off the paint without fully cleaning the surface.

A special solvent in Wax Seal dissolves road dirt, cannot harm paint. Then Wax Seal forms a flinty hard, transparent glaze that protects all the surface.

"There is enough WAX SEAL in a pint to polish your car four complete times. That means it costs you less to WAX SEAL your car than it would cost to have it washed. And remember, when you have your car washed, you don't get the benefit of WAX SEAL'S long-lasting, protective glaze. WAX SEAL is actually the least expensive method you can employ to preserve the beauty and finish of your car."

No need to wash car first.

Just spread on, rub off. Cleans, polishes, waxes and seals in one easy operation.

Will not attract dust.

Does not deteriorate.

Fully guaranteed.

Costs less than 50c per polishing.

Protects any painted, enameled or waxed surface.

Brings out the original color.

That's all there is to it! Wax Sealing a car is so easy—so effortless—that a child can do it. All you need is a soft cloth—a piece of Turkish towel will do—to apply Wax Seal. Then, with another bit of clean soft cloth, rub it off. You'll be delighted with the "new car" finish you've achieved. Get Wax Seal from your service station today.

A show room finish for your car without hard work! That's the promise of Wax Seal. Don't even worry about getting the car in the shade—Wax Seal can be used under the hottest sun. As Wax Seal spreads easily over the surface, a special solvent loosens the dirt . . . when you wipe it off, the paint and metal emerges gleaming clean, protected by a hard, metallic finish that will not attract dust. And that flint-like finish lasts for months!

Several Thousand Jobs Possible Under New Appropriation Measure

Several thousand jobs would be created under a supplemental appropriation bill which was reported to the Senate yesterday by its Appropriations Committee.

Funds for the Public Housing Administration to hire 1456 new workers before next June 30 to carry out the recent public housing law were approved. FHA was given an increase of $250,000 over the amount allowed by the House.

The committee also recommended that Housing and Home Finance Agency be given a $400,000 boost over the House figure. The sum would be used to set up a housing research program. H&FHA will have money for 453 new jobs if the Senate approves the bill.

Federal Housing Administration was limited to 262 new jobs to carry out the new law to provide a military housing program. It requested funds for 375 additional people. The new jobs will be in its field offices.

Farmers Home Administration was included for funds to hire about 700 new employes in its field offices to carry out the farm housing provision of the public housing act. The Senate committee gave it $100,000 more than the House allowed.

Census was given a million-dollar increase for next year census of housing. The House had cut its request by two million dollars. Commerce Secretary Sawyer informed the committee that the reduction would force Census to reduce the $8 daily rate it plans to pay its tens of thousands of enumerators, and also to reduce the number of questions on its housing schedule.

Some of the people Navy has laid off from its shipyards may get other jobs as a result of a 25-million-dollar item in the bill. The Maritime Commission would get the money to repair 134 merchant vessels in its national defense reserve.

If the money is approved, Maritime would award contracts for the repairs and the contracting firms would have to hire people to do the work.

GUN FACTORY: Incidentally, employes at the big Naval factory here got their first good news yesterday in weeks. Admiral Fahrion announced that 151 of the [illegible] employes who were given lay-off notices would have them cancelled. And he hinted a few more would be withdrawn before they became effective.

Retirements and other personnel turnover in the past three weeks accounts for the cancellations. The employment ceiling remains the same.

REA: Returning to the appropriation bill, Senator Hill (D., Ala.) was authorized to introduce an amendment to increase the salary fund for the Rural Electrification Administration by $250,000 to provide for rural phones. Also, REA would get 25 million dollars for loans to farmers to put in phones. The money would allow REA to take on about 50 more people.

BOUQUET: You can credit the National Customs Service Association for getting the Long pay-reclassification bill revised.

Alfred F. Beiter, the association's president, was the first to call attention to the fact that the Long bill would be unfair to incumbent employes in grades CAF-6, 8, and 10. The Senate Civil Service Committee had voted to abolish the three grades to prevent overlapping of salaries. But in doing so, it would have frozen the salaries of more than 5000 employes.

Beiter informed the committee of this fact and he proposed amendments to correct the injustice—amendments which have been adopted.

COMPENSATION BILL: The Lesinski bill to give adequate benefits to disabled employes has been placed on the "must" list for enactment at this session of Congress by Senate Democratic Leader Scott Lucas.

Lucas said it will be called up for action immediately after the military, executive, classified and postal pay-reclassification bills are disposed of. The bill has House approval. It would also pay more liberal benefits to the families of Federal workers who are killed in line of duty.

JOBS: VA needs 20 CAF-4 IBM tabulating machine supervisors. Applicants must have two years experience. Appointments are for six months. Apply in Room 2057, Munitions Building, 20th st. and Constitution ave. nw.

No Bingo Games to Be Permitted In District

Police Prevent 1st of Scheduled Series Benefitting Firemen's Group

It became official yesterday. Police will permit no bingo games in the District—not even for the benefit of the Firemen's Retiring Club.

Police halted Monday night what was supposed to be the first of a series of bingo games sponsored by the Firemen's Retiring Club in the school auditorium of Holy Comforter Church, 15th and E. Capitol sts.

Yesterday Capt. Walker Watts of No. 20 Engine Co. and Capt. J. I. McDonald of No. 28 Engine Co. called at the office of Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, to discuss the matter. Watts is president of the Firemen's Retiring Club and McDonald a past president.

To Cancel Project

Barrett told them that whenever complaints are received about bingo games his men will have to take action. The Fire Department officers agreed to cancel the bingo project.

District laws forbid bingo games even for charity. So do the laws of Virginia. In Maryland, however, bingo games can be operated by civic, benevolent, patriotic, religious, charitable, educational and fraternal groups and fire departments.

On Monday, Barrett's office received a complaint forwarded from the office of United States Attorney George Morris Fay that a bingo game was to be held that night at 8:15 p.m. at the Holy Comforter Auditorium under the sponsorship of the Firemen's Retiring Club.

Attached to the complaint was a circular announcing that henceforward the bingo games would be held every Monday at 8:15 p.m. and explaining how much those attending would pay and how much they could win.

The circular said the admission charge would be 50 cents, extra cards would cost 25 cents, that the attendance prize would be $50 and there would be three door prizes, one for $10 and two for $5.

"P-E-N-S-O"

The circular was signed, "P-E-N-S-O," said to be the fund-raising committee of the Firemen's Retiring Club.

Fay's office said the complaint was received from a woman and turned over to police as a routine matter. The prosecutor's office did not identify the complainant.

The complaint was routed from Barrett's office to the Fifth Precinct. Acting Lieut. Raymond J. James was sent to the auditorium Monday night.

He informed those present that it would be a violation of the law to play bingo and suggested the police would have to take action if the game proceeded. The planned bingo game was cancelled and the audience departed.

Hill Pushing 5-Day Week For Firemen

Senator Lister C. Hill (D., Ala.) said yesterday he is seeking to speed the start of a five-day workweek for District firemen.

Congress has approved the basic legislation authorizing a five-day in place of the present six-day workweek for firemen. But the legislation carried a proviso that the reduction in working hours was not to take effect until six months after funds had been provided for it.

District officials estimated that it would take some 200 additional men, and increase annual expenses by about $700,000, to put the shorter workweek into effect.

Hill's interest was disclosed by L. F. Price, president of the Washington local of the International Association of Firefighters. Hill told reporters he has been in touch with the District Commissioners, and he is pushing to effect an early start of the reduced working hours.

In a letter to the Commissioners, Hill pointed out that normal routine would probably bring the reduced workweek into operation January 1, 1951, and expressed hope it might be done earlier.

In reply, Commissioner Guy Mason wrote that the District Commissioners are very much interested in putting the 5-day firemen's week into effect. He said the Commissioners hope to determine early in 1950 if there are sufficient funds on hand to recommend a special appropriation.

"You can be assured that everything possible will be done to start a 60-hour (average) workweek for the firemen at the earliest possible moment," Mason wrote.

Falls Church Annexation Suit Against Fairfax Off the Docket

By Richard L. Lyons

Post Reporter

At the request of Falls Church, the city's annexation suit against Fairfax County was nonsuited—dropped from the docket—yesterday by the Fairfax County Circuit Court.

By granting the nonsuit request, Judge Paul E. Brown reversed his ruling of the day before. He had rejected it in open court and signed an order asking the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals to appoint three judges to hear the case.

The new order means that if the city is to continue with its annexation plans, it must start from scratch and refile its suit. Persons involved indicated it will take at least three months before the case gets back into court.

The nonsuit order was granted at the request of City Attorney LaRue Van Meter on technical grounds. He charged that the city made an error in filing the suit because it failed to advertise the proceedings in county papers for four weeks before filing as required by law.

Citing the error was merely a legal maneuver to get the case off the docket. The city's real reason for wanting to hold up action on the suit, Van Meter said, is to give it time to learn what affect the recent sewer bond issue may have on annexation.

The county's Sanitary District No. 1, which includes much of the area proposed for annexation, passed a three-million-dollar bond issue three weeks ago to improve sewage facilities.

"When you go into court in an annexation case," Van Meter said, "you have to prove you can benefit the area. We want time to make a study to learn if we can."

Van Meter said the city definitely will press the annexation case when a survey of this situation has been completed.

New Building Costs Shown Heights Folk

50 Pct. of Present Homes May Face Condemnation Suits If 'Freeze' Is Lifted

Marshall Heights residents yesterday got a dollar-and-cents report on what public improvements will cost in their hilly homeland.

A party of about 50 residents joined with representatives of the District Commissioners on a staked-out tour of two streets. During the tour Government representatives pointed out topographical disadvantages, necessary elevation of roadways, inability to connect with sewers at several points because of topography, and necessary changes in foot frontage on houses should the improvements be put in.

At the present time there is a "freeze" on both improvements and new construction on Marshall Heights. The "freeze" was put on when the area was declared a slum project.

Most of the Marshal Heights residents who went on yesterday's tour seemed to favor immediate lifting of the ban on construction and improvements as a means of getting water and sewer connections.

However, District officials pointed out that lifting of the freeze might have two bad effects from the residents' viewpoint:

1. Of 99 homes viewed yesterday, 53 would be made subject of referrals to the Board of Condemnation of Unsanitary Buildings. No condemnation proceedings have been started while Marshall Heights has been on the slum clearance project sheet.

William H. Cary, jr., District public health engineering director, estimated 50 percent of the 511 houses probably would face similar proceedings.

J. J. Ilgenfritz, director of inspection, estimated 25 percent of the 99 houses inspected yesterday probably would face board action for being unsafe. He did not estimate what percentage of the rest of the development would be so affected.

2. If sewage and water connections are made on the existing land plan, and road fills made on existing street patterns, some houses will be left 15 feet below the roadway.

This would mean that retaining walls for the houses must be built, and pumps used to raise their sewage and water to the level of the main pipes.

Lieut. Col. E. L. Cox, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, who led the touring group, said he did not know when the Commissioners will decide whether to keep or drop the ban against construction and improvements in Marshall Heights.

Trolley Operator Yields Cash After Fight With Bandit

The operator, W. C. Moore, 48, of 646 F st. sw., said the lone passenger pulled a blue steel revolver on him when the car stopped at 11th and C sts. ne. and grabbed his leather case containing 500 tokens and two rolls of 50 pennies each.

Moore said he tussled with the man, a light-skinned Negro, and struck him in the face several times with his metal money changer before he broke away and fled from the car.

Man Lacking Memory Crawls Out of River

The man, who later identified himself as Abraham Spindell, 35, told police he remembered nothing since 8 p.m. Monday when he was on Long Island, N. Y. He did not remember traveling to Washington or getting into the river.

Truck Driver Fined $100 in Lottery Case

Robert B. Perkins, 36, of 629 Massachusetts ave. ne., a bread truck driver, was fined $100 and given a suspended 60-day jail sentence for possession of lottery slips yesterday in Silver Spring Police Court.

Police testified Perkins had several slips in his possession when he was arrested September 3 while on his bread route in Silver Spring. They said he acted as a runner for a Washington gambler whose identity was not disclosed in court.

D. C. Budget Parley Set

District government department heads will discuss 1951 budget requests before the Commissioners and Budget Officer Walter Fowler at hearings beginning at 10 a. m. September 28.

Capital Transit Transfers Revised to End Stopovers

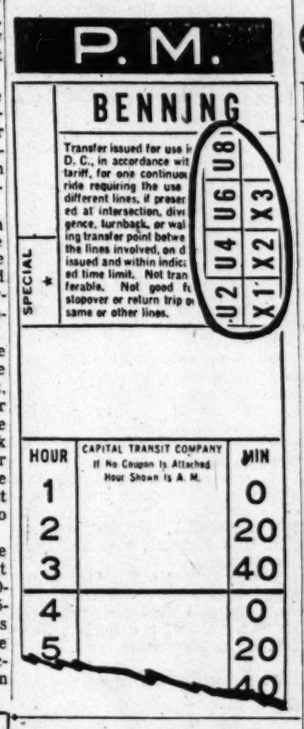

To eliminate "misunderstandings" about transfer privileges, Capital Transit has designed a new slip to go into effect October 16, it was announced yesterday.

Most important function of the new transfer will be to keep passengers from using the transfer for "stopovers"—the practice of getting off a car or bus for awhile then continuing on the same line without paying a new fare.

"Stopovers" have never been part of the transfer privileges, the company said, but under the present transfer, drivers have had considerable difficulty in determining when a passenger is stopping over.

The new design wil have the number of the line on which the transfer was issued punched out, and the passenger will no longer be able to use the transfer on the same line. The text on the back of the new transfer wil read, "For one continuous ride requiring the use of different lines—." Most of the present transfers have no route numbers printed on them.

Time limits for the use of the transfer will remain the same but the hours will be divided into 20-minute periods rather than in 15-minute periods as at present. This change will make it easier for the operator to rip off the slip accurately, a company spokesman said.

Veteran Pay Theft Laid to Bridegroom

Dossie languished in the District jug yesterday in default of $1000 bond, charged with stealing a Federal Government check for $652.

Last May 11 a check for $652 was delivered to William L. Coffey of 153 T st. nw. Coffey, an Army veteran who served on Guam, had the money due him for accumulated leave, mustering out pay, etc.

A short time later, Dossie, who was living at the T st. address then, cashed the check at an F st. clothing store, bought a $70 suit and went off to New York City on a honeymoon.

When Dossie was arrested last night by Secret Service agents and postal inspectors, at his new address, 632 Quebec pl. nw., the honeymoon was over and all of the money spent.

Air Veteran Found Dead; Ruled Suicide

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide. Detective Sergt. Bernard Crook reported that Bacas left a note saying he was going to kill himself and gave instructions for the disposition of his property.

Bacas was a patient of St. Elizabeths Hospital where he had the privilege to walk about the grounds of the institution for mental diseases. He left the hospital sometime yesterday morning. He had been sent there four months ago by the Veterans' Administration and was reportedly despondent since he was released from the service in 1946. He had been an airman since 1944.

No one was at his home when he arrived there, police said. He was found clad in his underwear on the bathroom floor by his mother, Mrs. Mabel Bacas, of that address.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aris H. Bacas; a sister, Mrs. Elaine Sharp, and two brothers, Harry and Richard Bacas.

The burial will be Friday at 9:30 a. m. in Arlington Cemetery.

Prince Georges School Head Seeks Funds

School buses loaded beyond the legal limit and 500 children without teachers were cited yesterday by Prince Georges Schools Superintendent G. Gardner Shugart in asking emergency funds for county schools.

Shugart told Prince Georges commissioners $69,545 will be required to meet needs for an unexpected increase of 500 students.

The State, he said, would provide $49,245 and the county $20,300.

In urging immediate action, Shugart said county school buses now are hauling more children than the law permits, and some children have been excluded from riding the buses. In addition, he said, an urgent need exists for 16 more teachers to care for the enrollment increase.

Shugart broke down the needed funds as follows: $48,000 for the 16 teachers; three additional school buses, $11,100; alterations to six schools to provide more classroom space, $2920; desks for 500 children, $5000; textbooks for 500 children, $1375; materials of instruction for 500 children, $850, and six teacher's desks, $300.

The Commissioners voted to approve the $20,300 emergency fund, provided Linden Briscoe, clerk to the Commissioners, finds that money can be made available from contingent funds.

The school board had expected an increase of 3000 children, Shugart said, but already the increase has amounted to 3500, and may grow to 4000 if apartment buildings and houses now under construction in the county become inhabited.

In other actions yesterday, the commissioners:

Postponed action on a report of the county grand jury, pending receipt of an official copy of the report, which recommends consolidation of county and town police forces, a lottery operated by the State, and heavier gambling law penalties.

Directed County Engineer Arthur Tayman to prepare plans and specifications for road and street construction programs, requested by residents of four special improvement districts at public hearings. The projects include Special Improvement Districts 19 and 7, Hampshire Knolls; Special Improvement District 41, Hillcrest Heights, and Special Improvement District 41, Hillcrest Gardens. Tayman was instructed to have plans for the Hillcrest Heights work ready in time for bids to be opened October 11.

Two Arlington County Board Candidates Address Association

Two of the three candidates who will compete for a seat on the Arlington County Board in November elections, spoke last night before the Highland Park-Overlee Knolls Citizens Association at Walter Reed School, 1644 N. McKinley rd.

Independent Candidate Robert W. Cox urged a "more effective, economical, business-like local government," and said he felt that "we could get more for our tax dollar."

Incumbent Democratic board member Basil M. DeLashmutt said he has "consistently supported every movement towards sound progress in the government."

"There are a lot of improvements that are desirable," he said, but he added he felt "the tax rate would have gone up much faster" if these improvements had been made more rapidly.

Cox pointed out that Arlington has the highest per capita cost for county operation and maintenance among Virginia counties, according to a State report on annual comparative costs of local government issued for the year, 1948.

Arlington Election Candidates to Talk

Three candidates for Arlington County offices will speak at 8 p. m. today before a meeting of the Better Government League of Arlington.

Addressing the session at Ashton Heights clubhouse at 413 North Irving st., Arlington, will be Robert W. Cox and Jacob Bechtel, independent candidates for the one county board seat under contention, and I. Lee Potter, Republican candidate for the House of Delegates.

Incumbent Democrats, Basil DeLashmutt of the county board, and State Delegates George Damm and J. Maynard Magruder were also invited to speak but have declined.

D. C. Raises Standards of Construction For Schools

Terrazo Floors, Tile Wainscoting, Vacuum Cleaning Systems Restored

Terrazzo floors, tile wainscoting, central vacuum cleaning systems and other trimmings will be restored to all but four future school buildings, the Commissioners ruled yesterday.

The extras were cut from school buildings as an economy measure two years ago.

Archie Hutson, director of construction for the District, said that lower building costs now permit a return to previous construction standards.

Action of the Commissioners was in response to a request by school officials who said that schools constructed with the deletions are not "first class buildings."

In addition to terrazzo floors and bases in all corridors, tile wainscoting in corridors and stairways, and central vacuum cleaning systems, the schools will have stone treads on stairs, plastering on corridor walls and ground improvements.

Plans have progressed too far on four schools to permit installation of terrazzo floors, Hutson said. The four are Shaw, Terrell and Hine Junior High Schools and Syphax Elementary School.

All but terrazzo floors will be added to these schools. Linoleum will be used on floors.

The new Spingarn High School will have terrazzo floors, Hutson said.

Citizens Group Approves Plan For College

Petworth Citizens' Association last night approved the recommendation of Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning that Wilson Teachers College be transferred to Central High School.

Meeting at Petworth branch library, the group also adopted a resolution urging the District Department of Vehicles and Traffic to install stop signs at 7th and Buchanan sts. nw., and 7th and Decatur sts. nw.

A lecture on the history of transportation was given by a representative of Capital Transit Co.

East Central Civic

Initial plans for a giant Christmas party for more than 1000 children in the area were made last night by members of the East Central Civic Association.

The association, meeting at the Bundy School, 429 O st. nw., heard Frederick Peyton, chairman of the Christmas committee, outline plans for the party, a Christmas tree and several other Yuletide activities.

The 85 members present also drafted a letter to be sent to the District Commissioners recommending the appointment of Dr. Joseph Trigg to the District Boxing Association. They commended Police Superintendent Maj. Robert Barrett for prompt police action in capturing the recent attacker of a 5-year-old neighborhood girl.

Central Northwest

The Central Northwest Citizens Association last night commended Senator Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.), the new chairman of the Senate District Committee, for his interest in District affairs.

The 35 members meeting at the Garnet Patterson Junior High School, 10th and U sts. nw., in the same resolution, called to Senator Neely's attention the "necessity for eliminating segregation" in the District and reminded him of the need for fair public housing.

The group addressed a letter to the District Health Department requesting an investigation and remedial action for the unsanitary condition of lots belonging to the Federal Government located behind 1809 and 1811 13th st. nw.

Richard Dix, Movie Actor, Dies at 54

Hollywood, Sept. 20 (U.P.)—Square-jawed Richard Dix, whose virile screen performances thrilled movie fans for a quarter of a century, died today at the age of 54 of a chronic heart ailment.

At his bedside in Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital when he died was his second wife, Virginia Webster Dix. Dix had been hospitalized since August 10, when he suffered a heart attack on a train between New York and Chicago.

RICHARD DIX
Star's heart fails

Until he suffered his first attack a year ago, Dix had remained active in pictures. He was still popular with movie fans who month in and month out sent him fan mail and followed his career.

Born in St. Paul

The rugged actor's real name was Ernest Carleton Brimmer. He was born July 18, 1895, in St. Paul, Minn.

Dix was proud of his ancestry. He was a direct descendent of John Brimmer and Elizabeth Manchester who crossed the Atlantic aboard the Mayflower to settle at Plymouth.

He attended grammar and high schools in St. Paul and then spent a few terms at the University of Minnesota and Northwestern University before he decided to become an actor.

After appearing with stock companies in Illinois and New York, he was brought to Hollywood by Oliver Morosco to play in stock here and in 1921 landed his first picture role in "Not Guilty."

In a few years he rose to stardom an damong his successes were "The Vanishing American," "The Quarterback," "Womanhandled," "Paradise For Two" and "The Redskin."

"Cimarron" Role Held Greatest

Perhaps his greatest performance was opposite Irene Dunne in "Cimarron."

Dix led a conservative existence away from the studio and did not squander his earnings as a star. He was rated a millionaire and when not appearing in pictures he spent his time on a large ranch he owned near Hollywood.

He was married twice. His first wife was Winifred Coe. That marriage ended in divorce in Mexico 15 years ago. A year later he married Miss Webster, who had been his secretary.

The actor had a daughter, Mary Ellen, by his first wife, and twin sons, Richard Archie and Robert Warren, 11, and a daughter, Sara Sue, 8, by his second wife.

Dr. Leonarde Keeler

Sturgeon Bay, Wis., Sept. 20. (U.P.).—Dr. Leonarde Keeler, 46, credited with perfecting the lie detector, died today.

Keeler, who also waged a long fight for acceptance of lie detector tests as corroborating evidence in courts, had suffered a stroke earlier this month. His home was in Chicago.

The principle of the lie detector was discovered in 1895, but Keeler was credited with refinement of the instrument and its wide use and acceptance.

Road Plan Perils Mill Built Year Washington Was Born

Post Reporter

The slashes and thrusts of wreckers' tools are threatening the old Diggs Mill near Mason Springs, Md., a Charles County landmark built 217 years ago.

Maryland State Roads Commission officials confirmed yesterday that it may be necessary to raze the mill to make way for highway improvements.

There has been no organized complaint yet, but several residents of the area, it is reported, have expressed dismay over the possible destruction of a mill that was built in 1732—the year George Washington was born.

For the last 56 years, the flour mill has been operated by E. E. Millard, who is a sturdy 83 years old. He lives with his wife in a home on a hill beside the mill.

The mill is about 35 miles south of Washington just east of Mason Springs which itself is about 6 miles east of Indian Head. The mill is on Route 225, the Indian Head-La Plata road.

Proposed improvements to Route 225 pose the threat to the old mill.

Joseph Chaney, a roads commission engineer whose office is in Upper Marlboro, explained yesterday how progress has come to menace the past.

Present plans, he said, call for widening the macadam highway and eliminating curves. The right-of-way which passes the old mill is to be widened from 30 to 80 feet.

Chaney said the line as drawn now would include the mill in the expanded right-of-way. Facing the direction of Indian Head, he said, the line could be moved to the right to avoid the mill.

But that would pose another problem. The right-of-way would then affect a garage and gas station a short distance downhill from the mill which are owned by the miller's son, O. E. Millard. The gas station but not the garage would fall in the right-of-way.

Chaney said that he has talked to both Millard and his son and no decision has yet been reached.

Chaney said he is not unaware of the historical significance attached to the mill for he has been the roads engineer in that district for more than 30 years.

He said he doubted construction work could start before late this year or early next year because surveying must be completed, plans drawn and contract bids sought.

A spokesman for the Maryland State Historical Society in Baltimore expressed interest in the situation when notified. He said he would confer today with the Society for Preservation of Maryland Antiquities.

He said it was probable that the latter society, which works closely with the Historical Society, would send a representative to inspect the old mill and to talk to neighbors.

Col. Koenig's Funeral Rites Set Thursday

Funeral services for Col. Theodore J. Koenig, 57, former chief of staff of the Air Transport Command, will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday at Fort Myer Chapel, with burial in Arlington Cemetery.

Col. Koenig

Colonel Koenig succumbed Sunday at Walter Reed Hospital after an illness of several months. He was director of supply and services for the Military Air Transport Service until last spring, when illness forced him to relinquish the post.

One of the early Army airmen, he received his wings shortly after World War I at Kelly Field in Texas. In 1922, he won the Liberty Engine Builders trophy at the National Air Races with his expert piloting of a two-seated observation biplane.

In World War II, Colonel Koenig served as executive director of the Army Air Force Strategic Bombing Survey in Europe.

Prior to his assignment to the Air Transport Command (later the Military Air Transport Service) in 1947 at Andrews Air Force Base, he was head of Intelligence in the Office of Military Government for Germany.

Colonel Koenig was born in Elmira, N. Y., and attended the University of Michigan. He served as an infantry lieutenant in the first war.

He also had served as military attache for air, beginning in 1937, in Berlin. Upon his return to this country, he commanded the Advance Pilot's School, Mariana, Fla.

He held the Distinguished Service Medal, which he received recently for outstanding achievement as assistant chief and chief of staff of the ATS; and the Legion of Merit, French Legion of Honor, and the Bronze Star Medal.

Colonel Koenig resided at the Shoreham Hotel. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Laura H. Koenig, his mother, Mrs. Caroline Koenig, of Buffalo, N. Y., and a sister, Mrs. Roy E. Johnson, of Alexandria.

Among honorary pallbearers will be Maj. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, Maj. Gen. Caleb V. Haynes, Col. Wentworth Goss, and Lieut. Col. Ralph B. Lister.

Dr. Robert P. Winterode

Baltimore, Sept. 19 (AP).—Dr. Robert P. Winterode, 74, superintendent of Crownsville State Hospital for 36 years, died here yesterday after a week's illness.

Dr. Winterode, a native of Baltimore County, was named head of the mental institution for Negroes when it was founded in 1911. At that time it had 12 patients, who helped construct its first log buildings. When he retired in 1947, Crownsville had 1650 patients and a staff of 168.

Dr. Winterode is survived by a son, Robert P. Winterode, jr., of Horners, Va., and two daughters, Mrs. Paul Condit of Baltimore, and Mrs. Stuart Pitt of Annapolis.

Peyton Conway Roberts

Orange, Va., Sept. 20.—Peyton Conway Roberts, 57, died of a heart ailment at his home near Rapidan this afternoon. A funeral service will be held Thursday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, at Waddell Presbyterian Church, Rapidan, of which he was an elder. Interment will be in the church cemetery.

Mr. Roberts is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lulu Waugh Roberts; a daughter, Miss Elizabeth Morgan Roberts, of Washington, and three sons, Peyton Carl, James Waugh and Lewis Shelton Roberts of Rapidan.

George Shiels

Dublin, Sept. 20 (U.P.).—George Shiels, Irish playwright, died today after a prolonged illness. He was 63.

Shiel's plays helped make the Abbey Theater world famous. They included "The New Geseen," "Professor Time," "Paul Twyning" and "The Rugged Path."

John Barse Rites Today; Civic Leader

Funeral services for John W. Barse, 96, Washington civic leader, who as a youth was accosted by Union cavalrymen searching for the assassin of President Lincoln, will be held at 11 a. m. today at the Lee funeral home, 4th st. and Massachusetts ave. ne. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

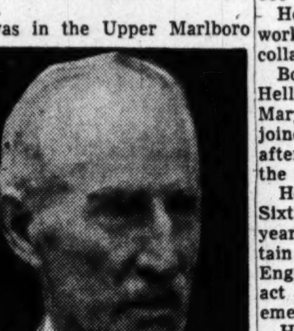

Mr. Barse, who was the father of Chief Judge George P. Barse of Municipal Court, died in his sleep Monday at his home, 1363 B st. se.

A member of the Lincoln Park Citizens Association for almost half a century, he served for many years as the group's membership secretary and as its delegate to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Questioned by Cavalrymen

One of his favorite anecdotes concerned April 15, 1865, when, as a 12-year-old boy he was delivering mail on horseback near Upper Marlboro. He was halted and questioned by Union cavalrymen looking for John Wilkes Booth, who shot President Lincoln the night before.

It was in the Upper Marlboro area that Mr. Barse farmed for several years and built a log cabin in which his youngest surviving son, Judge Barse, was born.

JOHN W. BARSE
Passes at 96

A native of Plum Point, Md., he came to Washington in 1888 and built his own house here. A carpenter by trade, he worked at the old Pennsylvania Railroad roundhouse at 2d and Canal sts. se., then for several contractors, before joining the staff at St. Elizabeth's Hospital as maintenance carpenter. He retired in 1925, to take a more active interest in civic groups, including the Associaton of the Oldest Inhalitants.

Advocated Liquor Taxation

He strongly advocated taxing the liquor industry for the rehabilitation of drunkards and for the aid of widows of men who died of alcoholism.

In 1937, at the age of 83, he ridiculed the suggestion that Supreme Court justices be required to resign at the age of 70.

At 93 he fell off his roof. But it was not until he was 95 that a traffic accident caused him to soft pedal his civic activities.

He suffered a fractured right leg when struck by a car at 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw.—while he was en route to a federation meeting.

He is survived by four children, Judge Barse, William F. Barse, Mrs. Cora V. Willard, all of Washington, and Mrs. Clara M. Frost, of San Francisco; three grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Boy, 5, Bruised In Collision With Motorcycle

A five-year-old boy, rolling down hill seated on a book on a roller skate, suffered cuts and bruises and a possible fractured knee last night when his momentum carried him between the wheels of a slowly-moving motorcycle.

The child Robert Davis, the son of Mrs. Lucille Davis, had just passed his house at 1213 Penn st. ne., when the motorcycle eased out of an alley alongside the house. The child rolled between the wheels.

The motorcycle was operated by John J. Cornelius, 21, a mechanic who lives at 915 Penn st. ne. The child was admitted to Sibley Hospital.

Children Find Dead Man Behind Abandoned Bus

The body of Walter T. Lowery, 50, of Saltville, Va., was found yesterday in the rear of an abandoned bus at N. Henry and Cameron sts. in Alexandria by two children who were playing on the top of the vehicle.

Alexandria police called medical examiner John A. Simms, who examined the body. Simms said death was apparently due to natural causes.

Papers found in the man's pockets indicated he had worked in coal mines in West Virginia recently and that in 1946 he was employed at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Capt. Hellmuth

Capt. Hellmuth died of a heart attack at his home in North Beach, Md., where he had been living since a heart ailment forced his retirement from the department in 1930.

During his 29 years as a fireman, Capt. Hellmuth received numerous commendations for his work. His first commendation came in 1909 after he had rescued four persons trapped on three levels of a burning house at 500 H st. nw.

He was also commended for his work in the Knickerbocker Theater collapse in 1922.

Born in Washington, Captain Hellmuth was educated at St. Mary's Parochial School here. He joined the Fire Department in 1901 after a hitch in the Navy during the Spanish-American War.

He rose to lieutenant of the Sixth Engine Co. in 1923, and three years later was promoted to captain and transferred to the Second Engine Co. He was authorized to act as battalion chief during emergencies in 1927.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Margaret Hellmuth, and his stepson, Edward Webb, both of North Beach; two sisters, Mrs. Harry Meitzler, 5316 Kansas ave. nw.; and Mrs. Joseph Schulz, 523 12th st. ne.; and two brothers, Robert J. Hellmuth, 1213 W st. se., and George I. Hellmuth, 910 Irving st. ne.

C. I. Jones, Jr., Of La Plata, Dies at Sea

La Plata, Sept. 20 (AP).—Charles Irwin Jones, jr., former associate editor of the weekly Times-Crescent here, has died of a severe asthma attack aboard ship en route home from Europe.

Mr. Jones' parents said today they received the message from the Polish liner Sobiesky, which sailed from France and docked in New York today.

Mr. Jones, known for his historical pieces about southern Maryland as well as his poetry, left for Europe a year ago to become communications officer at Paris for the Economic Cooperation Administration.

The younger Jones served two years on the La Plata newspaper, and before this he was with the United States Soil Conservation Service in St. Mary's County.

Funeral services have been scheduled tentatively for Christ Episcopal Church here Thursday. Burial is to be in Crisfield.

James P. Martin

Sutherland, Iowa, Sept. 20 (AP).—James P. Martin, 101, Civil War veteran who was on guard duty at the Ford Theater the night President Lincoln was assassinated, died here this afternoon.

Martin was Iowa's last surviving veteran of the Civil War. He had been ill for several months.

William B. Randolph

Norfolk, Va., Sept 20—(AP)—William B. Randolph, 58, widely known Norfolk architect and member of the firm of Randolph, Cooke and van Leeuven, died in the Virginia Beach Hospital today at 7:45 a. m.

He had been in ill health for some time and was removed to the hospital for treatment five days ago.

Charles L. Chappel

Long Beach, Calif., Sept. 20 (AP). Charles L. Chappel, 102, one of the last of the Boys in Blue, died last night, his greatest wish ungratified.

Chappel, despite ill health, flew last month to the last encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, in Indianapolis. He had always hoped to be its commander. Last year he was named senior vice commander.

But the handful of veterans of the Civil War decided to disband without electing a national commander.

Woman Leads In Greenbelt, May Be Mayor

Early returns in the Greenbelt election for five council seats indicated a relatively light vote and a close race which probably will require a run-off election.

A total of 977, or about 58 per cent of the 1692 eligible voters cast ballots. In the last council election, in 1947, 1519 voted.

Leading in the early returns with 465 votes was Mrs. Elizabeth T. Harrington, a council incumbent.

If she maintains her lead she probably will be Greenbelt's first woman mayor, since the council traditionally elects as mayor the councilman who received the largest vote.

In addition to Mrs. Harrington, early returns showed the following, Mayor Thomas J. Canning, 349; Frank G. Lastner, 331; Mike Salzman, 275; James Wolfe, 231; Bruce Bowman, 200; A. C. Long, 202; Steve L. Comings, 211; Walter Bierwagon, 224; T. George Davidson, 117; Mrs. Margaret Carmody, 59.

A run-off election, if necessary, would be held next Tuesday. In the running would be the leading candidates—twice the number of vacancies left by the initial election.

The campaign this year was subdued. Most talked about was the problem of future disposition of Greenbelt. All candidates agreed that the community should be sold to residents for their own use, though there were some differences of opinion as to methods.

Mrs. Harrington, a mother of two youngsters aged 9 and 11, is a former teacher at the Mississippi State Teachers College for Women. Her husband is Wells Harrington, a Navy employe.

Air Conditioning Fire Routs 40 at Bassin's

Smoke from a smoldering fire in the air-conditioning unit at Bassin's Restaurant, 1347 E st. nw., last night drove some 40 patrons into the street but did little damage.

According to Mrs. Sarah Bassin, wife of the owner, the fire apparently was caused when a lighted cigarette was dropped through a register and into the air-conditioning unit. A handful of customers remained seated while firemen extinguished the fire.

A veteran of both world wars, Colonel Coleman served as adjutant at Camp Lee before he went overseas in World War II.

He leaves a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Coleman Janatka of Appomatto; three sisters, Mrs. Vivian McGaughy and Mrs. George Brown, W. Kash of Lynchburg, and two both of Norfolk, and Mrs. Robert brothers, John D. Coleman of Hampton, and Capt. George D. Coleman of Appomattox.

Rumors Fly With Leaves

Brief Profiles Penned Of a Devoted Marquess And a Chic Capitalite

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

LATELY so many non-official reports have been circulated about the Marquess of Milford Haven and Washington's Mrs. "Tudi" Pierce Simpson, that a brief geneological dissertation won't come amiss. Mrs. Simpson who's in her early twenties, is a daughter of svelte brunette Mrs. Clark McIlwaine who, among the conservatively style conscious, is rated among the top handful of the Capital's best dressed women. Her father was the late Vincent Pierce, a brother of Josiah Pierce, who lived some years ago across from the huge boxlike Wylie house on Thomas Circle. Bill Simpson, to whom she was married briefly, is a son of James, who was manager and most successful promoter of the Chicago Marshall Field store.

The three Simpson sons have done quite a stint of marrying. The eldest, Jimmy, Jr., first wed Ella Snelling, a Boston belle; next Beth Morse, a Chicago ditto. Jack, Bill's twin, has been divorced and Bill himself has been wed to three exceedingly attractive young women, first Beatrice de Menocal, daughter of Back Bay's Daniel de Menocals, then Tudi, and now to Constance Hasler, who is a niece of Prentiss L. Coonley.

Tudi has a small, most enchanting baby daughter. She's really glamorous, in true American fashion—slight, chic, glistening, shoulder length hair (at least her hair was shoulder length five months ago when she went to Europe). The published photographs, which were taken many years ago, don't do her any kind of justice.

His Ancestry

MILFORD Haven, who previously has been publicized as an admirer of Sharman Douglas, made quite a hit last year in New York's more glittery bistros. Though everyone, by this time, knows all about young David Michael, his ancestry can be capsuled as follows: He is the third Marquess of Milford Haven, a second cousin of King George VI, a nephew of the Earl Mountbatten of Burma and a son of the second Marquess (older brother of Earl Mountbatten) who died in 1938 and Countess Nadeja de Torby. She is a daughter of the late Grand Duke Michael Michaelovitch of Russia by his morganatic marriage to the Countess de Torby.

Mentioning Marshall Field brings to mind that British taxes and high upkeep costs have forced Ronald Tree to sell Dytchley, one of the most fabulous country estates in England.

Dytchley, at Enstone in Oxfordshire, during the past year has been photographed for Vogue and other slick magazines, with Ronnie's second wife, Marietta Peabody, granddaughter of the late Dr. Endicott Peabody, founder and headmaster of Groton, as chief ornament. The Trees are quitting Dytchley in full glory, with a series of weekend parties with guests, like Ambassador and Mrs. David Bruce, coming from Paris and the continent. Before November the Trees will be in New York, where they plan to live for the time being.

Ronnie Tree is a grandson of the first Marshall Field. Ronnie's father was English and his mother later married one of Britain's most famous seadogs, the Earl Beatty.

Show to Honor Devers

FRIDAY, September 30, at Fort Lesley J. McNair (the War College) Gen. J. Lawton Collins will put on his first official show as new Chief of Staff. The "show" will be a retirement parade in honor of Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commanding General of the Army Field Forces. Since General Devers' most recent function has been training, he has no troops actually under his personal command. So the Third Infantry from Fort Myer, and probably a supplementary regiment from Fort Meade, will strut their stuff.

A retreat or retirement parade is one of the mores of our armed service. No one knows just where or when the custom commenced. We adopted it from European armies when we became a Nation, and this traditional mark of respect to retiring commanders has been handed down ever since.

The military service, incidentally, has many customs of curious origin. Do you know why three volleys are invariably fired over the grave of a soldier? Well, it all started back in the twelfth or thirteenth century when gunpowder first began to be used extensively. Soldiers in all Christian countries instead of firing one, fire three volleys to represent the Holy Trinity.

Sword and Pistol Play

MOST enticing bit of gibble-gabble to hit Washington in many a moon is the tale of a duel in a far-off country. The fierce contenders were a topdrawer diplomat, an even loftier statesman. The "bone" of contention, so to speak, was a dazzing Capital beauty. The story goes that neither of the hot-blooded gentlemen in question received as much as a nick. Presumably, they're back at their jobs relaxed and cooled down after letting off steam. It sounds such fun! What Washington needs, we feel, these early autumn days is a stimulating round of sword and pistol play!

Ever Tried a Sauna?

HOW WOULD you like to go to a Sauna? If you're in Finland, you follow the 100-year-old custom and go out to take a bath.

Want to try it—the sauna? First you'll enter a wooden bath house, disrobe completely. You'll huddle over a bench while water is poured over a red-hot stove. Soon you'll be enveloped in almost scalding steam. After the steamroom you'll be massaged with birch branches until your skin becomes lobster pink. Then you'll scamper nude for a dip in the icy Baltic Sea. You'll repeat the steam-room and dip, plush the switching, several times. Then, if you're a Finn, you'll sensibly take a rest. But being an American, you'll probably reach for a drink.

That's exactly what six United States magazine and newspaper women did on a three-week visit to Finland. Mrs. Vera Clay of Newsweek magazine told the story at the Women's National Press Club's luncheon yesterday honoring the Finnish Minister and Madame Jutila.

Mrs. Hope Ridings Miller of Promenade Magazine reported that Hertta Kussinen, who heads the Communist Party in the Parliament, yearns to be the Anna Pauker of Finland. "Incidentally, she was the only dark-eyed woman I saw in all that blue-eyed country," said Hope.

Mrs. Sarah McClendon of McClendon News Service termed housing Finland's greatest problem. She was impressed that each Finnish housewife is given a three weeks' vacation annually by the government. And each mother-to-be, regardless of financial standing, receives a cash award and a free layette.

Other writers reporting on the trip were Mrs. Mary Lea Page of Ladies Home Journal; Mrs. Esther Van Wagoner Tufty of Tufty News Bureau, and Miss Martha Strayer of the Washington Daily News.

Rounding out the word picture of Finland, Minister Jutila predicted more paper pulp for the United States. He attributed the increase to devaluation of the Finnish mark.

Agricultural self-sufficiency in Finland now has reached 65 percent and is continuing to rise, he said. Production of metal has doubled and other industries have topped prewar levels, he reported.

Slimming Tips to Teen-Agers

High-Test Foods Will Keep You Healthy, Happy

(This is the third of 12 articles on teen-age slimming.)

By Ida Jean Kain

PULL over to the curb, teen-agers, and check to see if you are hitting on all sixteen cylinders, nutrition-wise.

One time in giving a talk to a teen-age group I asked which they would choose, high-test or regular gas if they were the same price. "High-test!" they shouted. Natch . . . it gives more power.

IDA JEAN KAIN

That's the way it it with food. Certain foods give more power. If I can get you in the right food pattern with grade A nutrition in your formative years, I can help you to be happy, healthy, clear-complexioned and normal weight.

Here's inside informaion. All foods furnish fuel which is used for energy, or stored as body fat when the fuel calories exceed the number used. But in addition to fuel for energy, certain protective foods furnish an abundance of building materials needed for strong bones good teeth, sound nervous system and good muscle tissue. Why not choose the best . . . the high-test foods?

During the growing-up years, more of the body-building materials are required—more minerals vitamins and protein. In terms of food, milk and cheese, whole grain or enriched cereal and bread, vegetables, fruits, meat, eggs and butter. These foods contribute so many of the essentials that they are called "protective foods."

But you have to eat what your mother cooks, you chubby overweights will point out. True, but you don't have to overeat, and it's only overeating that adds padding. And you can cut the fattening calories through the trimmings. Trim the fat from the meat, skip gravy, and keep away from fried foods as much as possible. Perhaps you can persuade your mother to broil meats and fish, instead of frying everything. Watch all fats. Go light on mayonnaise or French dressing and budget the butter or margarine.

You must not cut down on any of the protective foods. Take one helping of everything served—meat, vegetables, one slice of bread and a small potato, and drink your milk. But go easy on dessert—perhaps you can have a piece of fruit.

You don't have to "diet" to lose the extra pounds. Eat the good wholesome food at meals but cut out seconds . . . don't stuff to belt-bulging proportions. That way you'll feel as if you could eat more, but ten minutes later you'll be happy and satisfied. If you'll follow this plan and stop eating between meals, you'll lose.

Petticoats Smart This Fall

IF YOU'RE not a petticoat fan yet, you ought to be. For nothing makes the new dresses look as well and hang as well as wearing them over a crisp taffeta or slipper satin petticoat.

Petticoats are a "must" with full skirts, of course. And when you are once used to them, you'll want to wear them with slim skirts too—even suits. So you really need a petticoat wardrobe—one full, one slim, and one ankle length for evening.

Child's Day Needs Laughs

There should be many laughs in a child's day. Not malicious laughter that hints of ridicule, but just honest joyous laughter that makes one want to laugh with them. If there is not natural gayety in the home, it must be brought in in other ways—a colorful book, amusing stories, a visit to see Mickey Mouse or a puppet show. Of course, the best laughter is when the family makes it among themselves. The child is poor indeed whose parents have no sense of humor.

Young Wife Who Had Thought Her Marriage Was Happy Is Stunned When Husband Admits He No Longer Loves Her and Asks a Divorce

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Six months ago my husband came to me and told me that he no longer loved me, was unhappy with me and wanted a divorce. There was no other woman, he said. I was stunned, as I had thought we had a very happy marriage.

My first reaction was to give him the divorce, but instead I pleaded with him to give our marriage another chance for the sake of our two children—who are one and three years old, respectively. He agreed to try some more, and since then I have done everything in my power to make him happy, but I can't help feeling it is useless.

He is kind and thoughtful of me, but the affection and tenderness and mutual understanding is gone from our relationship. Still I love Dick desperately and am just about beside myself with grief, knowing he no longer loves me.

Should we keep on, as is, for the sake of the children? Or is divorce the only answer? We have many interests in common and the sexual aspect of our marriage has been very satisfactory. I am 24 years old.
V. V.

Real Attachment Exists Latently

DEAR V. V.: In a man's psychology of love, there is a difference between being "in love" and feeling a protective devotion, or sense of obligation, to a woman.

When a man construes himself to be "in love" he is smitten, bewitched, hypnotized and/or intoxicated by the lady, and his mind and body seem drawn to her involuntarily, as by incalculable voltage of mysterious magnetism.

In essence, and in most cases, this is apt to be a manifestation of sex attraction and unsatisfied sex hunger in the ascendant. And if marriage ensues and the contracting couple haven't brought to their relationship a serious ethical or religious concept of the sanctity and permanency of marriage, a distressing letdown in sentiment or purpose may follow after a time, as routine familiarity blights the "magic" of being together.

It seems that something of the kind has overtaken Dick, and that in his dismay he feels driven to confess, with rather childish selfish candor, that he no longer "loves" you. However, it appears that he has some latent, more mature sense of real attachment or protective obligation to you; and it is possible that by building on this, you may pull through together, out of this "Slough of Despond," and find increasing comfort in each other's company as the years roll on.

Needs Special Aids In Acute Depression

IT IS a hopeful sign, and commendable of Dick, that he is being kind and thoughtful, and disciplining himself to give the marriage "another chance,"—and I think you were wise to cast out pride and plead from the heart, when his tentative bid for release was made. But in a period of conjugal trial such as this, when the soul of each is clouded with oppressive doubts, it's hardly possible to "solve" things without recourse to special aid.

The special aids I would suggest are: 1. Prayer, keyed to church going, and if possible the arrangement of a friendly consultative relationship with one's pastor, for ease of mind when anxiety weighs most heavily. 2. A psychiatric review, perhaps in one session, of your "expectations" of marriage or conjugal love, and in particular a careful inquiry into the question of whether the sexual adjustment is as good as you fancy.

By taking these steps to (1) strengthen your spirit and (2) enlarge your understanding, you will be indirectly reducing the threat of divorce, and preparing yourself to meet with composure whatever circumstances the future unfolds.
M. H.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

Extracts for Flavoring

When purchasing vanilla, lemon or other flavoring for cakes and puddings, be sure the label indicates a high percentage of alcohol in the extract. It is necessary to hold the heavy extracts in solution and result in a better flavor and clearer extract.

Sun Fashions From Guatemala

About Sending Food to Israel

Is there an organization in Washington which sends food packages to Israel, on the same order as CARE? I would appreciate learning their address and telephone number.

Mrs. M. K.

By agreement with the Israeli government CARE is now shipping parcels—tax, ration and duty free—to Israel. Delivery is guaranteed. These parcels can be sent through the CARE office at 1344 Connecticut ave. (Telephone Columbia 9230.)

Unlike CARE packages to some other European countries, individuals in Israel will be allowed to receive only up to one package a month. The adult package includes kosher food, the contents of which have been passed upon by the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America.

Three kosher baby food parcels may be sent to one individual in one month.

The contents of the adult kosher parcel which can be sent for $10, including packing and shipping, are: 2 pounds beef, 15 ounces veal, 3 pounds vegetable shortening, 2 pounds whole milk powder, 3 pounds rice, 2 cans evaporated milk, 1 pound coffee, 1 pound cheese, 15 ounces red salmon (canned), 1 pound butter.

The kosher baby food parcel which can also be sent for $10 contains: 10 pounds whole dried milk, 2 pounds sugar, 8 ounces cod liver oil, 12 cans each of strained and chopped baby food, 1½ pounds toilet soap.

I would appreciate it if you could advise me on any places which sell extra-length clothes, since I have been unable to locate them.

A Reader.

The better dress departments of some department stores and specialty shops carry dresses made especially for the vary tall girl. These dresses are made as long as 48 inches from nape of neck to hem line. If you are not tall, but wish a dress made ankle length, it seems these must be made to order. The demand is not great enough for them to be made in quantity by dress manufacturers.

I wonder if you could put me in contact with a greeting card club which mails cards out for any occasion such as birthdays, etc. I am interested in doing this work at home myself and would like to find out how it is handled, such as rate of charge to customers, filing system to use, etc.

Mrs. R. B.

Could some of our readers give Mrs. R. B. information about greeting card clubs?

If you'd use paper cups, Petunia—same as for cupcakes—you'd have attractively molded individual salads—with no washing up afterward.

THE old town is waking up. Guy Lombardo's at the Statler, Sandy Williams opens in the Palladium Room at the Shoreham Friday, and Cesar Gonzart, with the best Latin music outside the tropics, is in the Mayflower Lounge.

Add to this the cabarets—the Charioteers are at the Blue Mirror, and the Casino Royale this week has a team fresh from Hollywood and Broadway.

Nikoli, Paul and Shari are their names. They have polish, confidence, and the ability to convince. These three do a South Seas dance that is exotic and totally different. But their smoothness is such that it goes over at once. Oriental dances are also their specialty, and just as sure fire.

With them are Raye Motte and Petro, a comedy acrobatic act that's clever if a little juvenile in presentation.

DUNCAN HINE'S tasters and samplers must be everywhere, or he couldn't put out his thousands of recommendations for good eating yearly. But still you rarely see or hear of one.

The other evening in Olmsted's Restaurant there was an honest to goodness fleshly representative of Duncan Hines. Tasting a baked crab in the shell. With a huge Idaho baked potato.

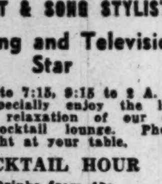

He said that he was connected with promotion work which kept him traveling constantly. But also, his business was to eat the finest food, wherever he went.

"And this," he said, referring to Olmsted's, "is one of the best. I go everywhere, but somehow I always come back here."

Appreciation of the finest seems to be the key to the personalities of the owners, Leonard Mitchell and James Brahms. When I asked them the reason they had come to Washington to go into the restaurant business, they both remarked that they loved to eat. Mitchell particularly is subject to the creative urge and will trot off to the kitchen to originate a new dish.

Service, too, they feel should be of the finest. Their waiters observe niceties of serving seldom remembered hereabouts. And at the mere hint of a lapse, they may be sure they will have a pained and disturbed Mitchell and Brahms upbraiding them. For their attitude is that of connoisseurs, and food, drink, and its handling are the pleasures of life.

U. of Virginia To Get Science Hall Addition

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 20. (Spl.).—President Colgate W. Darden today announced that contracts totaling $262,327.58 have been let for an addition to the University of Virginia's engineering building, Thornton Hall, for a high-voltage and chemical engineering laboratory.

The Laburnum Construction Co. of Richmond was awarded the general construction contract of $197,316; F. E. Robertson Co., Richmond, the electrical contract of $22,100; J. E. Hawley, Richmond, the heating and ventilating contract of $25,136.58, and William H. White, jr., & Co., Richmond, the plumbing contract at $17,775.

Grading has been completed under the supervision of Frank H. Hartman, who is in charge of new construction for the University of Virginia. Digging the foundations can be started in a few days.

The high voltage laboratory will be three stories high, but will be contained in a single unit without intermediate floors and without windows.

The chemical engineering laboratory will be on four floor levels, with a pilot plant laboratory and a unit operations laboratory extending through it.

Included will be a high pressure laboratory, a grinding and crushing laboratory, a process control instrument laboratory with an air compressor and refrigerator room, a machine shop and locker rooms and toilets on the first floor. The second floor will house research laboratories for undergraduate students, and the third floor will include class rooms, seminar rooms and offices.

Lyons Den

NEW YORK.—Lucky Luciano soon may bring a libel suit against the chief of the Narcotics Bureau in Washington. Luciano, denying any interest in the narcotics racket, has offered to submit himself for questioning, but to no avail. A libel suit, he believes, will give him the platform he wants, to prove his innocence . . . Robert E. Hannegan, who made Harry Truman President, predicts that Truman will be a candidate again in '52 . . . Of the five judges on Israel's new Supreme Court, one was educated in London, a second in Holland, a third in Belgium, a fourth in Berlin and a fifth at New York University Law School.

* * * *

After announcing the devaluation of the British pound, Sir Stafford Cripps made an unannounced trip to New York Sunday afternoon to lunch with Fleur and Gardner Cowles. He told them that before the current Washington conference, America's attitude toward England was like a man's attitude toward a shady lady whose name was too embarrassing to discuss. "But now it's changed," said Cripps, "to one of a respectable, well-kept wife" . . . Jackie Robinson, Larry Doby and Roy Campanella will barnstorm with two Negro teams, after the season is over . . . The current Red trial has cost the party $300,000. Every time Judge Media jails a defendant, the money pours in.

The Prince of Yemen, Saif L. Islam, decided that his country needed 10 million dollars and that this money could be obtained under the Marshall Plan. He went to Washington and applied for the loan. He was told that the problem was not a difficult one, but that he'd have to submit a financial statement before the negotiations could begin. "The word of the Prince of Yemen should be enough," said Saif, and refused to submit a financial statement . . . His three-day visit in Washington extended to three months, and he just went home. "If they won't take my word for 10 million dollars," was his parting message, "no American concessionaire will get any oil concessions in Yemen."

At 4 a. m. on Fifth ave., Ethel Merman spotted a Western Union messenger, backed the startled man against a show window and sang "Happy Birthday" to him . . . Ilse Koch will be released from prison at the end of this month, and then will be turned over to the German courts. But legal experts who have studied the evidence believe that she cannot be convicted, and so she'll be free . . . Happy Chandler has observers at all the contenders' games, to make sure that the opposing teams use their best pitchers, pinch-hitters, etc . . . George Raft, incidentally, saw Chandler in the Stork Club last week, and in referring to the gambling incident in Leo Durocher's apartment some seasons back, assured him: "I got a bum rap."

Training for Safety

It's only natural that parents should want to protect their children from injury and danger of any sort. Often, our efforts to do this are centered in developing avoidance techniques. We fear that our youngsters might cut themselves, so we don't allow them to have knives. We read about children drowning, so we forbid them to swim. We know that there can be serious bicycle accidents, so bicycle riding is "verboten."

In the long run, this approach is not wise. It is far better that we help our growing young ones learn how to handle potentially dangerous situations without harm to themselves. Trusting a youngster with a knife after showing him how it should be used is the best insurance against injury.

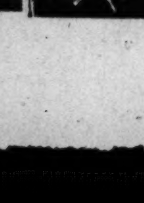

Helping children learn thoroughly the skills of bicycle riding and swimming coupled with the development of an understanding of wise precautions is sound.

It's hard, at times, to take this course. But for the welfare of the child and for the development of good mental health, training for safety is better than what the youngsters call "molly-coddling."

This Funny World

"Here comes a-box-of-crackers-and-a-can-of-soup. His wife's on vacation"

During the fall of the year it is interesting to collect the seeds of the different plants in your flower garden. If you did not do any more than explore the contents of each "seed cradle," it would be interesting to see what kinds of seeds are produced and how many. Some tiny plants produce large seeds, and some tall plants grow thousands of tiny seeds.

To collect and save the seeds it is necessary to be sure that they are perfectly dry and are mature. In selecting the seed choose only the largest and finest blooms and be sure not to mix them with weeds or other varieties.

To prevent mixing, place the seeds in envelopes, pill boxes, small bottles, or jars. It is important that you label them by lettering or drawing a picture of the blossom on a small tag and pasting it on the container. If paper envelopes or boxes are used, they should be put in tin boxes or large jars. The fruits of your foresight will be reaped next summer.

TOMORROW — PAINT AND PIN UP PAPER PENNANTS.

BEES

Q. Beman had a small orchard on the edge of town, adjacent to a highway. He was told that bees would help pollenation of his trees, as well as provide honey, so he put five hives in the orchard near the highway. A couple of townsmen complained that the bees had attacked them as they walked along the highway. Then one day several of them flew into a car and stung the woman driver, who in her excitement drove into a tree. She demands damages of Beman for her injuries. Is he liable?

A. The owner of domestic animals, such as dogs, is not responsible for injuries caused by their ferociousness until he has had notice of their bad habits (every dog is entitled to one bite). But he who keeps wild creatures is responsible for the harm they cause without notice of their evil dispositions. Because bees are useful, and can be fairly well controlled, the law has come to regard them as domestic creatures rather than wild ones, and to apply the less stringent rule. Unless the jury found that the previous attacks on walking townsmen constituted notice of viciousness, which is unlikely, Beman would not be liable for the woman's injuries.—F. L. D.

Cases discussed illustrate general principles. They should not be construed as legal advice in particular cases. Take your legal problems to your lawyer.

BARNABY

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Anybody Want to Try a Daredevil Stunt?

E. H. Dennis of 3309 Du Bois pl. se. wonders whether anybody has ever crossed the street on the south side of Barney Circle in the rush hour and lived to tell the tale.

BOB ISN'T FORWARD

It was a 90-cent ride, so he handed the driver a bill, debarked from the cab, and walked away.

But the hacker wouldn't let it go at that. Pulling abreast of his departed fare, he shouted: "Hey—do you know how much tip you gave me?"

The passenger's first reaction was mild annoyance. "What's the matter," he thought, "isn't a dime enough any more?" Aloud he said: "Yeah—I gave you a dollar."

"Your mistake, mister," said the driver. "It was a five. Here's your change."

And with that he drove off—leaving behind a brand new booster for Washington's cab drivers.

"I was so surprised," says the passenger, "that I forgot to get his number or name. As a matter of fact, I don't think you should use my name, either—because I'm Bob Forward, sr. (904 Highland dr., Silver Spring, Md.), and since Bob, jr., has made the column three times, he's sort of appropriated the name by now."

Inasmuch as Mr. Forward is so backward about poaching on Junior's territory, I'll credit the item to Mr. Drawrof. "Bob" spelled backward is still Bob.

GOODBY TO PIED TYPE DEPT.

From the earliest days of this column's existence, we've had fun with errant typesetters and woolgathering proofreaders—those who work for our contemporaries, and our own as well.

But sharp-eyed readers have lately been turning up so many of these "Pied Type Dept." items that it now becomes necessary to call a halt. Otherwise we'd have room for nothing else.

To give you some idea of how the mail has been running, let me acknowledge with thanks (and regrets) typographical errors contributed by the following:

PERSONAL NOTES

B. R. Hill, 5706 67th ave., Riverdale, Md.: A fair trade, and I'm going to hold you to the promise. If everybody who found a home for a kitten through this column would "pay" me by sending in one funny item, it would be a much better column. Besides, I wouldn't have to work so hard.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

A motorist who rests his elbow on the car window, and clutches the top of the car with his hand, causes a great deal of confusion.

It takes several blocks of following him to figure out whether or not he's signaling for a turn.

Landover Hills, Md.

Dear Bill:

I know what you mean. I followed one of these birds for quite some time the other day, and finally reached the conclusion that he was going straight ahead.

But the moment I tried to pass him, he began a left turn—without giving a signal. Too much effort, I guess.

Bill.

OVERHEARD

Blanch Davidson of 2805 Lee blvd., Arlington, Va., reports that she overheard a mother quizzing her son, with the conversation going like this:

Mother: Who wrote "Seventeen?"

MODERN VERSION

Nate Leiderman of 1508 41st st. se. notes that cafeteria workers in Government restaurants must wait until the rush hour is over before they can assuage their own hunger. Nate suggests that impatient patrons might keep in mind that:

"They also wait who only stand and serve."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Social Security Bill Feared For

By Drew Pearson

Washington social security experts are worried about what the steel fact-finding board recommendations will do to the old-age pension and social security program now before Congress.

Carey

What they fear is a series of special old-age pension plans for certain industrial groups that have the strike power to get them. This might leave millions of less-organized workers who have less power to strike with inadequate old-age pensions and meager social security protection.

Under the Doughton bill, now pending on the House calendar, nearly 50 million employes would share contributions with employers to double present social security benefits. The steel board, however, favors a pension plan for the steel workers paid for entirely by employers, in addition to Government Social Security.

What also worries the social security planners is this: Will the steel workers and other well-organized labor groups push as hard for higher social security benefits for which they pay part of the cost when they can get them from the employer for nothing.

CIO Secretary James B. Carey warned the House Committee on Ways and Means in 1946 that if Congress failed to expand social security, "then labor organizations of the type of the United Mine Workers will attempt to secure security for their workers in some other manner."

Carey's prediction was right. Lewis put across his welfare fund—though it's now suspended—thus putting the miners in a favored position over other workers. Naturally the steel workers don't want to be outdone by the miners. And millions of other oldsters who don't belong to unions don't want to be outdone either. It would have been better if Congress had handled the entire problem in the first place.

Capital Capsules

Miffed at Truman—CIO President Philip Murray and his top aides are not saying so publicly, but they feel that President Truman has fumbled the ball in averting a steel strike. The CIO thought it had Truman primed to give U. S. Steel a big tongue-lashing last week for refusing to negotiate on the basis of the President's own fact-finding board on steel. Instead, Truman was meek, mild, and condemned nobody—despite the fact that the steel workers accepted the principle of the report while the company has rejected it.

Deal With Bevin—Here is the inside story on an agreement between Secretary Acheson and Foreign Minister Bevin that was kept out of the official communique. Britain is going to get an extra Marshall Plan allotment for expanding the production of manganese in her African territory of Northern Rhodesia. The deal is to counteract a Russian squeeze when they stopped shipping manganese to the United States last March.

Japan Gets Respectable—General MacArthur has cabled the State Department urging that Japan be included as a charter member in the proposed Far Eastern defense alliance. MacArthur believes that without Japan's manpower and industrial resources, any anti-Communist alliance in the Far East is doomed to failure. So he's asked the State Department to try and convince Australia and New Zealand to let bygones be bygones and invite the Japanese to join.

Latin Loans—Secretary of State Acheson is telling Latin-American delegates to the United Nations who complain about not getting economic aid from the United States that the International Bank and Monetary Fund has made 70 per cent of all its loans to Latin America. Acheson will disclose that the Bank would make more loans if Latin Americans asked for more money.

Paratrooper Tells Truman

Master Sergt. Jim Hendrix, who fell 1000 feet from an airplane and lived to tell about it, called at the White House for the second time the other day. On a previous visit, President Truman had pinned the Congressional Medal of Honor on Hendrix after he had smashed a German machine-gun nest single-handed, killing seven enemy soldiers and capturing 13 others.

The President questioned Sergeant Hendrix closely about his plunge when his parachute failed to open at Fort Benning, Ga.

"I know the good Lord saved me from death," related the paratrooper. "When I was about 500 feet from the ground, I screamed to Him for help. Then I grabbed my feet so that I would strike the earth in a V-shape. When I hit the ground, I rolled. I was shaken up terribly, but had no serious injury.

"Things like that don't happen by accident," he added intently. "It was God's will that I be saved."

"I'm as sure of that as you are, son," said the President. "And He saved you for some good reason. He wanted you to live for some good cause."
